OILMEN WANT 49%

EDMONTON (CP) — Union representatives for oil, natural gas and chemical workers have decided on a national bargaining stand demanding $3.10 an hour across-the-board raises when contract negotiations begin in October.

Neil Remier, national director of the Oil Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union, said Thursday the contract decision covers about 25,000 union workers in petroleum and petrochemical industries across Canada.

The contract stand, decided at union meetings in Toronto Tuesday and Wednesday, will be applied to negotiations toward a one-year contract for the workers, who now earn an average $6.25 an hour.

This is the first time the union has unified its bargain demands across the country.

Rent Relief Program For Senior Citizens

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

A new $2 million-a-year rent relief program for non-profit senior citizen and co-operative housing projects was announced jointly today by the federal and provincial governments.

Lower-income tenants in those projects will not have to pay more than 25 per cent of gross income toward rent under the program.

The new scheme will apply to all senior citizens in non-profit housing units and to members of housing co-ops with incomes averaging below $12,000 a year.

The program is retroactive to Sept. 1. Total subsidies are expected to amount to $600,000 this year and $2 million in the next full year. It will be shared 50-50 with the federal government.

There are potentially more than 200 projects with 7,160 units eligible for assistance under the plan but priority in allocation of money will go to about 3,000 of the newer, more expensive units.

About 3,000 senior citizens in B.C. will likely be eligible.

Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson said the new program will mean several housing projects will now be able to go ahead with the assurance that tenants will be found to afford the accommodation.

Inflation has hit non-profit housing projects recently and the costs of construction were putting the units beyond the reach of senior citizens.

The majority of residents in senior citizens projects are Mincome recipients with incomes around $250 a month and the new program ensures they will not have to pay more than about $65 a month rent.

Bill Smith, of the Victoria Senior Citizens' Housing Society, said his group will now be able to go ahead with a 98-unit housing project on Rupert Street, because of the program.

The rents on the new building will work out to about $125 for a bachelor and $180 for a one-bedroom apartment.

The scheme will also apply to non-profit co-operative housing but under the financing arrangements people with incomes in excess of $12,000 will not likely receive supplements.

Asked if the supplements might be extended to privately owned rental accommodation, Nicolson said he doubted it except in cases of accommodation built under the limited-dividend housing program of the federal government.

ECONOMY STYMIES UNITED WAY DRIVE

The United Way campaign in Campbell River has been postponed for six months due to poor economic conditions, the director of the Victoria United Way said today.

Hugh Creighton said, however, the Victoria campaign will begin this month as scheduled.

"We don't rely as heavily on the forest industry here as in Campbell River," Creighton said, adding that the reason for postponement of the campaign in Campbell River is the strike at Crown Zellerbach's Elks Falls pulp mill.

It is believed to be the first time a United Way drive has been postponed because of labor strife in a community.

"We do, of course, receive a very high level of support from forest companies and employees in Victoria so the shutdown of the industry will have some impact on our campaign," said Creighton.

"But it is difficult to project the effect on our goal because we don't know the duration of the shut-down."

This year's appeal objective is $750,000 and Creighton urges everyone to "give all they can because the need for money is greater than ever, especially with three new agencies to support."

The canvassing of local business begins Sept. 29 and residential canvassing Oct. 15.

Patty Unrepentant, Greets Comrades

Times News Services

SAN FRANCISCO — Her long and violent journey into the underground at an end, Patricia Hearst sent to her radical comrades today a message indicating that her revolutionary zeal remains unchecked.

"Tell everybody that she's smiling, that she feels free and strong and sends her greetings to the brothers and sisters out there," said her lawyer, Terrence Hallinan.

As the details of events leading up to her sudden capture began to emerge, Miss Hearst and two of her comrades-in-arms, William and Emily Harris, were returned to the federal building here for their second court appearances in as many days.

After spending the night in a county jail south of here, where she met her parents for the first time since her 1974 kidnapping and conversion by the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army, Hearst and the Harrises were transported back to the city in a tightly-guarded auto caravan.

"She was happy . . . she really wants to come home," Randolph Hearst said after he and his wife visited their daughter at a county jail in nearby Redwood City, where she is being held on bank robbery and other charges.

"We told her we loved her and hugged her and kissed her," Catherine Hearst told reporters at the jail. "We just said we loved each other."

Asked whether he will put up the bail money to free his 21-year-old daughter, Hearst replied: "I think so."

Patty with a plea of "don't shoot," surrendered to FBI agents and police Thursday, ending her bizarre disappearance which frustrated U.S. law enforcement for more than 1½ years.

"Don't move or I'll blow your head off!" shouted one FBI agent as he stormed into the two-storey home in a Mexican-American neighborhood to arrest Miss Hearst shortly after the Harrises were arrested elswhere.

One other fugitive also was arrested in the house.

The owner has been charged with harboring fugitives.

There was no violence and no injuries in the arrests.

It was the end of the "underground" life for the 21-year-old Hearst and even with her arrest, her whereabouts in recent months remained a mystery.

Miss Hearst was to appear before a U.S. district judge this afternoon for a bail reduction hearing.

After her arrest, bail here was set at $500,000. She also faces a $550,000 bail situation in Los Angeles where she is wanted on 19 charges.

The decision "will be made by this weekend," said D.A. John Howard.

He said his staff was conferring with the U.S. Attorney's office here, "weighing factors such as how good a case we have as opposed to their case up there, and the respective seriousness of the local and federal charges."

U.S. marshal Gaylord Campbell said that Hearst and fellow SLA members William and Emily Harris have their choice of trial sites on the federal charges. Under federal procedures.

"It's up to them — they can request trial in San Francisco, where they were arrested, or in Los Angeles, where the warrants were filed," he said.

The California charges against Miss Hearst and the Harrises stem from tales of a five-day rampage through Los Angeles county last May.

It began with the holdup of an Inglewood sporting goods store that led to a shootout and fire in which six SLA members were surrounded and killed.

It ended with the three fugitives on the run, allegedly stealing cars and kidnapping and robbing drivers to get away.

"Is this your true name," Woodruff asked.

"Yes," she murmured.

"How old are you?" Woodruff asked.

"Twenty-one," she replied.

She gave her occupation as "urban guerrilla."

An FBI official in California said, meanwhile, that the sudden and dramatic capture of the heiress-turned-terrorist came unexpectedly when police and FBI agents went to the house seeking someone else in connection with the Hearst investigation.

However, a spokesman for the FBI in Washington disputed that report. He said agents "had reasonable basis to believe that Patty Hearst was in the Morse Street house in San Francisco when she was apprehended."

An FBI agent in Sacramento said agents were looking for an unidentified person linked to the SLA and had no idea Miss Hearst or her fugitive companions were there.

VANCOUVER (CP) — A three-alarm blaze ripped through the upper floors and roof of the downtown State Hotel on Granville Street Thursday night and firemen said they suspected arson. The four-storey building was vacant at the time.

Nurses Slowdown

MONTREAL (UPI) — Major hospitals limited surgeries and admitted only emergency cases Friday as 15,000 "angry and dissatisifed" Quebec nurses began a work slowdown over their contract dispute with the provincial government.

Gold Medals

Montreal Struck

MONTREAL (CP) — The city's public transportation system ground to a halt Thursday, the second closure in a month, following a walkout by 2,250 maintenance workers, cashiers and clerical staff.

Stinging Setback For Ontario Tories

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis suffered a stinging setback at the hands of the Ontario electorate Thursday, but his Progressive Conservatives clung to power with a minority standing in the legislature.

After losing ground in all parts of the province to the New Democratic and Liberal parties, the premier expressed the hope that he can work effectively with NDP Leader Stephen Lewis, whose party edged out the Liberals to become the official Opposition.

The standings:

PC	51	78
NDP	38	19
Lib	36	20
Total	125	117

Eight seats were added to the house by redistribution for the current campaign.

Davis made no reference to the possibility of co-operation with Liberal Leader Robert Nixon, who had engaged in acriminious exchanges with the premier throughout the campaign after declaring that the integrity of the government was an election issue.

The NDP leader had launched a broad attack on the government on a variety of issues but refused to be drawn into the personal controversy between Davis and Nixon, which he dismissed as a "Punch and Judy show."

Lewis said his party will work constructively in the new legislature in an effort to present itself as a "serious alternative" to the Conservatives in the next election.

"I am not that familiar with what the issues were, but I do know that Stephen Lewis had committed himself to discussing issues and policies," he said in an interview.

"It is obvious he was able to effectively share with a large number of people in Ontario exactly what his policies and issues were. I feel very, very pleased that he has done so well."

Nixon said a minority government can work in Ontario, but the Liberals will not join with another party to keep such a government alive.

Davis said he is prepared to make a "conscientious effort" to make the government work.

"I'm prepared to provide leadership, I'm not prepared to compromise my principles," Davis told cheering supporters in his Brampton riding. He discounted any notion he might step down.

Earlier, the premier told reporters he still intends to recall the legislature by Oct. 21 and that before it convenes, he will announce an extensive cabinet shuffle.

INDUSTRIAL PROFITS UP

OTTAWA (CP) — Profits of about 4,000 industrial companies surveyed during the three months ended June 30 rose $318 million or 12.4 per cen from the corresponding 1974 quarter, Statistics Canada reported Thrusday.

Sales were up 9.6 per cent, or $4.5 billion, to $51.4 billion.

The companies surveyed had total assets at June 30 of $14.2 billion, a three-per-cent rise from March 31 and 11 per cent more than their assets total at the end of the second quarter last year.

Highway Conditions On Signs

A $345,000 system of computerized message signs will be set up shortly on B.C. highways to give motorists up to the minute information on road conditions.

Seven new signs should be operational by the end of October and will display up to eight messages at a time to warn motorists of road conditions ahead.

The messages, made up of 18-inch-high letters, will be called up through telephone lines by a portable computer terminal.

The signs can therefore be controlled on the spot, from the local highway office or from the Kamloops or Victoria highway headquarters.

First signs will be placed on the Fraser Canyon, the Hope-Princeton and Prince Rupert-Terrace sections of highways and the locations were selected on the basis of avalanche hazards, volumes of traffic and previous road closures.

The computerized messages should be given far enough in advance to allow motorists to consider taking an alternative route.

The motorists will see a series of three messages flashing in sequence and exposed for a minimum of two seconds.

U.S. COL Rise Slim

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. cost of living rose 0.3 per cent in August, the smallest monthly increase in more than two years, the labor department said today.

Forest Talks Continue

Talks aimed at bringing the three B.C. forest unions into a common front pact are continuing today as negotiations initiated by the provincial government enter their fourth day.

The three forest unions, International Woodworkers of America, the Pulp Paper and Woodworkers of Canada and the Canadian Paperworkers Union, met separately today at the legislative buildings apparently to discuss the possibility of resolving their differences and hammering out a common front.

Management leaders met briefly this morning with provincial mediators Gus Leonidas and Fred Geddes and were expected to meet back at the buildings later in the day.

Neither union leaders nor B.C. Federation of Labor secretary Len Guy, who initiated the common front meetings, which began late Thursday, would offer any comment on the progress of the discussions.

"What I can say is that we're still talking," said Guy.

B.C. Police Plan 'Study' on Noose

Municipal police forces in Greater Victoria and the Lower Mainland will stage a four-hour study session Oct. 31 if a convicted police murderer does not hang.

The study sessions will begin at 11 a.m. and only emergency calls will be answered, police union spokesman said today.

Rene Vaillancourt, convicted of killing Toronto policeman Leslie Maitland, is to hang Oct. 31.

RCMP, who provide police service in most of British Columbia, will not participate in the study session, union spokesmen said.

Sgt. Pat Braiden, president of the Victoria Policemen's Union, said it will be a study session rather than a walkout.

Every policeman, whether working or not, will go to the police station and only emergency calls will be attended to during the four hours.

WRITING ON WALL?

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal Senator Hazen Argue said today that his party's showing in the Ontario election "could be the writing on the wall" for federal Liberals.

He said in a statement that provincial leader Robert Nixon should resign immediately and the party should have a new look at its programs.

"In this clear-cut defeat for Robert Nixon and the Liberals, action is required now," the Saskatchewan senator said.

"The Liberal party . . . should act as speedily as possible to defeat the William Davis government, or force an election and give the Ontario electorate the opportunity to give a clear-cut decision."

He did not elaborate on his warning that the election results could be reflected at the federal level.

Que. Cuts Aid to English Businesses

Times News Services

MONTREAL — Companies with a predominantly English-language orientation will have to integrate themselves more into the economic and cultural life of francophone Quebec if they want government financial assistance, a senior civil servant said Thursday.

Lucien Saulnier, former president of the Quebec Industrial Development Corp. and now president of the Quebec Housing Corp., said that for too long had companies owned by English-speaking Canadiaps been operating in Quebec with little regard for the social and economic life of the province.

The development corporation, which provides grants to ailing companies, found itself giving tax money, largely collected from the 80-pe. cent francophone majority, to companies owned by the province's English-speaking minority, he said.

And, although these companies were reaping benefits from living in Quebec, the mother-tongue of the majority of their employees could not be spoken at work.

Bill 22, the controversial legislation which makes French the official language of Quebec, is changing that situation, Saulnier told an audience of about 300 businessmen attending a one-day seminar on regulations regarding use of French in labelling, signs and catalogues.

Now, for a company to receive subsidies from the development corporation it must "contribute to the evolution of the industrial structure and integrate itself into the realities of Quebec," Saulnier said.

In more concrete terms, companies must use French at all levels of employment before obtaining grants, he said.

Communications Minister, Pierrre Juneau, meanwhile said Thursday French should be the dominant language in Quebec province he criticized a campaign against Quebec's Official Language Act by radio station CFCF.

House where Patty was captured

Some Nice New Neighbors . . . Until Raid

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — It was just a day or so ago that Henry Good mentioned he was pleased with his new neighbor. That was before he found out Patricia Hearst lived on the block.

"In fact, I said to my wife just yesterday it was good to get some nice quiet neighbors like that," Good said.

But the streets were far from quiet Thursday as crowds jammed the neighborhood for a glimpse of the modest two-storey house at 625 Morse that was the end of the long trail for the heiress turned gun-toting revolutinary.

Oscar Perez, a student who lives on the street, was parked in his car when Miss Hearst and her companion Wendy Yoshimura, were brought out in handcuffs.

"Everything was extremely smoooth," he said. "They acted like everything had already happened."

Neighbors say most residents mind their own business. That may be why few had seen the new neighbors in the red-front walkup.

Nor did many witness the arrest.

Patricia's landlord, Jerry Prill, was in the garage below the apartment cutting some boards during the early afternoon. He was on his way out when he said the FBI stopped him.

"They showed me pictures and their badges," he said. "Then I knew it was her."

Prill said he took the agents through the garage to the back entrance to the third-floor apartment.

Prill said one of the girls apparently tried to run for the front. He said he heard an agent shout, "don't move or I'll blow your head off."

Miss Hearst reportedly said: "Don't shoot. I'll go with you."

She went. And as she did, the neighbors talked.

"It's a shock to learn that Patty Hearst was living on your block," said restaurant worker Don Cecchi, 18, who has lived with his family on Morse Street for 13 years.

Jenne Anberg, who lives in a house abutting the Hearst walkup, is caring for the fugitives' black cat at the request of the FBI.

She never saw the slender heiress, but did see a young man who came to the Morse Street apartment at night.

"All I knew is that the landlord told me a nice young couple moved next door," she said. "They sure were good neighbors — they were quiet."

Marion Sickinger said she was resting on the couch during the arrest and learned of what happened a few doors away when her husband said, "Hon, the radio said they just arrested Patty Hearst down the block."

She thought that over for a couple of seconds and dismissed it.

Capture Came Quickly For Hearst, Harrises

Sanm Francisco police officer Tim Casey said he and FBI agent Tom Padden went up the back stairs to the third-floor apartment while his partner and another FBI agent went up the front stairs.

Casey said Miss Hearst's companion, radical Wendy Yoshimura, came to the door first "and saw us in the window."

"Padden told her to freeze," Casey said. "Patty came up behind her.

"Then they both bolted back. Padden shouted for them to 'Freeze! Get over here and open the door.'"

Casey said that when Miss Yoshimura opened the door, Miss Hearst turned around, and he said: "Patty! Don't make a move. 'All right,' she said."

He quoted her as saying: "Don't shoot, I'll go with you."

Casey said he asked her whether she had a gun. "She said, 'Yes, in the purse in the bedroom.'"

Casey added: "I asked her if she was glad it was over, and she didn't say a word."

Meanwhile, a Seattle Safeway store was bombed Thursday night in apparent retaliation for the capture. Five person were reported injured, none seriously.

Two minutes before the bomb went off television station KING received a phone call from a young woman who said:

"This is the George Jackson brigade. A bomb has been planted at the Safeway store at 15th and John. It is in retaliation for the arrests of our SLA brothers and sisters in San Francisco."

The message was received at 9:28 p.m.

As KING news personnel tried to reach police with the warning they heard of the blast on the police radio, reporter Andy Reynolds said.

MAN SLAYS HIS WIFE OVER COLD SUPPER

JOHANNESBURG (UPI) — Jose Valente came home one night and shot his wife because supper was cold. Valente was committed Thursday for trial on a charge of murder.

At the preparatory examination the court heard Valente came home from a soccer match July 3 and found his supper — a pot of soup — cold in the kitchen. He said he beat his wife and accidentally shot and killed her with a pistol he carried to protect himself at the soccer match.

Portugal Trims Communist Role

LISBON (UPI) — Portugal's military rulers today announced formation of a new coalition cabinet, severely reducing Communist influence in the government and ending three weeks of political deadlock.

The policy-making revolutionary council said the new cabinet, dominated by non-Communists, would probably take office tonight.

Political sources said the socialist party will receive four cabinet posts in the new line-up, the left-of-centre Popular Democrats two and the Communists one.

The remaining seats were earmarked for military officers and independent Technocrats generally to the right of the Communists.

Politicians said there was still some disagreement over how the parties should divide the jobs at the secondary level of government, where the Communists are demanding more representation.

"If we work hard, everything should be settled," one party leader said.

Premier-designate Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo began trying to form a new cabinet Aug. 29 but efforts were stalled by squabbles over how many posts each of the three leading parties would hold.

Modest Hike Oil Hint

WASHINGTON (AP) — Iran disassociated itself Thursday from oil cartel "extremists" and said it will support a modest oil price increase when the 14-member organization meets next week in Vienna.

Iranian Ambassador Ardeshir Zahedi predicted only a five-to 10-per cent price increase.

Answering questions at a luncheon of the Women's National Democratic Club, Zahedi rejected a widespread notion that Iran will lead the fight for a large price increase at the meeting of the Organization of Petroluem Exporting Countries.

Gunman Flees to U.S.?

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Niagara regional police continued to search today for a man accused of killing one person and wounding two others Thursday at a downtown Toronto hotel, but Chief Harold Adamson of Metropolitan Toronto police says the suspect may have fled to the United States.

Chief Adamson said "there's a good chance," the wanted man escaped the police dragnet here and entered the U.S., possibly by walking across the Rainbow Bridge.

$1.3M Ransom

FAVERGES, France (AP) — Authorities paid a $1.3-million ransom today to a young masked gunman who seized five bank employees and held them hostage under threat of death.

In return he released three women but held on to two men.

Simon Berger, mayor of this town 300 miles southeast of Paris, first delivered half the money on the doorstep of the bank in an open suitcase.

The gunman agreed to wait for the second half. When the rest of the money was provided three hours later, he released the three women unharmed.

A getaway car was provided, but police ringed the bank and sharpshooters stationed themselves on nearby rooftops and balconies, waiting for an opportunity to go into action.

The NDP Preplaced the Conservatives as the dominant party in Metropolitan Toronto, ousting three Conservatives and a Liberal and winning three of the four new seats allotted to the area by redistribution.

"It's wonderful for a change to have a political rather than a moral victory," Lewis told jubilant supporters after watching the NDP takeover as the official opposition.

Almost defeated personally in 1971, Lewis won by a landslide of about 9,000 votes in his Scarborough West riding.

The prospect of the minority government in Ontario has prompted favorable comment from provincial spokesmen for labor, teachers, developers and civil servants.

David Archer, president of the Ontario Federation of Labor, said in Toronto he is "happy as hell" with the minority government. Minority administrations are capable of good legislation, he said.

"After 32 years in power, the Conservatives needed some chastisement for what I consider arrogance," he added.

Grant Notley, Alberta NDP leader, said the showing of Lewis and his party "clearly establishes the NDP as the major political force in Canada." Mr. Notley is the lone NDP member in the Alberta legislature.

Just How Long Is Temporary?

Fear was expressed Thursday that the makeshift quarters for superior courts in Victoria could last two or three years.

Dr. J. J. Gow, president of the Victoria Bar Association, voiced the concern following a meeting with public works department officials Wednesday about renovations to the Law Courts Building on Burdett Avenue.

A $1.8 million contract has been let to add two floors to the building and in the meantime, superior courts have been moved to "temporary" accommodation at the former St. Ann's Academy, now owned by the provincial government.

Gow said it is "our very vivid apprehension" this arrangement could last two or three years and "if that should be correct, then the public is being done a great dis-service."

He said the St. Ann's accommodation "is a travesty of what courts of justice and the delivery of legal service should be."

The small courtrooms at St. Ann's are jammed into one end of the third floor of the building and overcrowding is evident on some days even before jury trials begin in the fall.

At Wednesday's meeting, Gow said the public works department presented its plans for the Law Courts which would result in three new courtrooms on the main floor and two on the lower main, for a net gain of four over the present arrangement which has only one court at those levels.

The bar association has proposed five courtrooms on the lower main floor and two on the main floor, for a net gain of six courtrooms.

The government plans to move provincial courts from Fisgard Street to the Law Courts. The new fourth and fifth floors are being designed for offices and not for extra courtroom space, Gow said.

The second and third floors used to accommodate the superior courts before they moved to St. Ann's when construction of the higher floors began in July.

Gow said in addition to construction of the two new floors, even more money will have to be spent renovating the main and lower main floors for courtrooms.

The bar association's position, he said, is that "such vast expenditures of public money should have as its result the maximum benefit to the public. Our proposals provide a net gain of six new courts."

Gow said it was agreed there would be a month's adjournment before another meeting with the government is held while the bar association's planning representative, David Wilson, talks to public works department architects.

A Dangerous Precedent

We all have come to love whales, those intelligent mammals much older than man whose fascinatingly complex brains and "sonar" systems we have barely begun to understand. The Greenpeace movement has alerted public opinion against the nations which continue to hunt whales to extinction. The recent stupid publicity stunt — there's no other name for it — of the Vancouver public aquarium in capturing three placid six-gilled sharks in the Gulf Islands, apparently just to cash in on the current fad, probably made more friends for sharks than for aquarium directors.

But the recent actions of the provincial government against the capture of any more killer whales seem amazingly clumsy, and probably does more harm than good to the save-the-whales movement.

First there was Recreation Minister Jack Radford's "ban" on the capture of any more killer whales, although it's pretty clear that the matter is under federal jurisdiction.

And if Radford hadn't done enough to slam the barn door after the horses had fled, Transport Minister Robert Strachan stepped in with a personal fiat stopping the transport of any killer whales on B.C. government ferries.

This is a dangerous precedent. Henceforth, may the minister decide what type of cargo is to be carried aboard the ferries? Turkeys for slaughter on the island, horses for exploitation at race tracks but not killer whales for aquariums? Upon what authority does the minister act?

In his claims for subsidies from the federal government for the B.C. ferries' construction and operation, Strachan has always maintained that they are an integral part of the Trans-Canada Highway system. But on what other sections of the highway — bridge or tunnel or overpass or eight-lane freeway — does a politician have the capricious power to decide what cargo shall be allowed?

Presumably, next in line will be the association to protect fur-bearing animals, or those opposed to Japanese whale-hunting or people against the big timber companies defoliating any more prime recreation land. Shall the minister then ban the shipment of furry animals or their skins, all Japanese motor vehicles and logging trucks? It sounds absurd, but it's no crazier than the whale decision.

Like the same government's politically-motivated ban on South African wines (good right-wing vintages from Chile continue to be sold, fine repressive bottles from Hungary and Bulgaria are still on the shelves), the decision to bar the transport of killer whales on B.C. Ferries is arbitrary and unjust. It should be rescinded now.

"... next time you guys come up with the wrong figures, you're out on your ear ... all three of you! ..."

Wires Across the Border

Whenever Canadian and American politicians get together it is almost obligatory to refer to "the longest undefended border in the world" stretching almost 4,000 miles across the continent. It makes for good speeches filled with international bonhomie but it is a myth on a continent increasingly security conscious.

Now in a wires-across-the-border manner, U.S. and Canadian authorities plan to install electronic sensors along a 450-mile stretch of the 49th parallel in Eastern Canada. There will even be a few installed at the western end of the continental parallel near Blaine, Washington. The reason: a vague rationale about catching illegal immigrants, perhaps terrorists, who would disrupt the Montreal Olympics or the U.S. bicentennial celebrations. Nothing could be sillier. If anyone is going to disrupt bicentennial celebrations in the U.S. it will be native Americans of a radical bent. Terrorists intent on commiting mayhem at the Olympics will not necessarily come from the U.S. And if they did, they will certainly pick some isolated veldt dividing North Dakota and Saskatchewan rather than the much publicized sensor locales.

There is nothing intrinsically wrong with such security measures if a proven need existed. But when one's own national borders take on the trappings of the former demilitarized zone of Vietnam it produces anxious feelings. What the Americans do on their side of the border is their own business. But when Canada cooperates in the placement of electronic sensors on the frontier it makes us nervous about the paranoia operating in Ottawa minds. If the Trudeau administration showed such sensitive antennae when it came to detecting our national economic control going south it would be understandable. Instead, we get an electronic version of the Keystone cops. Of course, that's show business.

Now It's Rube Goldberg's Turn

When it comes theorizing, analyzing and studying the provincial government is unsurpassed. Resources Minister Bob Williams has enthusiastically endorsed a harbor design contest sponsored by the Victoria branch of the Community Planning Association of Canada. If anything this latest gambit should win a prize for the redundancy of the year.

Nearly a year and a half ago the provincial government put a freeze on the Reid property site. Through a series of deals the Barrett administration now controls most of the harbor land. The only thing to appear so far is a provincially-owned sandwich shop which city council and most of the citizenry feel Victoria could do without. Williams reassures an impatient public by saying Inner Harbor development is not something we want to rush into. Who's rushing?

Participatory democracy is one thing but interminable delay is another. Perhaps there is some unsung planner out there who will submit a brilliant design that will please everybody. More than likely the planning association will be deluged with Rube Goldberg ideas that will only waste more time. In this case no one can blame Mayor Peter Pollen and his long-suffering council if they refuse to put up any money for this harum-scarum scheme. The government restaurant will now be joined by a temporary "ideas centre" on the harbor. Staff will be in attendance to discuss residents' ideas and suggestions. When the contest is closed 60 days after it begins, another committee will have to sift through the ideas, submit the inevitable report and the government will sleep on it. No wonder Mayor Pollen wants to get out of politics.

Why Should Confidence Exist?

OTTAWA — The complex difficulties the world economy is going through in working its way out of the inflation-recession — if, indeed, that is what is happening — are demonstrated by two recent events in Canada.

The latest unemployment figures, which came out last week and covered the situation up until Aug. 16, would be alarming if we had not by now become inured to such high levels of joblessness.

The other event which so graphically demonstrates our difficulties, which are not unique to us, was last week's rise in interest rates. The Bank of Canada moved toward more costly credit because it was felt that the money supply was growing too rapidly and carried with it the seeds of further inflation.

Spreading Consequences

No one could quarrel with efforts to keep the money supply under control these days since that is one of the essentials for an eventual escape from the inflation plaguing us. Yet it has become quite clear that interest rates at these levels are themselves highly inflationary and not even very effective at curbing the growth of credit.

By far the most predictable effect of the Bank of Canada move, which was followed rapidly by the commercial banks in raising their own already high lending rates, will be in the field of housing. As a consequence of the extreme cost of money there already exist in many parts of the country serious shortages of rental housing. Home-building, which ought to be a mainstay of the economy, is far below the levels the government would prefer.

The consequences of a low level of activity in the housing market inevitably spread out. All of the industries which manufacture the equipment necessary to make a house or flat livable are effected adversely, from the furnace-makers to companies which manufacture washing machines and stoves. It was in this precise area that the Conference Board in Canada found in its latest survey of consumer confidence a continuing hesitation by people to commit themselves to major purchases. The board, in effect, found consumers poised, more confident about the future than they had been a few months ago but still not quite ready to plunge into new major purchases.

Simultaneously, the effect of extremely high rates of interest is reduced as people everywhere adopt a "life-must-go-on" attitude, grit their teeth and pay levels that only a few years ago would have appalled them. At that stage it has ceased to be a useful tool in controlling the economy and has become primarily a fresh source of inflation, as direct an additional cost in the economy as excessive wage settlements.

While consumer confidence in the economy may be slowly recovering it seems to me that there is not much reason why ordinary people would have a high level of confidence in either the political system or some of our institutions. The Bank of Canada, for instance, has not had an inspiring record over the last half dozen years and it is really a bit far-fetched to expect ordinary people trying to make their way in the world to have confidence in the almost anonymous men who run it. Their politics have not inspired confidence. They are as gray, drab and remote as any commissar in Moscow.

Looking at the political process, the ordinary man must feel that he sees uncertainty and hesitation, a government reacting haphazardly to events rather than leading. At the saue time it must be evident to him that freeloading by men in government has attained banana republic levels, when out of perverse defiance the taxpayer and not the political parties are forced to pay the bills for purely political travels.

The most costly security measures are adopted for the most ego-stroking reasons.

In this sort of atmosphere, where no attempt is made to build confidence, why would the ordinary man believe that public affairs were under sound control? He is far more likely to ask himself whether the men at the Bank of Canada have any idea what they are doing, then look at the unemployment figures and conclude that they do not much care.

Banana Republic

Some of the difficulties are inevitable. The world has been through an economic trauma, part sheer binge, part the strains of the quadrupling of oil prices. At the end of a deep recession, when rapid stimulation of the economy is essential but impossibly dangerous, unemployment will be a long time subsiding. The total supply of money and credit must be kept under control or the near future will bring us back to the worst problems of the last two or three years.

We delude ourselves, however, if we pretend that all of this, the culmination of political climate and economic complexities, is not placing grave strains on the social fabric of the nation. Some of the conduct it is bringing in its train is insane, from police harassment of a public upon whose co-operation it must later depend for effectiveness, to the extreme political cynicism of the Ontario election campaign and the federal government's abdication of any role in forming public opinion on such a socially profound issue as hanging. Why would confidence exist today? Who seeks to build it?

Cornerstones Queried

It is interesting to read in Saturday's paper that the dean of the Anglican cathedral has discarded hymn-books that play down the virgin birth, which he declares one of the cornerstones of Christianity.

If this is so, it seems curious that this doctrine should only be mentioned in two of the four gospels, Matthew and Luke, and that the former should also contain an elaborate tracing of Jesus' ancestry down from Abraham through Joseph. Jesus himself never mentioned it, nor did St. Paul, author of the earliest parts of the New Testament.

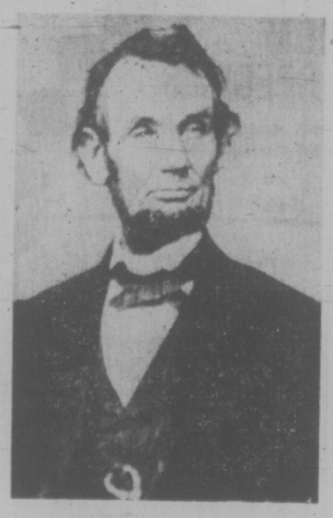
The dean is also faced with the embarrassing fact that many figures of antiquity were reported to have had miraculous modes of birth or death. All these cases, of course, the dean considers mere legends.

Most Anglican luminaries, if not those of the hallelujah churches, at some time in their lives have mixed with civilized and educated people. It seems sad that they should have so neglected their opportunities. — Derek Pethick, 5420 Alderley Road.

Lincoln Cited

Richard Needham's article appearing in the Times of Sept. 8 was excellent and the sooner we start to move in the direction he suggests the better it will be for us all. His article makes us think that he, and hopefully many others, might agree with Abraham Lincoln who over 100 years ago wrote the following ten commandments for government, industry, business, labor and societies in general:

1. You cannot bring about prosperity by discouraging thrift.
2. You cannot strengthen the weak by weakening the strong.
3. You cannot help the small man by pulling down the big man.
4. You cannot help the wage earner by pulling down the wage payer.
5. You cannot help the poor by destroying the rich.
7. You cannot establish sound security on borrowed money.
8. You cannot keep out of trouble by spending more than you earn.



ABRAHAM LINCOLN
. . . rules for our time?

9. You cannot build character and courage by taking away man's initiative and independence.
10. You cannot help men permanently by doing for them what they could and should do for themselves.

Still all very relevant and practical in today's society which has strayed far from these principles. Think about it! — William W. Baldwin, 806-250 Douglas St.

Close Alliance

It appears Phyllis Young, B.C. minister of consumer services, isn't answering Mrs. Plumptre's concern for the B.C. and Canadian consumer at all.

True, we are able to get the groceries we need but when the excessive salary demands by unions are met it will be the consumer who will pay higher food prices. Increases are passed on to Mr. Average Consumer—who else?

According to Ms. Young the culprit in continuing rising prices isn't with unrealistic union demands. That is not the way the consumer sees the problem.

Union Should Pay

During the past week or two there has been much comment in the news regarding the payment of welfare to persons involved in a labor dispute.

Your editorial of Sept. 13 indicates that you are all in favor of such a practice. You further indicate the province does not have much choice in the matter because of the position taken by the federal government.

I am in full agreement that persons on strike should not be allowed to starve. I disagree completely with the method used to keep them eating. In my opinion no one on strike is entitled to receive money from the public purse. No matter how thin you slice it, payment of welfare helps conserve union funds. Conservation of union funds helps prolong the dispute.

In my opinion, the union should have the sole responsibility of seeing that striking members don't go hungry. Payment of strike allowances or picket pay isn't anywhere near enough. The union should be made to pay whatever amount the individual would be entitled to via welfare. As a precaution the payments should originate with the welfare department who in turn would recover from the union. — C. McCreath, Edgewater Terrace, R.R. 2, Cobble Hill, B.C.

STRIKING PICKETS
. . . should rely on selves

Confused Law

In the Sept. 15 Times, Back from Death Row To Responsible Life, author Paul King presents it as a clear case of the value of commutation. Instead, it is a clear case of the confusion in our criminal justice.

Jim Carey got his reprieve solely on his word that Joe Gordon killed policeman Gordon Sinclair. That can't be proved.

Note these words of his: "Pretty soon I had told her everything. She (Simma Holt) started a campaign to save me from hanging." And this: "I was ready for it. I had waited on death row ... for a year until that night." He doesn't sound like an innocent man who would fight from the instant of capture to prove his innocence. The law took his word.

Any fair person will agree that commutation is valid in a doubtful case like this, but not when the criminal is caught red-handed. Then we're asking for mob rule. — R. G. Milton, Hamilton, Ont.

Government Apathy

I, an ordinary citizen with concern for my environment, wish to voice my dismay at the apathy of our government leaders regarding Derrick Mallard's proposal re municipal waste retrieval and sewage composting. Mr. Mallard is offering to explore and present to local governments alternatives to present systems of waste disposal. He hopes thereby to improve the bureaucratic and public attitude and interest in the whole area of waste disposal and its many possibilities, both economic and aesthetic.

I would like to quote from the keynote speech given by Russell E. Train, administrator of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, at the fifth annual composting and recycling conference held in Washington, D.C., in April:

"All of us, whatever our role in society, must assume the reponsibility of supporting constructive change. The benefits of waste utilization must be widely broadcast. Experiments need to be carried out, and good practices need to be demonstrated for all to see."

It is heartening to hear such statements from a high official of the American government — but where is our leadership coming from in the province of B.C.? We seem to be two or three decades behind many parts of the world. Our capital city of Victoria, world-renowned for its parks and private gardens, should be out in front, setting an example to the rest of the country, but instead dumps its valuable sewage into the convenient ocean, and its compostable wastes into landfill areas!

B.C. has vast areas of marginal lands which could be improved to greater fertility by the application of properly prepared wastes.

I sincerely hope that Mr. Mallard finds support for this study "some way or other" for it has valuable possibilities both economically and environmentally. — Mrs. Edith Gardner, 11145 Heather Road.

Rockets, Bombs In Beirut

BEIRUT (AP) — Rockets, bombs and machine-gun fire terrorized the Lebanese capital today despite a ceasefire agreement between warring Christian and Moslem factions. Police reported at least 33 persons were killed.

The governor of the Beirut area ordered a 6 p.m.-to-6 a.m. curfew in the city's commercial and banking districts following rumors that Moslem radicals were planning to firebomb the area. Several fires raged in the central commercial district after an exchange of rockets.

For the second day, the government's Beirut radio warned people that most streets are unsafe. It said all roads leading into the city were blocked by fighting or by barriers manned by armed men from one side or the other.

Everyone but the gunmen and security forces trying to quell the fighting stayed indoors. Commercial activity was paralysed.

There was intermittent firing throughout the night.

Rockets hit a hotel and 12 shops in downtown Martyrs' Square, and a fire gutted a movie house on the square. The theatre was owned by a Moslem charity organization.

Other fires were reported in a slum area.

Christian militiamen captured the son of Moslem Socialist Leader Kamal Jumblatt at a roadblock, but Christian Interior Minister, Camille Chamoun, secured his release.

A joint commission of Moslems, Christians, Palestinian guerrillas and security officers met into the night discussing way of trying to make the ceasefire effective.

Christian and Moslem leaders agreed to a truce Thursday afternoon after the heaviest fighting since the current round of communal warfare began Sept. 3 in Tripoli.

Military Intelligence Fooled Itself: CIA

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — A former CIA agent says top U.S. intelligence and military officials deliberately distorted reports on Communist troop strength to convince the American public the United States was winning the Vietnam war in 1968.

Samuel Adams, who was the CIA's principal analyst on the Viet Cong for seven years, told the house select committee on intelligence Thursday that all intelligence officials involved with Vietnam, including CIA director William Colby, should be fired for "screwing up intellignece on Vietnam."

He said that because of "corruption in the intelligence process" the United States was caught off-guard by the severity of the 1968 Communist Tet offensive, during which thousands of U.S. planes were destroyed on the ground and fighting spilled into the American Embassy compound in Saigon.

"Although our aim was to fool the American press, the public and the Congress, we in intelligence succeeded best in fooling ourselves," Adams said.

"In the months before the offensive, U.S. intelligence had deliberately downgraded the strength of the enemy army in order to portray the Viet Cong as weaker than they actually were."

Chairman Otis Pike (Dem — N.Y.) asked whether Adams meant intelligence reports were made to fit political decisions previously made.

"Yes, sir," Adams replied.

Backing up some of his charges with what he described as notes based on still secret documents, Adams said the distortions were condoned by a number of high-ranking officials, including former U.S. ambassador to Vietnam Ellsworth Bunker, former White House national security advisor Walt W. Rostoa, former CIA director Richard Helms, and Gens. Creighton Abrams, Earle G. Wheeler and William C. Westmoreland.

He said they were among those "who knew there was an attempt going on to fool the press" and thus the American public.

Adams, who resigned from the CIA in 1973 and now raises cattle in Virginia, said he informed top CIA officials repeatedly the Viet Cong strength was nearly 600,000 — twice the figure used by the military command of Westmoreland.

Adams said he did not know whether then-president Lyndon Johnson knew of the discrepancies.

Still battling with the White House over secret government documents relevant to its investigations, the committee went ahead with Thursday's hearing as part of an effort to make the impasse as painful as possible for the Ford administration.

"They're going to be awfully sorry before we're done," predicted a committee source. "Debating an empty chair can be very effective," said another. "That's what we're doing."

Fire Blamed On Cigarette

A fire "probably started by a cigarette" near Glen Lake Road, Sooke, was brought under control in less than two hours Thursday, a B.C. Forest Service spokesman said today.

The blaze reported at 2:30 p.m. burned about one-fifth of an acre of timber, he said.

"We are not sure of the cause," he said, "but it probably was a cigarette."

Gliding Controls Urged

ROSSLAND (CP) — A coroner's jury has called for federal regulations in hang-gliding, a fast-growing sport that has taken the lives of two Rossland men this summer.

Following an inquest Thursday night into the death of Keith Muffly, 18, of Rossland on Sept. 2, the jury recommended:

—That only equipment passed by the Canadian Standards Association be permitted for flying. No standards exist now;

—A set of uniform safety standards be established; and

—Better ground instruction be mandatory with a minimum of 20 hours' training before a pilot is permitted to fly.

Earlier in the summer, Ken Greene of Rossland, rated as one of the best hang-gliding pilots in the area, was killed during the Western Canada Championships at Invermere.

Masked to avoid identification, Phalange militiamen in Beirut are armed with a heavy gun and other equipment at Ain Rummaneh district during fighting in Beirut. The Phalange party of right-wing Christians is leading the fighting against Moslems and leftists.

Rockets, Bombs In Beirut

BEIRUT (AP) — Rockets, bombs and machine-gun fire terrorized the Lebanese capital today despite a ceasefire agreement between warring Christian and Moslem factions. Police reported at least 33 persons were killed.

The governor of the Beirut area ordered a 6 p.m.-to-6 a.m. curfew in the city's commercial and banking districts following rumors that Moslem radicals were planning to firebomb the area. Several fires raged in the central commercial district after an exchange of rockets.

For the second day, the government's Beirut radio warned people that most streets are unsafe. It said all roads leading into the city were blocked by fighting or by barriers manned by armed men from one side or the other.

Everyone but the gunmen and security forces trying to quell the fighting stayed indoors. Commercial activity was paralysed.

There was intermittent firing throughout the night.

Rockets hit a hotel and 12 shops in downtown Martyrs' Square, and a fire gutted a movie house on the square. The theatre was owned by a Moslem charity organization.

Other fires were reported in a slum area.

Christian militiamen captured the son of Moslem Socialist Leader Kamal Jumblatt at a roadblock, but Christian Interior Minister, Camille Chamoun, secured his release.

A joint commission of Moslems, Christians, Palestinian guerrillas and security officers met into the night discussing way of trying to make the ceasefire effective.

Christian and Moslem leaders agreed to a truce Thursday afternoon after the heaviest fighting since the current round of communal warfare began Sept. 3 in Tripoli.

Military Intelligence Fooled Itself: CIA

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — A former CIA agent says top U.S. intelligence and military officials deliberately distorted reports on Communist troop strength to convince the American public the United States was winning the Vietnam war in 1968.

Samuel Adams, who was the CIA's principal analyst on the Viet Cong for seven years, told the house select committee on intelligence Thursday that all intelligence officials involved with Vietnam, including CIA director William Colby, should be fired for "screwing up intellignece on Vietnam."

He said that because of "corruption in the intelligence process" the United States was caught off-guard by the severity of the 1968 Communist Tet offensive, during which thousands of U.S. planes were destroyed on the ground and fighting spilled into the American Embassy compound in Saigon.

"Although our aim was to fool the American press, the public and the Congress, we in intelligence succeeded best in fooling ourselves," Adams said.

"In the months before the offensive, U.S. intelligence had deliberately downgraded the strength of the enemy army in order to portray the Viet Cong as weaker than they actually were."

Chairman Otis Pike (Dem — N.Y.) asked whether Adams meant intelligence reports were made to fit political decisions previously made.

"Yes, sir," Adams replied.

Backing up some of his charges with what he described as notes based on still secret documents, Adams said the distortions were condoned by a number of high-ranking officials, including former U.S. ambassador to Vietnam Ellsworth Bunker, former White House national security advisor Walt W. Rostoa, former CIA director Richard Helms, and Gens. Creighton Abrams, Earle G. Wheeler and William C. Westmoreland.

He said they were among those "who knew there was an attempt going on to fool the press" and thus the American public.

Adams, who resigned from the CIA in 1973 and now raises cattle in Virginia, said he informed top CIA officials repeatedly the Viet Cong strength was nearly 600,000 — twice the figure used by the military command of Westmoreland.

Adams said he did not know whether then-president Lyndon Johnson knew of the discrepancies.

Still battling with the White House over secret government documents relevant to its investigations, the committee went ahead with Thursday's hearing as part of an effort to make the impasse as painful as possible for the Ford administration.

"They're going to be awfully sorry before we're done," predicted a committee source. "Debating an empty chair can be very effective," said another. "That's what we're doing."

Fire Blamed On Cigarette

A fire "probably started by a cigarette" near Glen Lake Road, Sooke, was brought under control in less than two hours Thursday, a B.C. Forest Service spokesman said today.

The blaze reported at 2:30 p.m. burned about one-fifth of an acre of timber, he said.

"We are not sure of the cause," he said, "but it probably was a cigarette."

Gliding Controls Urged

ROSSLAND (CP) — A coroner's jury has called for federal regulations in hang-gliding, a fast-growing sport that has taken the lives of two Rossland men this summer.

Following an inquest Thursday night into the death of Keith Muffly, 18, of Rossland on Sept. 2, the jury recommended:

—That only equipment passed by the Canadian Standards Association be permitted for flying. No standards exist now;

—A set of uniform safety standards be established; and

—Better ground instruction be mandatory with a minimum of 20 hours' training before a pilot is permitted to fly.

Earlier in the summer, Ken Greene of Rossland, rated as one of the best hang-gliding pilots in the area, was killed during the Western Canada Championships at Invermere.

A Dangerous Precedent

We all have come to love whales, those intelligent mammals much older than man whose fascinatingly complex brains and "sonar" systems we have barely begun to understand. The Greenpeace movement has alerted public opinion against the nations which continue to hunt whales to extinction. The recent stupid publicity stunt — there's no other name for it — of the Vancouver public aquarium in capturing three placid six-gilled sharks in the Gulf Islands, apparently just to cash in on the current fad, probably made more friends for sharks than for aquarium directors.

But the recent actions of the provincial government against the capture of any more killer whales seem amazingly clumsy, and probably does more harm than good to the save-the-whales movement.

First there was Recreation Minister Jack Radford's "ban" on the capture of any more killer whales, although it's pretty clear that the matter is under federal jurisdiction.

And if Radford hadn't done enough to slam the barn door after the horses had fled, Transport Minister Robert Strachan stepped in with a personal fiat stopping the transport of any killer whales on B.C. government ferries.

This is a dangerous precedent. Henceforth, may the minister decide what type of cargo is to be carried aboard the ferries? Turkeys for slaughter on the island, horses for exploitation at race tracks but not killer whales for aquariums? Upon what authority does the minister act?

In his claims for subsidies from the federal government for the B.C. ferries' construction and operation, Strachan has always maintained that they are an integral part of the Trans-Canada Highway system. But on what other sections of the highway — bridge or tunnel or overpass or eight-lane freeway — does a politician have the capricious power to decide what cargo shall be allowed?

Presumably, next in line will be the association to protect fur-bearing animals, or those opposed to Japanese whale-hunting or people against the big timber companies defoliating any more prime recreation land. Shall the minister then ban the shipment of furry animals or their skins, all Japanese motor vehicles and logging trucks? It sounds absurd, but it's no crazier than the whale decision.

Like the same government's politically-motivated ban on South African wines (good right-wing vintages from Chile continue to be sold, fine repressive bottles from Hungary and Bulgaria are still on the shelves), the decision to bar the transport of killer whales on B.C. Ferries is arbitrary and unjust. It should be rescinded now.

"... next time you guys come up with the wrong figures, you're out on your ear ... all three of you! ..."

Why Should Confidence Exist?

OTTAWA — The complex difficulties the world economy is going through in working its way out of the inflation-recession — if, indeed, that is what is happening — are demonstrated by two recent events in Canada.

The latest unemployment figures, which came out last week and covered the situation up until Aug. 16, would be alarming if we had not by now become inured to such high levels of joblessness.

The other event which so graphically demonstrates our difficulties, which are not unique to us, was last week's rise in interest rates. The Bank of Canada moved toward more costly credit because it was felt that the money supply was growing too rapidly and carried with it the seeds of further inflation.

Spreading Consequences

No one could quarrel with efforts to keep the money supply under control these days since that is one of the essentials for an eventual escape from the inflation plaguing us. Yet it has become quite clear that interest rates at these levels are themselves highly inflationary and not even very effective at curbing the growth of credit.

By far the most predictable effect of the Bank of Canada move, which was followed rapidly by the commercial banks in raising their own already high lending rates, will be in the field of housing. As a consequence of the extreme cost of money there already exist in many parts of the country serious shortages of rental housing. Home-building, which ought to be a mainstay of the economy, is far below the levels the government would prefer.

The consequences of a low level of activity in the housing market inevitably spread out. All of the industries which manufacture the equipment necessary to make a house or flat livable are effected adversely, from the furnace-makers to companies which manufacture washing machines and stoves. It was in this precise area that the Conference Board in Canada found in its latest survey of consumer confidence a continuing hesitation by people to commit themselves to major purchases. The board, in effect, found consumers poised, more confident about the future than they had been a few months ago but still not quite ready to plunge into new major purchases.

Simultaneously, the effect of extremely high rates of interest is reduced as people everywhere adopt a "life-must-go-on" attitude, grit their teeth and pay levels that only a few years ago would have appalled them. At that stage it has ceased to be a useful tool in controlling the economy and has become primarily a fresh source of inflation, as direct an additional cost in the economy as excessive wage settlements.

While consumer confidence in the economy may be slowly recovering it seems to me that there is not much reason why ordinary people would have a high level of confidence in either the political system or some of our institutions. The Bank of Canada, for instance, has not had an inspiring record over the last half dozen years and it is really a bit far-fetched to expect ordinary people trying to make their way in the world to have confidence in the almost anonymous men who run it. Their politics have not inspired confidence. They are as gray, drab and remote as any commissar in Moscow.

Looking at the political process, the ordinary man must feel that he sees uncertainty and hesitation, a government reacting haphazardly to events rather than leading. At the saue time it must be evident to him that freeloading by men in government has attained banana republic levels, when out of perverse defiance the taxpayer and not the political parties are forced to pay the bills for purely political travels.

The most costly security measures are adopted for the most ego-stroking reasons.

In this sort of atmosphere, where no attempt is made to build confidence, why would the ordinary man believe that public affairs were under sound control? He is far more likely to ask himself whether the men at the Bank of Canada have any idea what they are doing, then look at the unemployment figures and conclude that they do not much care.

Banana Republic

Some of the difficulties are inevitable. The world has been through an economic trauma, part sheer binge, part the strains of the quadrupling of oil prices. At the end of a deep recession, when rapid stimulation of the economy is essential but impossibly dangerous, unemployment will be a long time subsiding. The total supply of money and credit must be kept under control or the near future will bring us back to the worst problems of the last two or three years.

We delude ourselves, however, if we pretend that all of this, the culmination of political climate and economic complexities, is not placing grave strains on the social fabric of the nation. Some of the conduct it is bringing in its train is insane, from police harassment of a public upon whose co-operation it must later depend for effectiveness, to the extreme political cynicism of the Ontario election campaign and the federal government's abdication of any role in forming public opinion on such a socially profound issue as hanging. Why would confidence exist today? Who seeks to build it?

Wires Across the Border

Whenever Canadian and American politicians get together it is almost obligatory to refer to "the longest undefended border in the world" stretching almost 4,000 miles across the continent. It makes for good speeches filled with international bonhomie but it is a myth on a continent increasingly security conscious.

Now in a wires-across-the-border manner, U.S. and Canadian authorities plan to install electronic sensors along a 450-mile stretch of the 49th parallel in Eastern Canada. There will even be a few installed at the western end of the continental parallel near Blaine, Washington. The reason: a vague rationale about catching illegal immigrants, perhaps terrorists, who would disrupt the Montreal Olympics or the U.S. bicentennial celebrations. Nothing could be sillier. If anyone is going to disrupt bicentennial celebrations in the U.S. it will be native Americans of a radical bent. Terrorists intent on commiting mayhem at the Olympics will not necessarily come from the U.S. And if they did, they will certainly pick some isolated veldt dividing North Dakota and Saskatchewan rather than the much publicized sensor locales.

There is nothing intrinsically wrong with such security measures if a proven need existed. But when one's own national borders take on the trappings of the former demilitarized zone of Vietnam it produces anxious feelings. What the Americans do on their side of the border is their own business. But when Canada cooperates in the placement of electronic sensors on the frontier it makes us nervous about the paranoia operating in Ottawa minds. If the Trudeau administration showed such sensitive antennae when it came to detecting our national economic control going south it would be understandable. Instead, we get an electronic version of the Keystone cops. Of course, that's show business.

Now It's Rube Goldberg's Turn

When it comes theorizing, analyzing and studying the provincial government is unsurpassed. Resources Minister Bob Williams has enthusiastically endorsed a harbor design contest sponsored by the Victoria branch of the Community Planning Association of Canada. If anything this latest gambit should win a prize for the redundancy of the year.

Nearly a year and a half ago the provincial government put a freeze on the Reid property site. Through a series of deals the Barrett administration now controls most of the harbor land. The only thing to appear so far is a provincially-owned sandwich shop which city council and most of the citizenry feel Victoria could do without. Williams reassures an impatient public by saying Inner Harbor development is not something we want to rush into. Who's rushing?

Participatory democracy is one thing but interminable delay is another. Perhaps there is some unsung planner out there who will submit a brilliant design that will please everybody. More than likely the planning association will be deluged with Rube Goldberg ideas that will only waste more time. In this case no one can blame Mayor Peter Pollen and his long-suffering council if they refuse to put up any money for this harum-scarum scheme. The government restaurant will now be joined by a temporary "ideas centre" on the harbor. Staff will be in attendance to discuss residents' ideas and suggestions. When the contest is closed 60 days after it begins, another committee will have to sift through the ideas, submit the inevitable report and the government will sleep on it. No wonder Mayor Pollen wants to get out of politics.

Cornerstones Queried

It is interesting to read in Saturday's paper that the dean of the Anglican cathedral has discarded hymn-books that play down the virgin birth, which he declares one of the cornerstones of Christianity.

If this is so, it seems curious that this doctrine should only be mentioned in two of the four gospels, Matthew and Luke, and that the former should also contain an elaborate tracing of Jesus' ancestry down from Abraham through Joseph. Jesus himself never mentioned it, nor did St. Paul, author of the earliest parts of the New Testament.

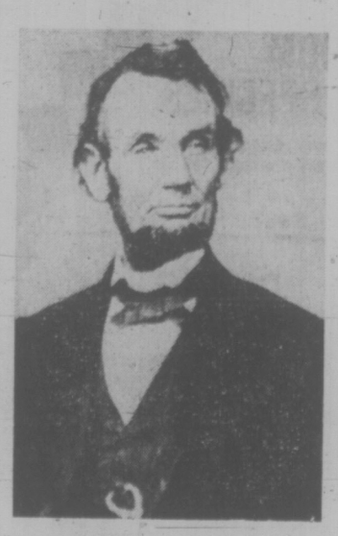
The dean is also faced with the embarrassing fact that many figures of antiquity were reported to have had miraculous modes of birth or death. All these cases, of course, the dean considers mere legends.

Most Anglican luminaries, if not those of the hallelujah churches, at some time in their lives have mixed with civilized and educated people. It seems sad that they should have so neglected their opportunities. — Derek Pethick, 5420 Alderley Road.

Lincoln Cited

Richard Needham's article appearing in the Times of Sept. 8 was excellent and the sooner we start to move in the direction he suggests the better it will be for us all. His article makes us think that he, and hopefully many others, might agree with Abraham Lincoln who over 100 years ago wrote the following ten commandments for government, industry, business, labor and societies in general:

1. You cannot bring about prosperity by discouraging thrift.
2. You cannot strengthen the weak by weakening the strong.
3. You cannot help the small man by pulling down the big man.
4. You cannot help the wage earner by pulling down the wage payer.
5. You cannot help the poor by destroying the rich.
7. You cannot establish sound security on borrowed money.
8. You cannot keep out of trouble by spending more than you earn.



ABRAHAM LINCOLN
. . . rules for our time?

9. You cannot build character and courage by taking away man's initiative and independence.
10. You cannot help men permanently by doing for them what they could and should do for themselves.

Still all very relevant and practical in today's society which has strayed far from these principles. Think about it! — William W. Baldwin, 806-250 Douglas St.

Close Alliance

It appears Phyllis Young, B.C. minister of consumer services, isn't answering Mrs. Plumptre's concern for the B.C. and Canadian consumer at all.

True, we are able to get the groceries we need but when the excessive salary demands by unions are met it will be the consumer who will pay higher food prices. Increases are passed on to Mr. Average Consumer—who else?

According to Ms. Young the culprit in continuing rising prices isn't with unrealistic union demands. That is not the way the consumer sees the problem.

Union Should Pay

During the past week or two there has been much comment in the news regarding the payment of welfare to persons involved in a labor dispute.

Your editorial of Sept. 13 indicates that you are all in favor of such a practice. You further indicate the province does not have much choice in the matter because of the position taken by the federal government.

I am in full agreement that persons on strike should not be allowed to starve. I disagree completely with the method used to keep them eating. In my opinion no one on strike is entitled to receive money from the public purse. No matter how thin you slice it, payment of welfare helps conserve union funds. Conservation of union funds helps prolong the dispute.

In my opinion, the union should have the sole responsibility of seeing that striking members don't go hungry. Payment of strike allowances or picket pay isn't anywhere near enough. The union should be made to pay whatever amount the individual would be entitled to via welfare. As a precaution the payments should originate with the welfare department who in turn would recover from the union. — C. McCreath, Edgewater Terrace, R.R. 2, Cobble Hill, B.C.

Confused Law

In the Sept. 15 Times, Back from Death Row To Responsible Life, author Paul King presents it as a clear case of the value of commutation. Instead, it is a clear case of the confusion in our criminal justice.

Jim Carey got his reprieve solely on his word that Joe Gordon killed policeman Gordon Sinclair. That can't be proved.

Note these words of his: "Pretty soon I had told her everything. She (Simma Holt) started a campaign to save me from hanging." And this: "I was ready for it. I had waited on death row . . . for a year until that night." He doesn't sound like an innocent man who would fight from the instant of capture to prove his innocence. The law took his word.

Any fair person will agree that commutation is valid in a doubtful case like this, but not when the criminal is caught red-handed. Then we're asking for mob rule. — R. G. Milton, Hamilton, Ont.

Government Apathy

I, an ordinary citizen with concern for my environment, wish to voice my dismay at the apathy of our government leaders regarding Derrick Mallard's proposal re municipal waste retrieval and sewage composting. Mr. Mallard is offering to explore and present to local governments alternatives to present systems of waste disposal. He hopes thereby to improve the bureaucratic and public attitude and interest in the whole area of waste disposal and its many possibilities, both economic and aesthetic.

I would like to quote from the keynote speech given by Russell E. Train, administrator of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, at the fifth annual composting and recycling conference held in Washington, D.C., in April:

"All of us, whatever our role in society, must assume the reponsibility of supporting constructive change. The benefits of waste utilization must be widely broadcast. Experiments need to be carried out, and good practices need to be demonstrated for all to see."

It is heartening to hear such statements from a high official of the American government — but where is our leadership coming from in the province of B.C.? We seem to be two or three decades behind many parts of the world. Our capital city of Victoria, world-renowned for its parks and private gardens, should be out in front, setting an example to the rest of the country, but instead dumps its valuable sewage into the convenient ocean, and its compostable wastes into landfill areas!

B.C. has vast areas of marginal lands which could be improved to greater fertility by the application of properly prepared wastes.

I sincerely hope that Mr. Mallard finds support for this study "some way or other" for it has valuable possibilities both economically and environmentally. — Mrs. Edith Gardner, 11145 Heather Road.

Bill 22 Foes Getting Wild

By DOMINIQUE CLIFT
Montreal Star

It is difficult to pinpoint exactly what is wrong with the campaign currently being waged by George Springate and John Robertson against Bill 22. Their radio marathon and their blitz to obtain a million signatures have come to symbolize English-language opposition to the government's language legislation, almost smothering any less sensational point of view.

The most disturbing aspect about the whole campaign is its all-or-nothing approach which in many ways is reminiscent of the contents of the legal challenge launched by some members of the Quebec Association of Protestant School Boards. The spirit is one of win all or lose all which excludes any possibility of accommodation and which at the same time contains a high element of political risk. Many people are having silent second thoughts about this way of attacking the legislation which does contain some oppressive aspects and which in its application can sometimes be highly discriminatory.

The tone with which the whole subject of language is approached is excessive and intemperate. Understandably enough, it is difficult to achieve a sense of balance and to bring out fine distinctions in the course of what is essentially a media event. Springate and Robertson are carried forward by their own momentum. They have lost control over their own campaign with the result that it is assuming the proportions of an English-French confrontation rather than an attempt to induce the government to modify certain clauses and regulations in the language legislation.

The basic question that must be answered is whether the Springate-Robertson campaign has any chance of success. Its stated purpose may not be quite compatible with the tone which is being employed. The release of feelings of anger and frustration may not be the best way of reaching predetermined objectives.

The brutal facts in Quebec are that a majority of French-speaking people support Bill 22 and that a sizable minority believes that it does not go far enough. Those who may feel that the legislation abrogates individual rights will not protest strongly unless their own personal interests are at stake. Another fact of life in Quebec is that the social and economic expansion of the French language is irreversible. In Quebec as in most other countries power is increasingly vested in political majorities which often tend to be tyrannical in their approach to minority problems.

It is in this stark context that opposition to the government's language legislation must be conducted. A campaign based on an understanding of the aims of the political majority in Quebec has a much greater chance of success than one which relies too heavily on display of emotions: The strong presentation of minority interests and the invocation of the rule of law can be successful only as long as they do not challenge too directly the political aims of the majority.

The ultimate success of the Springate-Robertson campaign must ultimately be measured by the impact which it has on the French-speaking voters who ejected the Bourassa government. It is, after all, their rights which will largely determine the future course of the government on this particular issue. The premier and the cabinet may be quite willing to bring about certain modifications in the application of Bill 22, but they can only do so if these changes are acceptable to the majority of the voters.

In this light the campaign has had rather negative results. French opinion on the language issue has tended to become hard and unyielding. The area of compromise which could have been explored is becoming smaller and smaller as time goes on. The only change that now seems politically possible is that the quotas imposed on registrations in English-language schools will be applied on an island-wide basis rather than through each individual school board. But even such a minor change is not all that certain in the present climate. Leading Liberals are now testing the ground and they are not getting a very positive response.

The campaign has also been having other unfortunate results. The petition whose target is one million names against Bill 22, has been circulating in many places. There has been canvassing from door to door, on the street and in stores and other public places. However, the petition has also been circulating in many plants and offices where management personnel have given both their signatures and their blessing.

French newspapers in Montreal are now full of stories about the way French-speaking employees in many firms have been subjected to intense moral pressure to endorse the campaign against Bill 22. The immediate result is a hardening of French attitudes on language, and the creation of tensions in plants and offices where francization programs are under way.

Most French-speaking people can easily dismiss the verbal excesses that have taken place on CFCF radio, but they find it extremely difficult to accept personally directed pressures that involve their social and economic interests. Even if it is accidental, this is possibly the worst aspect of the Springate-Robertson campaign.

The school rights protest has taken a wrong turn as its results seem to be going against its original objective. One may attribute courage to Springate and to Robertson, but it is a misguided courage that in the end will fail to produce the sort of compromises on which the city's future depends so much. And it is this criterion that must be applied to the campaign.

CBC's Man in North Lets It All Hang Out

By ALLAN FOTHERINGHAM
The Sun

JEAN MARIE RIVER, N.W.T. — If you wish to understand the tensions of the North, you have to understand about Whit Fraser.

Whit Fraser is the CBC reporter in Yellowknife charged with covering the unknown portion of Canada north of the 60th parallel. He is a Nova Scotian who wears cowboy boots, his silver belt buckle is slung low on his hips and his deep CBC radio voice is matched by deep brown eyes. He has been in the Territories nearly 10 years, tested the Maritimes on a re-entry probe but couldn't stand it and rushed back to the bleak rocks of Yellowknife. He has spent some time in the RCAF, which would place him at perhaps 45.

The point is that Whit Fraser has created a minor sensation in the North for the method by which he is covering the Berger commission hearings on the Mackenzie Valley pipeline proposal. He has been covering it for six months, day in and day out, by reporting to the native people of the North in their own languages, with their own reporters.

Every day in cramped schoolrooms or rough halls or grassy river banks, as the staff of Mr. Justice Thomas R. Berger sets up hearings for the native people, Whit Fraser and his small band of reporters are there all set with their tapes and mixers and notebooks. They wear rough red vests, trimmed in blue and decorated with pictures of polar animals.

There is Abe Okpik, a droll Eskimo with a crewcut, a vast belly and one gimpy leg. Joe Tobie is a calm, unruffled man, a Metis with a dignified serene face. Louis Blondin is a native Indian with crippled legs who manouevres his crutches in and out of float planes, trucks, ferries and all the rough styles of transportation that the whole Berger cavalcade endures. Jim Edwards is missing temporarily at the moment, victim of a heart attack that may have something to do with the fact he is 78, an energetic former minister of the cloth who doubles as square dance caller when he's not reporting.

Every night, sharp at 7:00, the CBC service in the North carries a full hour of the day's Berger proceedings. Fraser leads off for 15 minutes with his summary of the day's events. Then Abe Okpik broadcasts in Eskimo. Joe Tobie gives his impressions in Dogrib and Chipewyan. Louis Blondin does his bit in Hareskin and Slavey. When Jim Edwards is about, he handles the Louchaux dialect.

Now there are so many documented horror stories of the incompetence of the Holy Mother Corporation that a certified success must be noted, marked and celebrated. Until the Berger hearings, there was essentially no CBC native language reporting to the native people of the north. Now, the North will never be the same. There is no way, even if the Berger commission were ended tomorrow, that there could be a retreat from the precedent established by Whit Fraser's adaptable crew.

It would shock the master disciples of Parkinson's Law huddled in the bar of the Four Seasons in Toronto, but Fraser operates without a producer. No script assistants mincing about. Just bare bones broadcasting, getting the job done, providing information in the languages the listeners can understand. In the isolated communities of the North, where radio is the only link, the CBC's imaginative handling of the Berger hearings has done a lot to tie the Territories together.

We now come to the problem. It is several weeks ago and the Berger commission arranges a sitting in Norman Wells. This is an oil-and-gas-created town further north along the Mackenzie. The mental set of the town toward the desirability of the pipeline is well-established.

During the sitting, things got rather rough, especially in the comments of some of the whites as to the drunkenness and general uselessness of the Indians they knew. As the barrage of insults persisted, an unusual thing happened. Whit Fraser stood up from his broadcasters table. He walked to the front and asked to be sworn in.

After taking his hand off the Bible, he unburdened himself of a small speech. He couldn't stand it any more. He explained that he too was a citizen of the North. That he happened to employ native people and could testify as to their competence and skills. That he thought the concept this country was governed on was something called democracy, and since the native people outnumber the whites 2-1 in the Territories, their views had to be respected. If they don't want the pipeline, said Whit Fraser, then that is their business.

Whit Fraser then went and sat down. The N.W.T., since that moment, seemingly has been on its feet and shouting. The sacrilege of him speaking up and defending his employees (and, by inference, their ancestry) has enraged hundreds of normally sane inhabitants.

There were demands that Fraser be fired by the CBC, be transferred, be publicly rebuked. The village council of Fort Simpson made it clear last week that Fraser would not be welcome in town for the Berger hearings. (He came anyway.) The local papers are awash with vituperation.

The bitterness directed against Fraser is interesting. There was no outcry when his staff — Okpik and Tobie and Blondin and so on — made personal statements when the Berger commission reached their own villages. The cry of revenge came only at Fraser. The others were natives. Their conduct could be "expected." But Fraser, a white man, could not be forgiven. He had betrayed his kind. People spit out his name.

The CBC? "They told me," says Fraser, "that they wished I hadn't done it. And that — naturally — I was not to do it again. They regret the whole thing ever happened. But I think they realize that reporters are people too."

U.S. Looks to Others in Aid Plan

By LEONARD SILK
New York Times

On June 5, 1947, in a commencement address at Harvard University, U.S. Secretary of State George C. Marshall presented a comprehensive plan for the economic recovery of the war-ravaged European nations.

This month, in an address delivered on behalf of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger at the United Nations General Assembly, a blueprint was laid out for relieving the economic distress of the world's "developing nations" — that is, the poor countries, of which there are over 100.

The differences in the proposals of the two American secretaries of state, a generation apart, are a measure of the changes that have taken place in the U.S. role in the world economy.

The Marshall Plan would be entirely financed by the U.S.; President Harry Truman would have to persuade Congress to appropriate billions to rebuild the international economy and to "contain Communism." But the Kissinger plan is carefully designed so that President Ford will not have to ask Congress to appropriate new funds; rather it would internationalize the costs of aiding the poor countries.

The Marshall Plan was conceived at a time when the U.S. was the economic powerhouse of the world and America was charged up with a sense of its world mission. But the Kissinger plan has been born in a time of stagflation and unemployment, and in a post-Vietnam atmosphere redolent with neo-isolationism.

Despite such barriers to a "new Marshall Plan," Kissinger felt the need of a more

MARSHALL

. . . generosity hedged by realism

forthcoming response to the problems of the developing world than the U.S. had yet made. The poor countries may have little power in their own right, but as events since the 1973 Arab-Israeli war and the emergence of the economic and political power of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) have demonstrated; the developing countries have considerable potential for troublemaking — as allies of OPEC in international forums, as imitators of OPEC in international trade, as nationalizers of the property of U.S. multi-national corporations and as traducers of the U.S. image (and self-image) of a decent, generous and moral force in the world.

Kissinger has always sought to maintain or regain his standing in the liberal and intellectual community from which he came.

But how can the U.S. fulfill these liberal ideals, without spending a lot more money? In a nutshell, by drawing on the International Monetary Fund's own stock of money and gold, which amounts to more than $49 billion and by selling gold in the open market and increasing the borrowing of the Fund and the World Bank.

In addition, to stabilize the annual income of the poor countries, dependent on a limited range of commodity exports, Kissinger proposes setting up "producer-consumer forums" for "every key commodity," together with buffer stocks of certain commodities to prevent huge swings in their prices.

Specifically he proposed that reserves of world grains be built up to at least 30 million tons of wheat and rice, of which the U.S. would hold a major share. This would obviously not be without cost to the U.S., but politically it could be presented as not primarily foreign aid but as a program to benefit U.S. farmers and consumers. At the same time it could be hitched to a program for exporting surplus foodstuffs to poor countries, and would doubtless muster powerful farm-bloc support.

U.S. generosity to the poor countries cannot be provided entirely by tricks with mirrors; the U.S. must come through with its past and future pledges to the International Development Association, the World Bank's soft-loan agency for poor countries.

Yet, the foreign aid in the Kissinger plan is not an end in itself but a means to an end. The U.S. and the poor countries, too, have come to recognize that gifts of aid are hard to squeeze out of Congress and other national parliaments. For their part, the poor are unwilling to hold out beggar's bowls.

The real task ahead is to loosen up world channels of trade and investment, both public and private.

For that to happen, goodwill needs to be rebuilt between rich and poor. The Kissinger plan should be seen as a means of regaining goodwill and trust in order to get at the real objective — a more open, integrated and developing world economy.

The Kissinger plan could be a constructive means of bringing the U.S. and other industrial nations back into a more co-operative relationship with the developing world.

As the U.S. cannot, in an increasingly interdependent world, retreat into isolationism, neither can it present a spirit of self-abnegation that does not meet the threats to U.S. interests abroad or the political and economic pressures upon government policy at home.

If the Kissinger plan lacks the heroic generosity of the Marshall Plan, it has the merit of realism, and it encourages a spirit of international co-operativeness on which its ultimate success or failure will depend.

JAWS OPENS UP CAN OF HORRORS

By CHARLES FOLEY

HOLLYWOOD — Now that "Jaws", the story of a man-, woman- and child-eating shark, has out-grossed 'Godfather 1' to become the biggest box-office success in American cinema history, film producers are in frantic competition to bring out a follow-up.

Costing a mere million to make, the gory tale of a 24-ft. white shark's eating habits has already taken in more than $150 million in the United States and Canada alone.

It will almost certainly reach the top of the list of all-time money-makers when it is released abroad later this year.

In its wake comes a torrent of equally horrific films. Already out is "Bug", in which radioactive cockroaches, set free by an earthquake in California, set fire to everything in range, including hair-dos of suburban housewives.

Next comes "Alligator", from United Artists, concerning a 100-year-old giant reptilian in the Florida Everglades which swallows numerous infants before it is eventually overcome, in a hand-to-jaw encounter, by a Vietnam veteran.

In "Piranha", which starts production next month, two boys dump a tankful of tiny carnivorous fish into a Los Angeles reservoir, from which they invade a Beverly Hills swimming pool.

According to the Wall Street Journal's privileged glimpse of the scenario, a man is immersed in a whirlpool bath with his girl. The pool fills with blood as the girl screams. Then their heads go under and bubbles come to the top. The script-writer got the idea while dining in a seafood restaurant.

Scripts which are 'hot numbers' in agents' offices are said to include: —'Paws', about a pack of dogs that terrorise a town, 'Claws', which has a maddened grizzly bear tearing open caravans in a State park and devouring the inhabitants, and 'Gnaws', about an 800-lb. beaver which eats Seattle.

Inevitably, plans are also under way for 'Jaws II'.

Japan Hits Auto Sales Ceiling

WASHINGTON POST

YOKOHAMA — Made in Japan for an American buyer, the newly minted automobile rocked through a production-line speed test and rolled away to the wharves. Within days, it will be stowed in one of the special ships which freight Japanese cars across the Pacific by the thousand. In two months, it will be one more foreign car on the depressed North American market.

"We call those ships The Invincible Armada," said the public relations man. "It's a joke," he added anxiously. The Japanese challenge is no joke to laid-off Detroit auto workers or to Rep. John Dent (Dem.-Penn.) who recently registered a dumping charge with the U.S. Treasury Department.

Last year, the 11 Japanese automobile manufacturers exported a record setting two-and-a-half million vehicles (cars, trucks and buses) to more than 120 countries. There were some curiosities: Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia and Romania imported a single car or bus apiece. And there were some surprises: 247,000 vehicles to Australia with a population of only 13 million, and 65,000 to oil-wealthy Saudi Arabia.

But the United States, with a total importation of 999,557 vehicles, was the most important single market for Japan's auto makers. Since 1964 when they jointly exported only 17,000 vehicles to the U.S., the Japanese manufacturers have expanded their hold on the American market by 5,800 per cent.

The Japanese have expanded their share of the U.S. import market to 49 per cent, up to 6 per cent from 1974 levels.

Japanese pressure on the American auto market is likely to increase in the next few years, according to experts here. The reason? The auto industry, which has been the standard-bearer in Japan's phenomenal post-war growth, has thumped into a sales ceiling. After sustaining a lusty 15 to 16 per cent annual production growth for 10 years, overall sales dropped by half a million in 1974 due to the oil crisis and world-wide recession.

With the prospect of low or zero sales growth within Japan stretching into the mid-1980s, the Japanese see no alternative to further exploitation and expansion of their export markets.

A study of the industry's prospects by MITI (the Ministry of International Trade and Industry) projects that, by 1985, Japanese exports will have risen from the current level of approximately 2.5 million a year to 4.3 million.

Chairman of the Nissan Co., — largest Japanese exporter to the U.S. — recently stated a firm intention to keep on trucking. After increasing its U.S. exports by an aggressive 38 per cent in the first seven months of 1975, Nissan's chairman Katsuji Kawamata said, "It's our business to sell Datsuns, so we don't want a status quo. We want to expand our exports to the United States."

Specially hard hit during the current recession has been Toyo Kogyo, the Hiroshima-based manufacturer of the rotary-engine Mazda. Unsold stockpiles of cars forced the company to cut back production and send assembly line workers out to the showrooms to boost the sagging sales graphs.

Some observers believe the economic strain could endanger the "mutual understanding" between manufacturers and unions which has been a basic strength of the auto industry here. "We expect more strain in the future," a Toyota spokesman admitted.

After years of relentless growth, Japan is now almost musclebound with cars. Road construction has lagged and, with the 27 million vehicles now registered, traffic jams are notorious and constant. While the ownership ratio in Japan of 7 to 8 people per car is far lower than the U.S., the traffic density is twice that of the United States.

Mounting concern over the environmental impact of cars — air and noise pollution principally — also is an increasing obstacle to the auto industry's expansion.

The MITI study envisaged a growth in domestic registrations from 26 to 36 million by 1985, but that may be optimistic a senior official agreed. "Some people say we have already reached the saturation point. Pollution and traffic controls and higher taxes will discourage car ownership," he said. "These social, non-economic factors will play a big role in the future of the auto industry."

With a demonstrated ability for excellent design, management and marketing skills, the Japanese remain confident of their ability to compete in export markets. They worry more about growing resistance in recipient countries — exemplified by the current dumping hearings in Washington.

If troubles lie ahead, a recent visit to the engine room of one of Nissan's assembly plants outside Yokohama gave no sign of it. A uniformed and disciplined work force of 7,500 men are turning out 53,000 cars in a month in a model of computerized mass-production efficiency. One exhortatory sign hung in the factory read: "The world is waiting for Datsuns."

MORE ADVERTISING FORECAST

Canadian Press

Communications stocks will become attractive when the economy recovers, says Babson's Canadian Reports Ltd. of Toronto.

With the exception of cable television, which relies primarily on subscription charges, earnings of the communications industry are largely dependent on advertising, says Babson's. Industry may expect higher profits because corporations will likely increase promotional spending as the economy improves.

In a recent review of the communications industry, Babson's said investment in newspaper stocks is particularly attractive because newspapers derive about 75 per cent of revenues from advertising. Increases in the price of newsprint in recent years were being offset by the use of automated equipment.

"Dailies in major cities are expected to benefit from the revival in national advertising as the economy recovers and the continuing trend to increased population in urban centres."

Since broadcasters are limited by law as to the amount of time devoted to commercials, that industry's growth depends on increased audience and higher rates.

The company says advertisers are willing to pay higher rates for television commercials because of the visual impact. The radio industry must rely more heavily on local advertising.

Between 1970 and 1974, earnings of the cable television industry rose at an annual rate of 25 per cent and the rise in the number of household suggests further gains in the rate of subscriber growth.

RoyMarine Leasing Notes Over-Subscribing

LONDON (CP) — RoyMarine Leasing Ltd., jointly owned by Royal Bank of Canada and Marine Midland Bank, has announced terms of a five-year notes issue. The $30-million issue, to be listed on the Luxembourg stock exchange, carries a principal price of 100 per cent and a coupon interest rate of 9.5 per cent. Officials said the issue had been raised to $30 million from $25 million because of substantial over-subscription.

CONTRACT AWARDED

TORONTO (CP) — Murihead Systems of Canada has received a contract worth about $200,000 from the federal government to supply its MS-800 radar remote monitoring system to weather bureaus in Ottawa, London, Quebec, Vancouver and St. John's, Nfld. Using a television screen and a facsimile unit, the system provides a print-out and a picture of the weather.

No Bribes Given Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Lockheed Aircraft Corp. issued a statement Thursday saying that no commissions were or will be paid in connection with its bid to sell Canada a long-range patrol aircraft (LRPA).

The statement from the company, which has admitted paying kickbacks to nationals of several countries to help the sale of its aircraft, said Chairman Daniel J. Haughton gave the assurance to "principal cabinet ministers" in a Sept. 15 letter.

It did not identify the cabinet ministers nor give the contents of the letter.

The statement added: "Mr. Haughton also said that Lockheed was prepared to certify to this fact as a provision of an LRPA contract.

"Mr. Haughton's letter followed a recent Senate hearing in Washington after which a member of the Canadian press asked him 'whether commissions had been paid in seeking to sell the four-engined Lockheed Orion to Canada'," the statement said.

The statement made no mention of sales of Lockheed TriStars to Air Canada. Air Canada has said there were no kickbacks.

The chairman appeared before a U.S. Senate subcommittee last Friday to answer questions about commissions the company said it has paid in Saudi Arabia, Indonesia, Iran and the Philippines.

Lockheed and the Boeing Corp. are competing to sell Canada LRPAs. The Lockheed bid is in excess of $700,000. Decision on the successful bidder is due later this year.

Haughton had few answers for reporters when they questioned him after the Senate hearing.

Courts Plan To Review Gandhi Trial

NEW DELHI (AP) — The Indian Supreme Court decided today to review Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's conviction for illegal campaign practices, a move she had tried to prevent with a constitutional amendment nullifying the lower court's action against her.

After hearing four weeks of arguments on the validity of the amendment, a five-judge board headed by Chief Justice A. N. Ray said it would delay its ruling on the constitutional issue while it considered the merits of Mrs. Gandhi's earlier appeal against her conviction.

Vancouver Prices Show Lowest Jump

OTTAWA (CP) — Residents of St. John's, Nfld., faced the sharpest jump in the cost of living in August as measured by a 2.6-per-cent rise in the consumer price index, Statistics Canada reported Thursday.

The best price performance was recorded in Vancouver and Toronto, where the index rose seven-tenths of one per cent from July.

(Victoria's prices are considered equal to or slightly higher than Vancouver's).

The largest rise in prices over the previous year was in Saint John, N.B., where the index rose 13.3 per cent from August, 1974. The lowest 12-month increase was 9.6 per cent in Ottawa.

The agency's 14-city survey measures price changes within the cities, but does not show where prices are the highest or lowest.

On a national basis, the August index was up one per cent from July while the 12-month rise was 11.1 per cent. The national figures, released last week, attributed the August increase mainly to higher prices for food, shelter and transportation.

Food prices, particularly for pork, eggs, sugar and restaurant meals, were up in all of the cities surveyed.

Various charges for housing also were up in all cities, including higher household insurance costs in most areas.

Fuel prices rose in most cities due to the rise in domestic crude oil prices, although Ontario and Manitoba have forsetalled retail increases by freezing fuel prices and British Columbia and Nova Scotia delayed the retail increases.

The agency also singled out higher automobile insurance premiums as a factor in all the cities except those in B.C., Saskatchewan and Manitoba, where auto insurance is sold by government monopolies.

The 12-month index rise in St. John's was 12.9 per cent. In Vancouver, prices were up 10.8 per cent from August, 1974, and there was a 10.9-per-cent rise in Toronto.

The August rise in Saint John was 2.2 per cent and the monthly rise in Ottawa was one per cent.

The August rise in other cities: Quebec City, 1.8 per cent; Calgary, 1.5 per cent; Halifax and Edmonton, 1.4 per cent; Montreal, 1.2 per cent; Regina and Winnipeg, 1.1 per cent; Saskatoon, Sask., and Thunder Bay, Ont., one per cent.

The 12-month rise in other cities: Winnipeg, 13 per cent; Calgary 11.8 per cent; Edmonton, 11.6 per cent; Saskatoon, 11.4 per cent; Montreal, 11.3 per cent; Thunder Bay, 11 per cent; Quebec City and Regina, 10.6 per cent; Halifax, 10.4 per cent.

THIEF STYLE CONSISTANT

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — RCMP said Thursday a province-wide search is on for a man who has walked into more than 100 homes throughout Alberta during the last year and walked out with more than $12,000.

A police spokesman said it was believed the same man was responsible because of the similarity of his operation in each incident reported.

In each case, the man has walked into a house only if he has found a door unlocked between the hours of 2 a.m. and 5 a.m. He picks up wallets and purses and drops them outside after removing only the cash.

If anyone wakes, he shines a flashlight in their eyes, tells the person not to worry and leaves.

MDs Eye Patient Billing

CALGARY (CP) — The medical profession is facing the possibility of directly billing patients if the federal government goes ahead with changes in cost-sharing programs with the provinces, Dr. L. C. Grisdale, president of the Canadian Medical Association, said Thursday.

Speaking to the Alberta Medical Association annual meeting, Dr. Grisdale said doctors face a drop in income from a federal move to allow a maximum increase in medical care payments of 8.5 per cent per year, beginning two and a half years from now.

"The effect of this, of course, is that in this time of inflation and great increases in costs, accompanied by rapidly advancing wages and salaries — currently averaging about 15 per cent per year — we would be foreced to live with a gross increase of about 8.5 per cent, which, when we know that our overhead would increase at what ever the inflation increase is at that time, means that our net incomes will decrease," he said.

A decrease in doctors' incomes will mean a reduced quality of health care for Canadians because doctors are not going to be able to buy new equipment and will be trying to see more patients in less time, he said.

Doctors, he said, cannot accept an annual maximum increase of 8.5 per cent without becoming one of the poorest professions and some provinces will be unable to pay increased costs over 8.5 per cent.

"So if the program goes ahead and we can't live with it and our provincial governments can't carry the cost the only thing we can do, in the long term is to charge our patients in some manner.

"To bill our patients will be difficult, but it could be that it will be essential if a good quality medical care program is to survive in Canada."

Alberta Doctors Seek Fee Increase

CALGARY (CP) — Alberta's 2,500 doctors are seeking an increase in their fees paid by the province.

President-elect of the Alberta Medical Association, Dr. Bryce Weir, said Thursday at the AMA's annual meeting that the current contract with the province, which expires Dec. 30, gave doctors a "glaringly unrealistic" increase of four per cent in the first year and four per cent in the second 15 months.

The profession negotiated for another seven per cent last March, after the province agreed inflation had eaten into the doctors' net income.

Dr. Weir said the net income of doctors in Alberta since 1970 when medical care insurance was introduced "has dropped in real dollars by about 35 per cent."

STRIKE VOTE SOUGHT

WINNIPEG (CP) — About 150 persons in the editorial and advertising departments of the Winnipeg Free Press voted Thursday to hold a strike vote if necessary Oct. 2 to back demands for a first contract with the company.

The employees, members of Local 233 of the Winnipeg Newspaper Guild, have been bargaining for 18 months after being certified more than two years ago.

The company's latest contract offer called for salary increases of 10 per cent this year, and seven per cent in 1976 and 1977.

Oil Tax Spending Debated

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta New Democratic Party called Thursday for a province-wide debate on the best way to spend the Lougheed government's heritage fund, a pool of surplus oil wealth calculated to grow to more than $9 billion in the next decade.

NDP leader Grant Notley said he is seeking the debate to combat what he fears will be "closed-door cabinet-decision making" on how to allocate the money.

He said the government has apparently decided to use the fund to "prop up" the corporate sector while it could be better applied "to serve human needs on a priority basis and to better the lives of the vast majority of working people."

The NDP leader unveiled a party position paper stating that under current policy, there is no profision for public debate before the government makes commitments from the fund.

The paper also notes that a proposed legislative committee to watch over the fund could only review commitments after the fact.

"It is for this reason the NDP has resolved to seek the support of Albertans in opposing any attempt to ram through a closed-door decision-making framework for the heritage fund during the 1975 fall sitting," said Notley.

The position paper calculates that the fund, which will contain about $1.5 billion next year, will grow to $9 billion in 10 years and could reach $15 billion if the money is invested solely to reap the highest interest return.

Ransom Offer by Parachute

PARIS (UPI) — A military plane today dropped a French government offer into the Sahara Desert to pay $2.2 million to rebel guerrillas to spare the life of a kidnapped woman archeologist.

On personal orders from President Valery Gisgard d'Estaing, France launched Operation Last Chance Thursday to save the 38-year-old scientist held hostage by Chadian rebels.

Rebel leader Hissen Habre, chief of Toubous tribesmen fighting the central government of Chad, has announced the guerrillas will murder Mrs. Claustre next Tuesday unless they receive at least $2 million.

Officials said the plane also parachuted a powerful radio transmitter to the rebels so they can tell French officials how the ransom should be delivered.

Paris made the rescue move despite a warning from the Chad government that it considered French negotiations with the rebels interference in the internal affairs of Chad, a former French colony.

Mrs. Claustre was captured by the rebels in April, 1974, while on an archeological mission. Her husband, Pierre, secretly joined her after the collapse of earlier negotiations for her release.

Her plight has so stirred France the government issued a rare announcement Thursday night asking citizens not to go to Tibesti because "their security cannot be assured."

Here's One Arab Nation That Hasn't Got Gas!

BEIRUT (WP) — Lebanon, in the throes of an intermittent civil war now in its sixth month, has become the first Arab country with a serious gasoline shortage.

Not only are Lebanese grumbling about their dubious distinction, one all too familiar to the West in the fall of 1973, they are also aware that their misfortune comes when the oil-producing nations have so much gasoline they cannot sell it all.

The cause of the problem has been the prolonged shooting between feuding Moslems and Christians, which has shut down the Tripoli refinery that normally produces 80 per cent of the country's gasoline.

The now week-long gas shortage has had some pleasant side effects. Pedestrians delight in the absence of the tooting horns and screeching tires that have made the Lebanese famous as one of the most aggressive species of automobile drivers in the Middle East — not a region known for its rigorous respect for traffic lights or speed limits.

But with so many weapons at large in such a small country, the authorities have called out the riot police to keep order in the relative handful of service stations receiving gas from the only operating refinery, located near the southern port of Sidon.

Although police were assigned to convoy some 40 tank trucks from that refinery, 12 were kept at Sidon, under threat of violence from otherwise unidentified "armed elements."

Two others somehow disappeared up side roads on their way to Beirut.

Beirut residents have blocked street traffic by parking three and four deep for hundreds of yards in front of gas stations, and fist fights have become a distraction for motorists condemned to waiting many hours — sometimes overnight — to buy gas.

One gas station offering superior service is near the Sabra Palestinian refugee camp on the Beirut outskirts, where armed commandos keep the motorists waiting in line for what some people suspect is purloined gas.

In any case, the service there contrasts with the scene at a station that the state radio announced was selling gas to journalists only.

Within minutes, literally hundreds of cars showed up with their drivers all claiming membership in a calling they normally tend to hold in contempt.

When journalists complained that they seemed to be the only ones not being served at the gas station, an information ministry official said: "What do you expect me to do, shoot people?"

Indeed, in one reported incident, an irate motorist — who had waited all day only to be told that no gas was left in the pumps — took out a submachine gun and sprayed a service station on the road to Damascus.

Miraculously, no casualties resulted.

Others harkened back to their heritage as descendnts of the traders of ancient Phoenicia and jacked up prices.

Gasoline, normally worth 61.6 cents a gallon, is selling for as much as $2.15 and motorists are lucky if they can buy five gallons.

Because of the shortage, communal taxis, a substitute for a nearly nonexistent public transportation system, have increased fares for Beirut runs from 16 cents to 91.

And the trip to the nearby mountains, a daily round-trip trek for many city residents during the still hot weather in this humid Mediterranean port, has shot up from 91 cents to $2.20.

Defence Team Slates Visit To Victoria

Twelve senior personnel attending the Royal College of Defence Studies in the United Kingdom will visit Victoria and Vancouver Sept. 21-24.

Headed by Lieut.-Gen. Sir Frank King of the British army, the group will include senior officers of the Royal Australian Air Force, Malaysian Army, Indian Navy, Royal Navy, Pakistan Air Force and British civil service.

The group is touring several North American cities. While in Victoria, it will tour the city, see the Provincial Museum, be addressed by Human Resources Minister Norm Levi and attend briefings of Maritime Forces Pacific.

Bodies Found

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (Reuter) — The bodies of a newly-married Huntsville, Ala., couple were found Monday on a glacier amid the wreckage of their twin-engine private plane, authorities said. Dr. Robert Smith and his wife Catherine were reported missing in stormy weather Sunday night on a flight to the United States from Scotland.

NO JOB TOO DIRTY . . .

TORONTO (CP) — Two lawyers involved in immigration work say federal officials are ignoring a flood of illegal immigrants to the Toronto area because many of them take jobs Canadians consider too dirty or menial.

Lawrene Kearley, supervisor of Parkdale Community Legal Services, said that "certain businesses would grind to a halt" if the immigrants were not available.

Mendel Green, another lawyer specializing in immigration cases, said Canadians are "obviously not prepared to work in conditions that are not neat and tidy." He estimated that as many as 100,000 persons are working illegally in Metropolitan Toronto.

PROPOSAL TICKLES TURNER

Former finance minister John Turner "just chuckled" when it was suggested he further his political career by tackling the leadership of the B.C. Liberal party.

Provincial party president Doreen Braverman said Thursday that although there was no official invitation to the former federal minister, "I mentioned it to him when I was in Ottawa, and he just chuckled."

Former Liberal leader David Anderson has suggested that Turner would be able to heal the wounds of the battered provincial party.

Braverman was in Victoria for a pre-convention meeting of the party's Southern Vancouver Island region membership and she pledged that all of Anderson's supporters will back the new leader, a post being sought only by Gordon Gibson, MLA for North Vancouver-Capilano.

Support "that perhaps we've never had before," will be given at the party's annual convention Sept. 26-28 in Vancouver.

She commended Anderson for averting a damaging "knock-em down battle" for the leadership.

Gibson is conducting a province-wide swing through constituencies prior to the leadership vote and will be in Victoria briefly Saturday to meet the southern Vancouver Island Liberal group at the home of new regional vice-president Frances Elford.

He in turn promised to concentrate most of his time on constituency matters and said he felt certain he would win the next election.

"I've never been so popular, especially among my enemies," he told the 50 supporters.

Public Funds Used Bennett Charges

ABBOTSFORD (CP) — Social Credit Leader Bill Bennett said Thursday that the New Democratic Party government is using public funds in an attemt to get itself re-elected.

Bennett said during a news conference that the NDP has spent $10 million on "all sores of propaganda."

He acknowledged that the former Social Credit government was often accused of spending money on advertising, but said the NDP has surpassed this by instituting propaganda services in Victoria.

Meanwhile an Imperial Oil Ltd. official said in Vancouver Thursday that is is no secret the company makes donations to some political parties, but that no money is given to individuals.

Barrett said Wednesday in Trail that Imperial was giving money to the Social Credit, Liberal and Conservative parties in an effort to oust the NDP government.

Clifford Goddard, Imperial's Pacific Region Manager, said that "it would be unreasonable to expect the company to support those political philosophies that would be detrimental to the company."

He agreed that company donations averaged $234,000 a year to federal and provincial parties but declined to give exact amounts of donations to particular parties.

"Donations in B.C. have been modest," said Goddard. Imperial's contributions have been made reluctantly . . . we would prefer that this support come from individuals."

Dr. Scott Wallace, Conservative party leader, said that he didn't "think anybody is giving us money — we're not in good financial position."

"What's so terrible about a private enterprise party getting money from the private sector?" he added.

Wallace, on a tour of the lower mainland, said the Liberal and Social Credit parties have been irresponsible in their criticism of the NDP.

He said Socred leader Bill Bennett is "unrealistically negative."

"I just don't see everything in black and white terms as they (Socreds and Liberals) do," he said.

"They're not showing responsibility in their criticsm. The NDP has done many things that are bad, but they've also accomplished many good things.

"They can't be doing everything wrong, as Bennett would have you believe."

He also criticized Bennett for recent comments that threats against Premier Barrett denied opposition claims of confrontation in the province for which the premier is responsible.

"It was an unfair comment. Those were not the words of a mature-thinking person."

In Creston, Thursday, Barrett denied oppositoon claims that private business is moving out of B.C. because of provincial government policies.

He said on an open line radio program that ever since th NDP took office, the party has been barraged with negative and bitter criticism of everything it has done.

The premiers said capital investment in B.C. is up eight per cent over last year.

Reservoir Dedication

A dedication ceremony marking completion of Brentwood's new two million gallon reservoir will be held Saturday at 2 p.m.

Former lieutenant-governor George Pearkes will officiate. The water valve will be opened by Central Saanich Mayor Jean Butler.

The Benvenuto Road reservoir will provide the expanding community with an adequate water supply during dry spells, Al. Vickers, chairman of the water board said.

It will be named after Vic Dawson who has served 25 years on the board.

ARMS DEAL ON?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The door may yet be open to a faltering $250 million deal which would send 14 batteries of sophisticated Hawk anti-aircraft missiles to Arab Jordan, according to the U.S. state department.

Jordan publicly rebuffed Congress and President Ford Thursday, saying King Hussein intended to cancel the order because of a U.S. demand that the missiles be mounted on stationary launchers and used only for defence.

"We certainly hope not," said state department spokesman Robert Funseth Thursday when asked whether the door was "entirely closed" on the controversial deal. "We are seeking further clarification."

Meanwhile Israel has begun pulling equipment out of frontline positions in the Sinai desert as the first step in implementing the new Middle East peace accord with Egypt.

Inquest Adjourned

An inquest into the deaths of Oak Bay residents Ian Cameron and Donald Goulson opened Thursday night and was adjourned to Nov. 20 at 7:30 p.m. in the Saanich courtroom.

Dr. Phillip Teals testified the two were pronounced dead on arrival at Victoria General Hospital about 4 a.m. following a car crash Tuesday at Douglas and Culduthel.

The more you know about whisky, The better for OFC 8-Year Old.

In between 2 and 12 years, at one point in aging, like everything else in life, Canadian whisky reaches "The Prime of Life": golden, mellow, smooth and full bodied.

In our opinion, 8 years old is "Prime."

That's why OFC 8-Year Old is 8 years old. And only 8 years old.

You can drink younger whisky or older whisky but you can't drink finer whisky than OFC 8-Year Old.

U.S. Response Chilly

SEATTLE (AP) — B.C. Premier Dave Barrett's call Wednesday for increased natural gas prices received a cold reception south of the Canadian border Thursday.

"Mr. Barrett apparently wants to drain all the blood from the goose that is laying golden eggs for British Columbia," said Wendell Satre, president of the Washington Water Power Co.

"The price of natural gas sold to an industrial customer in Texas has absolutely nothing to do with price of competitive energy supplies sold in the Pacific Northwest."

Ray Norwood, vice-president for public relations of Washinton natural gas doubted the National Energy Board would approve the prices sought by Barrett.

"It would be surprising to us if it went up to that level," he said. "The main point is, unlike the previous increases of 1973 and 1974, in which the province acted unilaterally on its own to raise the price, they no longer have that ability.

"They must go through the Canadian Energy Board."

Barrett told a public meeting he wants the price to go to $2.25 a thousand cubic feet by the end of 1976 from this year's high of $1.60 a thousand cubic feet.

Travel Covered

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canada Council will pay travelling expenses for authors of books published in Canada to promote their works, the council announced Thursday. It also said it would pay $125 per occasion for authors to give public readings of their works during publicity tours.

Want a home with our help?

Take this ad to your Builder or Lender.

Before you start, let's make one thing clear. This help applies to moderate-income families with at least one child. Family income cannot exceed a certain level, nor can we help you buy a home more expensive than a set maximum.

These income and house price maximums vary considerably, depending upon where you live in Canada. In Toronto, for example, the maximum family income for eligibility is as high as $20,000. Similarly, maximum house prices range up to $43,000 in high cost areas. To find out the maximums for your area, send in this coupon

So, for this assistance, you've got to have a family, earn an average income, and buy a new, reasonable-cost home. In those cities where costs are highest, these homes are likely to be town houses or condominiums.

How do we help you? In two ways.

First, we'll reduce your down payment to as little as 5% by insuring your loan with your bank, trust or insurance company, for up to 95% of house value.

Second, we'll subsidize your monthly mortgage payments up to a maximum of $100 a month, or $1,200 annually.

The aim of the subsidy is to ensure that you pay only about 25% of your family income on monthly mortgage payments.

Now, how do you take advantage of our help?

First, take this ad with you to your local builder. He will show you his choice of homes under the house-price maximum. Then, through him, apply for federal government assistance.

If, on the other hand, you want to build your own home, using National Housing Act standards, or hire your own builder to build it, then you'll go to a bank, trust or insurance company, or other lender to raise the mortgage money. Then, if you're eligible, apply for federal government assistance through your lender.

For further details about this and other programs of federal and provincial assistance in buying a home, contact your local C.M.H.C. Office or builders' association member.

Poisons Shopping List

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Portions of the U.S. Army's deadly bacteriological strockpile of poisons and microbes were distributed to several government agencies and army installations after a presidential order in 1970 to shut down the nation's biological warfare program, officials told Senate investigators Thursday.

Boris Osheroff, the U.S. Public Health Service official assigned for years as a liaison with the army's biological warfare program at Ft. Detrick, Md., said a "shopping list" was prepared and circulated among government agencies who wanted some of the banned material.

Charles Senseny, a secret weapons expert, meanwhile told the panel that in the years prior to 1970 his special group at Ft. Detrick, manufactured devices that could bring death silently and quickly to one individual or many.

He told of leading a 20-man task force into the 6th and 8th Avenue subways in New York in the mid-1960s to find out if it could be subjected to a surprise germ warfare attack.

"It went quite well," he said in a matter-of-fact voice.

The team strolled through the trains and, pausing between cars, dropped to the tracks below several objects that looked like light bulbs. These burst and released what Senseny said was a "harmless substance."

Detectors showed the substance was dissipated "all along the way" from 14th St. to 58th St.

He told of similar "vulnerability" experiments against the White House and the Pentagon but said he had no details.

In a related development, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration said today it turned over a quantity of lethal shellfish toxin to the army after overproducing the poison while searching for an antidote to it.

The statement shed more light on the possible source of the poison that was secretly kept by the Central Intelligence Agency in violation of presidential orders to destroy it.

According to an FDA official there have been no recorded deaths in the United States "in the last 40 years" from the toxin which kills by paralyzing the respiratory system. However, there have been many instances of poisoning.

The toxin comes from a micro-organism which are always present at the bottom of the ocean. Sometimes in warm weather, for reasons unknown to scientists, these micro-organisms, called dinoflagellates, multiply and rise to the surface turning the water red.

The difference between the CIA's shellfish toxin and that which occurs naturally is a matter of concentration.

THE SOUNDS OF SILENCE

NEW YOUR (UPI) — A musicians' strike has dimmed th lights on the Great White Way, shutting down nine Broadway musicals. Dramatic productions were not affected.

Union lawyer Philip Sipser, said wages were the key issue in the dispute, with the league offering a $17.50 increase per week in the first year of a new three-year contract and $10 each in the second and third years. Musicians currently average $290 a week and work an average of 10 weeks per show, he said.

U.S. Grain For Oil?

WASHINGTON (WP) — The United States is prepared to agree to let the Soviet Union buy between 5 and 8 million tons of wheat and animal feed grains a year for a five-year period, two government sources said Thursday.

The amounts were described by the sources as the "framework" for negotiations between the two countries.

Talks are scheduled to resume next week when Under Secretary of State for Economic Affairs Charles Robinson returns to Moscow.

The administration informally halted all new major grain sales to the Soviet Union after Moscow ordered 9.8 million tons through private grain companies in six days in July.

Between 1971 and 1974, grain shipments to the Soviets averaged 6 million tons annually.

Under the proposed long-term agreement, the sales would continue to be handled through private grain companies, rather than by the government and be at prevailing market prices.

Less clear, sources said, is the status of joint talks on U.S. purchases of petroleum from Russia, to offset Moscow's grain purchases.

One informed source said, "There is more to the oil for grain proposal than you may think."

Gun Probe Phase 2

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A judge turned over to a panel of seven criminologists today the evidence which could determine whether a "second gun" was fired in the assassination of Sen. Robert Kennedy in 1968.

The judge took possession of a few tiny, mangled pieces of lead Thursday, ending the preliminary phase of the "second gun" inquiry into the assassination and paving the way for tests by the panel.

The material is to be turned over next week for testing by a panel of seven ballistics and criminal evidence experts to be shown in from around the country.

Canadian Oil Claim Made.

WASHINGTON (FP) — Legislation giving President Gerald Ford authority to allocate dwindling imports of Canadian oil has been introduced in the U.S. Congress.

The move, made by Minnesota Senator Walter Mondale, would ensure priority for the areas in the country whieh up to now have virtually no other source of oil than Canada.

The Federal Energy Administration has supposedly been working out an allocation program since the beginning of the year, but it is still not prepared, and there is doubt that it would even be effective.

Climate of Fear Good, Claims Squeaky

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Lynette (Squeaky) Fromme, speaking publicly for the first time since she was charged with attempting to assassinate President Ford, said Thursday night she and Charles Manson "could do a lot" for the world.

In her first jail interview since a loaded .45-calibre pistol was aimed point blank at the president Sept. 5, the devoted Manson apostle said:

"People thrive on fear (and) we have to slowly turn this around."

Miss Fromme, her voice cracking occasionally with emotion and her eyes filling with tears as she talked of contaminated water and air, granted the interview on the eve of her appearance in court today to enter a plea to the charge of attempted murder of the president.

In the rambling half-hour interview, she carefully avoided any direct mention of the threat on Ford's life, but said it was "good" that she and convicted mass murderer Manson had created fear in Americans.

"I'm a live person who is in love with life and people. I could do a lot for you if you'd let me," she said. "And Manson could. The (Manson) women could. They already have. Just because you don't understand it, doesn't mean it wasn't right."

She called Manson our "Christ God and creative spirit" and declared the world would "understand" and "explanations" would occur if Manson wins a new trial.

ELOISE BUILDING

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical storm Eloise churned slowly through the Caribbean today, gathering strength for an expected resurgence.

The storm, downgraded from a hurricane Thursday after losing much of its power when its winds and torrential rains hit southern Cuba, continued on a generally westward path after shifting briefly toward the southwest.

"On this track, it probably will not be very long before it gathers more strength and becomes a hurricane again," said forecaster Paul Hebert of the National Hurricane Centre.

The centre warned residents of the Lesser Cayman Islands to take immediate precautions against the storm's winds of 45 miles an hour and heavy rain squalls.

Residents of central and western Cuba and Jamaica were told to expect heavy rains, and Cuban officials placed the provinces of Camaguey and Las Villas on "a state of alert."

Hebert said Thursday night that forecasters were still expecting Eloise to turn toward the northwest, putting it on a track toward the Gulf of Mexico.

Nader Seeks Air Probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ralph Nader today called for an all-out U.S. government investigation into the extent to which a cancer-causing agent may be present in the air of the nation's cities.

Scientists have for the first time confirmed the presence of the carcinogenic (cancer-causing) agent in the air in Baltimore, and a suburb of Charleston, W. Va., he said.

The carcinogens are formed by industrial and automobile pollutants and other chemicals. Nader asked the Environmental Protection Agency in June to check out an earlier German study. Clarence Ditlow, a Nader associate, said the EPA took two-and-a-half months to respond to Nader's earlier complaint.

"In view of EPA's failure to act on evidence of a major airborne environmental carcinogen, congress should investigate just what the EPA is protecting — industry or the environment," Ditlow said.

Deputy administrator John Quarles Jr. told Nader it would be "inappropriate" to ascribe cancer mortality to nitrogen oxides or nitrosamines "rather than to a variety of other known carcinogens present in the urban air or occupational exposure."

CORAL PROTECTED

MIAMI (AP) — The U.S. interior department has banned the taking of coral from the outer reefs of the Florida Keys, citing an "immediate threat" of destruction of the reefs by souvenir hunters and commercial collectors. It prohibits removal or destruction of coral, living or dead, from all areas of the continental shelf outside the three-mile limit. The order affects a 150-mile stretch of the Keys, which shelter the only living reefs in the continental United States.

Flip-Flop Over Concorde

WASHINGTON (WP) — A French government spokesman issued and then retracted an announcement that the United States has approved two flights a week by the controversial Concorde jet airliner to Dulles International Airport here.

Andre Rossi at first reported after a French cabinet meeting that Marcel Cavaille, France's secretary of transport, told the cabinet that U.S. officials had authorized the Concorde flights beginning next April 1.

Less than 20 minutes later Rossi said, "contrary to what I said in my report on the cabinet meeting, U.S. federal authorities have still not granted authorizatin for the Concorde to land at Washington," Agence France-Presse reported.

Questioned here, U.S. Secretary of Transportation William Coleman insisted to reporters that his department has not made a final decision on whether the French-British supersonic jet will be allowed to fly to Dulles and John F. Kennedy International Airport in New York.

Opponents have charged that the Concorde is an energy waster and poses environmental hazards, particularly because of its high noise level. They accuse the U.S. government of bowing to foreign pressure to let the Concorde land here.

The Tiny Perfect Mayor

Writers have tried to outdo each other in their search for cuddly comparatives to describe the mayor of Toronto: Kewpie doll, Muffin man, The Tiny Perfect Mayor. But David Crombie is a more serious man than his image will allow. Find out this Saturday in Weekend Magazine.

Auction Fever Strikes

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two weeks ago, Mrs. John Livingstone got excited at an auction and kept bidding until she won at $400.

Six pickup truckloads later, she has the components of a 16-foot high church organ in her basement and overflowing into her back yard.

The organ has 600 pipes, which range from a few inches to nine feet, among its more than 1,000 pieces, all labelled by number.

"I was so excited, I just bid until I got it," Mrs. Livingstone said. "Then I took a look at all those pieces.

"Even the way it is, it's wonderful. The basement smells different."

Her husband, however, is not impressed.

"You know how women are at an auction," he observed.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The president of the Federated Council of Elder Citizens' Association of B.C. said Thursday his group opposes a B.C. Telephone Co. proposal to give a 50 per cent discount in rates to all senior citizens receiving the guaranteed income supplement.

Frank Way, 80, of Vancouver, told a Canadian Transport Commission hearing that the suggestion is discriminatory. He said all retired persons, 60 and over, whose family or individual income is less than $6,500 a year, should receive the discount.

He said that the permanently disabled and war veterans also should receive the discount.

OTTAWA (CP)—Health and welfare minister Marc Lalonde Thursday announced a contribution of $25,000 from his department's medical services branch to help the Skeena-Queen Charlotte Regional Hospital in Masset.

The new facilities will provide improved health care services for local registered Indians who represent 37 per cent of the Masset area's population.

ABBOTSFORD (CP) — Richard Douglas Clifford Long, 25, and his wife Gladys were remanded to Monday after appearing Thursday in Abbotsford provincial court on charges of growing marijuana and possession of marijuana for trafficking. They were arrested Wednesday at their home, after police seized 74 marijuana plants and 70 ounces of cut marijuana.

BURNABY (CP) — Students picketed the cafeteria and bookstore at the Institute of Technology Thursday because the institute's administration exceeded price guidelines set by the board of governors, said student council president Steve Brown. He said the board agreed last May to a 10-per-cent price increase, but the administration interpreted that to mean full cost recovery on food, plus 10 per cent.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Glen Wayne Jansen, 25, was committed Thursday for higher court trial on a charge of murder punishable by life imprisonment in the June 25 killing of Freda Buxbaum, who was found strangled and beaten to death in a downtown parkade.

Food Firm Sued

VANCOUVER (CP) — The provincial Trade Practices Office has launched an action against Budget Freezer Food Processors of Vancouver in the B.C. supreme court.

In the supreme court writ, the Trade Practice Office says Ray Tailfer of Revelstoke paid $824.38 for bulk frozen food which he did not receive. It says Bernard Co'Dyre of Port Alberni paid $591.29 and William McInnes of Salmon Arm paid $499.16 and neither of them had received their orders or refunds.

The Trade Practice office wants the company to return the money or alternatively to pay damages for breach of contract and an accounting of deposits.

Tapes Valid Death-Plot Evidence

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice R. P. Anderson ruled Thursday that an order which authorized police to tape telephone conversations of two men charged with conspiracy to have the wife of one of them murdered was valid.

Facing trial in Kamloops before county court Judge D. M. Macdonald are Dale Miller and Dave Thomas, both of Kamloops. They are charged with conspiracy to take the life of Elsie Miller.

The trial began in June but was adjourned when lawyers for the accused challenged the authorization order made earlier by county court Judge P. D. Dohm in Kamloops and sought a B.C. Supreme Court order quashing it. The hearing to quash began in Kamloops and the judgment was made in Vancouver.

Mr. Justice Anderson, in upholding Judge Dohm's order which authorized police to tap telephone conversations of the two accused, also held that lawyers for the accused should not be permitted to examine a sealed package which was placed in the custody of the court.

The package contained material and information which had been submitted by authorities to Judge Dohm when they applied for the order which gave police the right to tape the telephone conversations.

The lawyers had sought to examine the support material to study the order's justification.

Murder Squad Boosted

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver homicide and robbery detective squad will be divided into separate entities Sunday in an effort to cope with increasing crime in the city.

The two squads will also be strengthened with additional men transferred from general investigation duties. The one present squad has 10 detectives under a staff sergeant and a sergeant.

The new homicide squad will have nine detectives, working under a staff sergeant and a sergeant, and the new robbery squad will have six detectives working under a sergeant.

Also the missing persons squad will be merged with the new homicide squad.

Superintendent of investigations Doug Merae said Thursday he hopes the specialization of duties will help police deal more effectively with the city's rising tide of murders and holdups.

In 1969 and for four previous years, the number of homicides a year never exceeded 15. In 1970 there were 18 murders. There were 9 in 1971, 32 in 1972, 25 in 1973 and 30 in 1974. There have been 18 murders so far this year.

In 1969 there were 18 bank robberies, and the worst year recorded during the late 60s was 1967 when there were 25 bank robberies.

Then in 1970 there were 49 banks robbed; in 1971 there were 44; in 1972 and 1973 each had 62; the rate dropped last year to 44, but so far this year there have been 68.

By comparison, Toronto last year had 35 murders and 78 bank robberies; Edmonton 14 murders and 19 banks robbed, and Calgary 11 murders and 20 banks robbed.

Abolish Dual Ridings, Boundary Probers Told

VANCOUVER (CP) — Abolition of two-member ridings was sought in submissions to the provincial electoral boundaries commission Thursday by the Liberal party and the British Columbia Federation of Labor.

There are seven dual ridings, six in Vancouver and the other in Victoria.

Liberal representative Doreen Braverman said MLA service to the electorate is less in two-member ridings and there is too much duplication between the two MLAs.

The Liberals favor electoral boundaries along neighborhood boundaries instead of artificial divisions and community resources boards have followed this pattern with success, she said.

Systems analyst Harold Daykin said in a personal brief that if the current 12 seats were kept in Vancouver and followed neighborhood boundaries they would fall into population groups averaging 35,000.

Federation spokesman Ron Johnson also said his group would like to see a 62-seat legislature — the most the commission can recommend.

He said the federation feels many ridings are too large geographically, urban areas are under-represented and MLAs should be paid for phone, office and possibly transportation costs.

ITU PICKET RULED ILLEGAL

NANAIMO (CP) — Mr. Justice R. P. Anderson ruled Thursday that picketing by the International Typographic Union at the Comox District Free Press weekly newspaper is illegal.

He reserved decision on damages pending outcome of a civil suit by employees of the Free Press against the ITU. That case began Thursday and is not expected to conclude until late next week.

E. W. Bickle Co. Ltd., which publishes the Courtenay-based Free Press, the Campbell River Upper Islander and the Courier in Campbell River, all weeklies, initiated the B.C. supreme court action in 1973 after the Vancouver local of the ITU set up a picket line March 7, 1973.

We need more housing for Canadians.

Builders: We can help you build it.

We're attacking the housing shortage on two fronts. Rental. And purchase.

Our rental housing assistance program has already taken off.

Why? Because we're offering a subsidy of up to $900 per rental unit for up to 15 years, provided that rents are set at a moderate level.

This Assisted Rental Program is successful. Builder participation is encouraging. And reasonable-rental accommodation will be coming onto the market as a result.

As for Home Ownership Assistance, it's getting off the ground, too. Here we subsidize average-income families in the purchase of new, moderate-cost homes from you. These may be individual homes, town-houses or condominiums, as long as they sell under the maximums set by C.M.H.C. in your area. As in the case of Rental Assistance, you go to your regular sources of mortgage funds for the money to build. Through NHA-insured financing, you'll obtain competitive rates and terms. Then we subsidize your customers so that they pay about 25% of their family income on monthly mortgage payments.

So, builders, get in on the action and get your share of these benefits. At the same time, you'll be helping to increase the supply of affordable housing in your community.

For more information about Rental Assistance, and Home Ownership Assistance, contact your local C.M.H.C. Office.

Schlesinger's Visit Rapped

U.S. Defence Secretary James Schlesinger's visit to Ottawa this week was to use Canada as a means of pressuring Congress, U.S. public opinion and NATO allies into increasing troops and military arms in Europe, says an international disarmament expert.

"Schlesinger has been experiencing problems with the American Congress in his attempts to stop Congress moves towards the reduction of the number of U.S. troops and the 7,000 tactical weapons in Europe," Dr. William Epstein, special consultant to the United Nations on nuclear disarmament, said Thursday in an interview.

Epstein, visiting professor at the University of Victoria, said Schlesinger's statement during a news conference in Ottawa Tuesday — that Canada must make a greater commitment to NATO or the balance of power in Europe might tip toward the Soviets — "is unsubstantiated."

First of all, Epstein said, even if Canada's forces in NATO were doubled or tripled, it would still only be of symbolic and marginal importance compared with the contributions of the United States and her European allies.

"Secondly, there is growing detente in Europe which is lessening the possibility of war," he said, adding that NATO and Warsaw pact countries have been conferring in Vienna on mutual balanced force reductions in Europe.

"If it is really necessary to beef up NATO forces, it is better for others to do it, particularly the Europeans themselves."

This would free Canada to concentrate on supporting United Nations peace-keeping efforts and efforts to end the arms race and cure problems of poverty, population growth and pollution, he said.

"Moreover, what right has Schlesinger to come up to Ottawa to tell the Canadian government and people how they ought to spend the money they devote to military purposes?"

Epstein said that following Trudeau's reassessment of Canada's role in foreign affairs in 1970, Canada's contribution to NATO was cut almost in half, "and nothing has happened which would indicate the necessity to reverse that assessment."

Soviet Doctors Leave Canada For 'Frisco

VANCOUVER (CP) — A group of Russian doctors which had come under verbal attack, left here Thursday for San Francisco on the next leg of their North American tour.

Dr. Norman Hirt, a Vancouver psychiatrist, said when the group arrived for a three-day visit that at least two of the 26 persons were suspected KGB psychiatrists.

Dr. Hirt, an investigator of psychiatric abuse in the USSR, said he had documentary evidence that two of the group were from the Serbski Institute of Moscow.

'Reform Fuels Economy'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey turned low key and philosophical Thursday before a group of newspaper publishers, a stance belying his reputation as a hard-nosed labor bargainer.

Speaking to the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association at its fall meeting, Mackasey mentioned neither post office nor postal rates, a subject that worries most publishers.

"I'm speaking as an unabashed Canadian who is interested in making sure that the best country in the world remains exactly that," he said.

His speech reflected the concern he had over the free enterprise system.

"By any standard but ours," he said, "democratic capitalism has finally defeated that old public enemy, poverty.

"But now at the peak of success, that system is faltering. It's overloaded: new demands piled on top of old commitments."

He told the publishers that corporations once held in check by the law of supply and demand now operate on a cost-plus basis; he also reminded them that the government regulation so many people would rescind grew on corporate excess.

Similarly, he said, people forget that the welfare state grew on corporate refusal to pay the social costs of its growth.

"They say that social welfare is uneconomic," Mackasey said. "I suggest that reform fuels the economy."

He noted that while in the midst of the worst depression since the 1930s, there has not been a 1930-style panic because money is supplying a buffer.

"Unemployment insuramce pensions, welfare in all its forms puts purchasing power in the pockets of people who spend it," Mackasey said.

He said the idea that men are created equal is behind the demands that threaten to overload the economy.

"Our problem now is not to suppress this drive but to contain it . . . to make it productive rather than disruptive . . . to harness the freedom gained to the greater good, a new dynamic: the force-field of a unifying goal," Mackasey said.

He said Canada and democracy in general require policies that discourage bureaucratic empire-building and that reward innovation; penalties must deal with misuse of power; waste and consumption must be discouraged and thrift and investment encouraged, he said.

Ballet Classes Begin

Registration for ballet lessons will be accepted at the first class Thursday from 3 to 6 p.m. at the Moose Hall in Central Saanich.

The ballet class is part of the fall program of the Peninsula Recreation Commission.

Registrations for international folk dancing will also be accepted at the Moose Hall, 7925 East Saanich Rd., Thursday at 8 p.m.

A meeting to form a creative tots group will be held Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. at Brentwood Community Hall. Also at the hall, registration for ladies' keep fit will be accepted Sept. 30 at 9:30 a.m.

In Sidney there are still vacancies in yoga, ladies' keep fit, mens' floor hockey, all badminton groups, Y-gym classes, basketball and Friday afternoon 6-9 year old activity groups.

12 Seeking Planning Job

One applicant from Britain and 11 from across Canada and the United States are seeking the job of Saanich's municipal planner.

The number of applicants was confirmed Thursday by Saanich's personnel director Bill Locker.

The position, vacated by Tom Loney in July, was advertised in Victoria and Vancouver dailies.

Assisting planner Gil Laurenson is heading the 14-person department until Loney's replacement is appointed.

Robinson Retires

WASHINGTON (AP) — Veteran linebacker Dave Robinson, a 13-year veteran, has decided to retire rather than sit on the bench and has been offered a job in the Washington Redskins organization.

thermoshell

Something new in home comfort for concerned homeowners all across Canada

Thermoshell is a new concept in home comfort from Shell

Our aim is to offer you a complete line of home comfort products and services; and to do so with the emphasis on low cost and energy conservation.

For example, we have compiled the Thermoshell Conservation Guide Booklet, which is filled with many fuel-saving suggestions. Or there is the Thermoshell Chronotherm, a new type of thermostat to help you stay comfortable while you cut your fuel bills. And the Thermoshell Comprehensive Protection Plan which is designed to protect you against unexpected furnace repair bills and to help keep your furnace running at optimum efficiency.

Of course your Thermoshell Centre also offers Automatic Fuel Delivery and an Equal Monthly Payment Plan as well as a complete line of furnaces, water heaters, power humidifiers and other home comfort equipment — all designed to help keep your fuel costs in line.

The Thermoshell Comprehensive Protection Plan – a wise investment

The Protection Plan can save you money because it provides you with:

- Parts replacement. When necessary, many parts essential to the operation of your heating unit will be replaced.
- Annual furnace inspection. An inefficient furnace can cost you a great deal in extra fuel bills. The annual inspection and cleanout will ensure optimum operating efficiency.
- Free labour. Our annual fee includes labour.
- Emergency service. Trained technicians are ready to service your unit, day or night.

With features like these, the Thermoshell Comprehensive Protection Plan could soon pay for itself in lower operating costs and peace of mind.

A new guide to fuel economy

This informative, easy-to-read booklet from Thermoshell is filled with useful hints to help you cut fuel bills and keep your home comfortable at the same time.

Missing Postmark Costs Gulf $2,781

A missing postmark on its envelope containing a cheque for Victoria property taxes is going to cost Gulf Oil Canada Ltd. a $2,781.81 penalty on top of a $55,635.81 tax bill.

The postmark would have proved the company's claim that the cheque was mailed before the July 2 deadline, but in the absence of such proof Thursday city finance committee recommended rejection of Gulf's appeal.

In a letter to council, A. R. Nicholson of the company's Calgary office said the cheque was mailed in good time — on June 27 — but received late due to no fault of Gulf.

Therefore a penalty imposition was "rather unfair," particularly in view of the company's past record for prompt payment.

"Please note postmark," he wrote. But city officials said they could find nothing to indicate the envelope was franked.

Several committee members noted that it was somewhat optimistic on the company's part to mail a cheque on the Friday before a long weekend and expect it to arrive on the Tuesday.

Ald. Bob Ellis noted that for money management reasons several companies delay to the last possible moment, but added: "If they hold off to the last day surely they must ensure it is delivered by hand?"

Hoax Triggered Hunt

What is now considered a prank call triggered an international search for four persons reported adrift in a lifeboat about 30 miles north of Bella Bella Thursday.

The search was called off at 10 p.m.

Taking part in the search were Buffalo aircraft and helicopters from CFB Comox, U.S. coast guard craft and other vessels.

A radio distress call was relayed from the Vancouver marine radio to the Pacific Rescue Co-ordination centre at CFB Esquimalt about 5:20 a.m.

The message said four persons had abandoned the vessel Pamela M, which had got into trouble near Vanocuver Rock in Milbanke Sound. The lifeboat was without power, the caller said.

A PRCC spokesman said today a search had proven that there was no vessel registered Pamela M i neither British Columbia, Washington or Alaska.

He said search vessels were in the area almost immediately after the call was received but had found no oil, debris or any other signs.

Tenant Group Demonstrates

The president of the Downtown Eastside Residents' Association of Vancouver says the provincial government is not adequately protecting tenants by enforcing the Landlord and Tenant Act.

Bruce Ericksen was one of about 30 people who demonstrated Tuesday in front of the legislative buildings asking for changes to the act.

The group later met for about an hour with a three-member cabinet committee and presented an amendment to the committee which Eriksen said would guarantee protection to every citizen of the province who rents lodging.

Eriksen said an amendment passed at the spring session of the legislature which brought residents of hotels and motels under the protectio of the Landlord and Tenant Act "was a bunch of crap."

"They haven't helped on one single tenant in this province under the act," he said.

"It seems like they're deliberately giving us legislation to make us think that we're protected."

He said the proposed amendment would bring under the Landlord and Tenant Act all renters living in hotels, motels, rooming houses, lodging houses, multiple dwellings and residential premises.

Eriksen said if the government doesn't act on the proposal immediately the tenants' groups will be back and next time in much larger numbers.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

An 18-year-old girl was refused bail in provincial court Thursday on 12 counts of cashing worthless cheques.

Laura Suzanne Carey, 551 Manchester, was remanded to Sept. 25 on the false-pretence charges after Judge D. K. McAdam was told she is wanted by Vancouver and Burnaby police on simliar charges.

"She's got so much to cope with she'd best be in one place and that's in detention," said the judge.

The Victoria charges stem from a cheque-writing spree from June 13 to Aug. 23 when she got cash and merchandise worth $1,350. She wrote the cheques at Eaton's, Woodward's, The Bay, Sears and smaller Victoria stores.

* * *

A two-day preliminary hearing on a rape charge began for Robert Gerrit Schoeman, 25, of 4202 Bilston. A no-publication order was granted by Judge McAdam at the request of defence lawyer Michael Hutchison.

The Crown withdrew 13 charges laid between 1968 and 1973 — some of about 400 being abandoned due to lack of evidence.

"All are for some reason or other cases the Crown cannot proceed with," said Prosecutor Nick Lang.

Charges included false pretences, theft and Motor Vehicle Act violations.

* * *

Leslie James Green, 22, address unknown, was fined $100 after pleading guilty to theft under $200. He stole a razor from the Metropolitan Store, 1222 Douglas, at noon Wednesday and was arrested at his home.

Green has a record from 1971 that includes break-in and theft, possession of drugs and possession of stolen property.

In traffic court, Sylvia Lucille Smith, 33, of 7234 Veyaness, pleaded guilty to impaired driving and was fined $350 by Judge D. R. Campbell. She is prohibited from driving for 30 days.

TRIAL ESCAPE

GRENOBLE, France (UPI) — A woman slipped a pair of revolvers to three men on trial today for holding up a jewellery store. All four escaped in a car with a woman court clerk as hostage.

They also took jewels and submachine guns being used as prosecution exhibits.

The fugitives dragged along the star state witness, who owns the Mirror of Gold jewellery store that had been held up, but she was turned loose a few yards from the courthouse.

A revolver was held to the head of a Miss Huguette, a clerk in the court registrar's office, as the four escaped, preventing police from firing.

The getaway was patterned closely on a similar escapade in Paris last summer. The two fugitives in that case — a habitual criminal and his girlfriend — are still at large.

Police identified the fugitives as gunman named Egea, a restaurant owner named Gallo, a boy of 17 who was otherwise not identified, and Egea's girlfriend, Rosalie Durand.

Press Barred From Row On Finances

COURTENAY — Representatives of five Comox Valley newspapers and one radio station were barred from attending a meeting Wednesday between council and the Courtenay Recreation Association executive.

The meeting was arranged by council after charges at a recent council meeting accusing the CRA of "total lack of financial responsibility."

Mayor William Moore told the gorup of news media representatives he would not let them attend the meeting to see what had happened "to public funds."

"It is council policy to hold such meetings in committee," he said, and "responsible members of the press know this."

The news media representatives told the mayor they thought a matter a principle was involved, since the volunteer CRA group had been publicly attacked by council during a council meeting two weeks ago for financial incompetence."

Moore said a statement would be issued following the meeting, and he refused a request that a vote be taken to see whether the meeting could be thrown open.

He denied the request saying, "take my word, the vote last Monday by council to hold the meeting in-camera was unanimous."

Airport for Sale

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Hollywood-Burbank's 45-year 630-acre airport is up for sale, its owner, Lockheed Aircraft Corp., said. Recent estimates put the value of the property at $80 million. Hollywood-Burbank ranks 50th out of 521 commercial airports in number of airline takeoffs and landings in the United States. It is the only privately-owned airport in the U.S. regularly used for scheduled commercial flights.

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Probably the last killer whale ever to be caught in B.C. waters today settled into his pool at the Niagara Falls Marineland and Gamefarm.

In a telephone interview owner John Holer said the chartered freight plane which transported the plane from the Victoria International Airport Thursday evening set down at Hamilton, Ont. at 3 a.m. B.C. time.

From there, the 15-foot whale was taken by truck to the marineland, and lowered into his pool an hour later.

"After being lowered into the pool he began swimming right away as if he'd been there a long time," Holer said, "He looks fine."

★

Niagara Falls has two more whales in the marineland, a male, Kandu, and a female, Nootka, which arrived there on Sunday.

The whales are being kept in three separate pools, the female's pool being between the two male's pools, all three pools being connected by easily-raised stainless steel gates.

Holer said it would be a week or 10 days before the gates are raised to allow the newcomer to join the others.

"They are at the gates looking at each other and there's a lot of new conversation going on," Holer said.

Holer said the new whale will be fed for the first time since his flight this evening.

Asked if any extra precautions were being taken to ensure the Pedder Bay whale doesn't die of pneumonia (a whale shipped from Pedder Bay in 1973 died of pneumonia 17 days after its arrival), Holer said:

"There really is no need. That one (in 1973), we knew there was something wrong. When he was put in the pool he just slipped over and we had to have divers to keep him up."

Holer said a name for the new whale will be selected by area children.

HOLER
. . . "he looks fine"

On Tuesday, after Holer had asked for priority boarding for the whale on a B.C. ferry, Transport Minister Bob Strachan banned the boarding of the whale on any B.C. ferry.

Sealand president Bob Wright, who was paid $40,000 by Holer Thursday for capturing the whale, accuses Radford of playing politics in his announcement Thursday that Wright will probably get as much as $200,000 for the whale's capture.

"This is a political deal, he is trying to embarass (Jack) Davis (former fisheries minister with the Liberal government) now that he's gone Social Credit," Wright said," I agreed with Holer we'd split the costs right down the middle for the whale we've got and the whale he has."

Wright said the $40,000 figure was agreed on 18 months ago.

"In actual fact it cost me $41,382 for each whale," he added. "So I have a net loss of $1,382."

★

Today, Greenpeace Foundation president Bob Hunter said Holer is "gambling with the life of the whale in his reckless rush for profit" and praised Strachan for his stand.

"Holer is sentencing this whale to a better than 50 per cent chance of dying within the next two years," Hunter said, adding:

"This was a courageous and highly moral act on the part of Mr. Strachan, and he deserves nothing but praise.

Student Loses Action Against His Teacher

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

An action for damages by a former Mount Douglas High School student has been dismissed by Mr. Justice Samuel Toy of B.C. Supreme Court.

In a written judgment handed down Thursday, he said he is not prepared to find negligence against industrial arts teacher Colin John Quail, Mount Doug principal John Jerome Lowther and Greater Victoria school board.

His action for damages was heard in Victoria last May.

Mr. Justice Toy said the evidence is clear that in at least three respects, Legg's own acts or omissions contributed to his injury in performing "the not unusual or difficult cut" of wood:

1. He was not using the mitre gauge to push the wood through the saw;

2. He left the blade elevated too high;

3. The safety guard was not in position.

Mr. Justice Toy said Legg and two other former students testified they and other students did not always use the safety guard and "this left the definite impression that the defendant Quail was lax in supervising and requiring the use of the safety guard."

One witness said the guards were not used 50 per cent of the time but Mr. Justice Toy said "that evidence I do not accept."

All three former students admitted Quail warned students caught using table saws without the guard being in the safety position.

The safety guard, if properly in position, "would practically make it impossible for an operator of a table saw to cut himself." When asked in cross-examination why he did not use the guard, Legg's reply "was to the effect that he really didn't think about it."

Just prior to the accident, Quail was correcting and instructing Legg and Legg testified that Quail did not tell him to have the guard in the safety position.

Quail told a different story, that in addition to instructing Legg about the proper use of the mitre guage, he also reprimanded him for not having the guard in the safety position.

"On this crucial point, I accept the evidence of the defendant Quail and reject the evidence of the plaintiff Legg," said Mr. Justice Toy.

He added that Quail was described by defence witnesses as a conscientious and careful instructor and I am prepared to accept their evidence in this regard in preference to that given by the students."

Legg was represented by Ian Izard while Rodney Taylor appeared for Quail, Lowther and the school board.

FERNWOOD SOOTHED

No Trickery, Says Planner

The Neighborhood Improvement Project for Fernwood "is not getting off to as happy a start as I would like" city planner Geof Greenhalgh said Thursday night as he tried to allay fears the city is trying to put something over on residents.

At the first meeting to discuss Fernwood getting $1 million in Neighborhood Improvement Project funds, the planner and NIP co-ordinator Frank Byrne repeatedly told residents "there has been no formal or political commitment on how to spend the funds. This is money set aside for your area and the ideas must come from you."

"The monies are a one-shot deal and all projects submitted for consideration must be just that. There cannot be any on-going funding for such things as a community centre," Grrenhalgh said.

The federal government picks up 50 per cent of the tab, the province and city share the remainder.

Greenhalgh said "because the city has such a substantial amount of money going into the projects they must have a substantial say. They must exercise prudence in what is done with the funds."

Greenhalgh and Byrne spent more than two hours repeating the theme that although the city included proposals in submitting its application to Ottawa for funding "it's just that, proposals which you the community can either accept, modify or reject."

Byrne said it's a three-year program with the first year set aside for planning.

Trustee Won't Run Again

Greater Victoria school board trustee Phil Perry will not seek re-election to the board in the November elections.

Perry, currently director of a counselling and teaching program for delinquent youths at the Youth Attendance Centre, plans to go to Eugene, Oregon, in January to work on his dootorate in psychology at the University of Oregon.

FIVE MOUNT DOUGLAS students were treated and released from hospital following a two-car collision at Gordon Head and Feltham at 12:45 p.m. Thursday. The accident occurred when a station wagon driven by Brian Wambolt, 17, of 3422 Veteran, southbound on Gordon Head, had to swerve around cyclists, sideswiped a car driven by Delores Troyer, 41, of 1535 Louise Place, and hit a power pole. Wambolt suffered a cracked jaw and passenger Celia Bell, 16, of 1885 San Pedro, a broken arm. Other passengers treated were Andrea Peake, 16, of 2610 Arbutus; Debby Patterson, 16, of 3990 Cherrilee Cres.; and Dawn Bennett, 16, of 1914 San Pedro.

Grandmother, Baby in Carriage Knocked Down by Swerving Car

A Colwood woman and her grandchild are in fair conditon in hospital today after being struck by a car at Esquimalt Lagoon Thursday.

Mr. Rose Potts was pushing her 18-months-old granddaughter in a carriage across Lagoon Road when they were bowled over by a car driven by a 16-year-old boy who police said lost control turning left from Heatherbell. Charges are likely to be made against him.

RCMP withheld the names of the child and her parents because Mrs. Potts was looking after the baby while her daughter and son-in-law were holidaying in England. They were expected home today.

Royal Jubilee Hospital reported the baby in slightly better conditon today than Thursday night. Her injuries are to the head and internal organs. Mrs. Potts has head injuries, a broken shoulder and left leg.

JEWEL THEFT

About $5,000 in watches, diamond rings and miscellaneous jewelry was stolen overnight from the Jewel Box store on Southshore Road at Lake Cowichan.

An RCMP spokesman said entry was gained by forcing a rear door.

He said the detachment has no suspects at the moment.

Fisher Heads Bargaining

Greater Victoria school trustee Dr. Mark Fisher has been appointed chairperson of the lower Vancouver Island trustees' group which will bargain with teachers this year.

Zonal bargaining for teachers' salaries has been set up under legislation passed by the legislature this spring.

The lower Vancouver Island zone was to include six school districts, but Lake Cowichan district teachers have said they wish to negotiate on the local level with their school board.

No other teachers' association in the zone has yet opted out.

The trustees' zonal bargaining group met Thursday and appointed Greater Victoria district personnel officer Dave Coton and Gulf Island district secretary-treasurer Wilf Peck as negotiators.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. What Columbia is referred to in the name of our province, British Columbia? And is there any specific reason why it should have been chosen in naming the province? G. W. S.

A. The connotations of Columbia are several, and those pertaining to the discoverer of North America may have some validity. But the role of the Hudson's Bay Co. in our pre-political history seem more significant. Columbia is an archaic form of reference to America. It was also the name of Capt. Robert Gray's ship with which he discovered the mouth of the great river in 1792 and after which he named it. Likely the river decided the name of HBC's Columbia Department, which embraced the rich fur-bearing area in and north of the Oregon Territory. Following the Treaty of Oregon, when the international boundary was set, it was natural to refer to lands north of the line as "British" Columbia to establish clearly the disputed territory.

But for a time it had been intended to name the area New Caledonia. To avoid confusion with a French possession of the same name, Queen Victoria named the new colony British Columbia in 1858. There is also the possibility that Columbia was a name automatically associated with HBC, which had absolute authority in the pre-colonial time and continuing influence for many years. For example, in 1835 the Columbia Department's supply ship was named Columbia.

In the Hills a Trap for the Unwary

ONE DAY IN THIS HOT blue September, we climbed by an in-back road to an area which nature has booby-trapped with one of her most deadly poisons.

Within this tract of half-healed logging burn and shattered rock, it is unwise to drink from any of the inviting creeks. If you pick up a few of the heavily-mineralized ore chunks, it's as well to wear gloves, or at least to sluice your hands clean afterward from your water bag.

Presently too, you become aware that the silence is deeper than the normal quiet of mountain country. Deer may pass through or birds fly over. But the badland with the smiling face is singularly barren of life.

A time or two in my Vancouver Island years, I'd heard vague and fanciful-seeming tales of such forbidden areas. Something was wrong with them, nobody knew quite what. Maybe they were haunted. Anyway, it didn't do to linger in them. The venturesome bush-rat who chose to do so ran the risk of contracting a mysterious illness. He might even die.

Nonsense? Of course! Such legends were no more than the products of gifted imaginations, Indian or white, and not to be taken seriously.

Or so I believed until the morning we set out with our prospector neighbor Bob and his wife Peggy for a ramble in the hills.

By mid-morning we were high above the coastal plain on one logging road of the network that threads the Island interior. On either side of the road, flourishing among the old stumps and little new evergreens, stood bushes richly loaded with blue huckleberries. Where the road widened into a pull-off bay, Bob halted the battered four-wheel drive rig that takes him wherever wheels can turn.

The dark-blue berries were large and juicy. We picked the makings of a batch of pies within a few feet of the road. Our next stop was at the edge of alpine country on a steep-climbing track that toiled up the flank of a ridge with airy nothing below its washout-pocketed outer edge.

"More berries?" Win asked.

Peggy shook her head. "The engine's over-heating. Bob wants to cool it off a bit. We leave the berries alone from here on up."

"Don't drink from the creeks, either," Bob said. "Not if you want to stay healthy."

The slopes above with their rock outcrops and alpine stands of yellow cedar looked harmless enough. Why these warnings?

"Arsenic," Bob told us. "The water's full of it and the ground is loaded with it. The area clear up to the top of the fault is poisoned."

But not by man, Bob explained. The arsenic concentration is a natural condition, brought about by the titanic upheaval that sheared the end off a mountain, gouged craters that are now lakes, and filled the rifts it created with mineral-rich rock thrust up from the inner earth.

We were bearing in toward the high point of one of these tertiary faults. It was host to metals that included copper, silver and gold. Its veins bled arsenic, leached out by rain and snow-melt in quantities hostile to life.

Later, among tumbled rocks stained brownish-yellow by arsenic slats, Bob put his prospectors' hammer to work. The ore samples he showed us were peppered or skinned with a variety of minerals.

While he chipped, Bob told us a grim story.

It concerned two men who located a promising prospect. One of the pair took himself outside to raise working capital. The other stayed on the claim to run up a log cabin and start their mine. But the work went slowly, and he faced each day with strength a little further diminished. His partner returned to find a sick man who couldn't account for his illness.

"Arsenic poisoning," Bob said. "They'd located on a fault like this one, and it could have been the death of them."

Home again, Win inspected the once-white blouse with which she'd started the day.

"A mess," she said. "I'd better wash it."

The huckleberry stains came out. So did the tracings of malachite, turquoise, copper and other accretions from rock samples handled. But some sinister-looking yellow splotches yelded only to bleaching and hard scrubbing.

Arsenic from the alpine pocket where nature has set a trap for the unwary.

Cougars Get Ultimatum

SAULT THREATENS COURT ACTION OVER COULIS

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds want to go to court, and Victoria Cougars may accommodate the Ontario Major Junior Hockey League team in their tug-of-war over the services of 17-year-old Tim Coulis.

The struggle flared into the open Thursday when Greyhounds gave Victoria owner-coach Pat Ginnell two days to return the winger. Otherwise, Victoria's Western Canada League club may face court action.

Greyhounds made Coulis their No. 2 draft choice in last spring's draft of graduating midgets in Ontario. Coulis actually was selected in the third round after the Hounds traded away their first-round choice.

Ginnell claims he had Coulis on Victoria's protected list long before the Sault drafted him. Since Coulis' home i sin Kenora, Ont., and since he signed a registration card with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, Victoria's protection rights may be invalid since the player must get an east-west transfer in order to play in the WCHL.

The territorial priority was indicated when WCHL president Ed Chynoweth said last week league governors voted 11-1 against Victoria's claim. Chynoweth has ordered Ginnell to return the player to Sault Ste. Marie.

Coulis attended the first two days of the Greyhounds' training camp, and then disappeared. He didn't return to Kenora but Ginnell avoided commenting on his whereabouts.

Last year, Sudbury Wolves lost their No. 1 draft pick, defenceman Gord Roberts, to Victoria under similar circumstances. Ginnell stood firm and threatened court action. The loophole was Roberts' American citizenship and the Detroit-born player finally wound up with the Cougars.

Ginnell tried to deal for Coulis on Wednesday, it was learned. Sault coach Murray (Muzz) McPherson was willing.

"Give me Roberts and you can have Coulis," said McPherson, who coached Winnipeg Clubs in the WCHL last season.

McPherson, like Ginnell, has a fondness for big and rugged players. Coulis is six-foot-one and, apparently, relishes body contact.

Because Coulis and his parents want Tim to play in Victoria, it was learned Thursday that Ginnell also had been considering the legal route. If he continues his fight for Coulis, it means Ginnell would have a go against the wishes of his own league.

Ginnell, concerned about exhibition games against Kamloops Chiefs in Memorial Arena tonight (8 p.m.) and Saturday and then deciding on rosters for Victoria and the affiliate Nanaimo Clippers, apparently planned to decide on a course of action next week.

Thursday's edict from the Saut may force Ginnell to make up his mind before Saturday.

Caribous Win Final Opener

MONTREAL (CP) — Goals by Bruce Murdock and Terry Sanderson six seconds apart in a 10-minute overtime period snapped a 10-10 tie and Quebec Caribous edged Montreal Quebecois, 12-11, Thursday night in the opening game of their best-of-seven National Lacrosse League final series.

Murdock scored his third goal of the game with five minutes gone in overtime and Sanderson alded the eventual winner as he fired a shot over goaltender Keith Todman's shoulder.

Dave Tasker scored three goals for Montreal, with Ron Pinder adding two. Dave Litzenberger, John Davis, Serge Loiselle, Bruce Arena, Gord Floyd and Gerry Pinder were the other Montreal marksmen.

The Quebecois used Todman in goal because of injuries to regular goalkeepers Dave Evans, who has a fracturel right hand, and Ernie Mitchell, who suffered an eye injury Tuesday night.

The NLL allowed Montreal to borrow Todman from Maryland Arrows, and Gary Van Schagen from Long Island Tomahawks served as the backup. Both were third-string goalies in the regular season.

A crowd of 6086 saw Montreal fire 59 shots at Quebec goalie Larry Smeltzer while the Caribous had 43 drives.

The win was the first ever for the Caribous in Montreal after nine straight defeats. The first four losses came in 1974 when the Caribous franchise was in Syracuse, N.Y.

The series resumes Sunday night in Montreal.

Football Negotiators Score with Six-Pointer

By The Associated Press

When the leaves begin turning and the air takes on the chill nip of fall, it's time for the National FoFotball League season to begin.

But sometimes it takes more than a mere change of seasons to change men's minds.

This year it took 13 hours of gruelling labor negotiations preceded by 19½ months of uncertainty, a hard-headed federal mediator who wouldn't give in to confusion or other hardheads, and the frightening threat of finally losing fan interest and dollars.

It wasn't until 6 a.m. PDT Thursday, less than three days before the schedule start of the NFL's regular season, that a strike by five NFL teams began to crumble and the pro football season emerged, at least temporarily, from potential chaos.

Sargent Karch, executive director of the NFL Management Council (NFLMC); Ed Garvey, Karch's union counterpart, and the government's top labor troubleshooter, W. J. Usery, head of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, emerged from a marathon session in New York to announce they had reached a "memorandum of agreement."

And shortly before 6 p.m., New England Patriots, who began the series of wildcat walkouts six days ago, said they would return to the practice field.

Although details of the "memorandum of agreement" never were officially announced, The Associated Press learned later Thursday they were based on a six-point proposal made after an all-night session Monday in Washington.

After a brief introduction in which the owners and union agreed it was in their best interests to come to an early solution to the deadlocked negotiations, the "memorandum of agreement" said that the owners and players agreed to the six-point proposal as amended at the 13-hour meeting.

The first point of the original six-point proposal said the Patriots' camp would be open by Sept. 16 for practice. That date was changed to Sept. 18.

The second point said there would be no lockout or strike from Sept. 16 through Oct. 1. Again the Sept. 16 date was changed to the 18th.

The third point said the NFLMC would make a new contract proposal by Sept. 25. That date was pushed up to Sept. 22.

The fourth and fifth points, which gave assurances of a rank-and-file vote and no lockout or strike until the vote was finished, remained the same.

The sixth point said no reprisals would be taken against any players for action taken before Sept. 16. That date was changed to the 18th.

After the final pact is put before the union, there will be three additional days of negotiations to iron out details. The contract will be presented to the players in its final form by Sept. 25.

They will have from Sept. 25 until Sept. 30 to complete their vote and then must announce that vote within 48 hours, or by Oct. 2, four days after the start of the second NFL weekend.

Management spokesman Terry Bledsoe said the controversial Rozelle Rule, which the union had refused to accept as a negotiable issue, would be included in the new pact.

Joe Robbie, managing general partner of the Miami Dolphins and a member of the NFLMC executive committee, said the rule would be modified, but it would still allow for compensation to teams for players leaving to play for another NFL team.

Players in Tennis Series Must Remain in 'Fortress'

BAASTAD, Sweden (AP) — The tightest security measures ever for a sports event in Sweden were in force for today's start of the Davis Cup tennis semi-final between Chile and Sweden.

About 1,300 policemen, equipped with dogs, horses and helicopters, were on hand for the opening singles matches. Swedish ace Bjorn Borg met Chile's Patricio Cornejo in the day's first match, with young Birger Andersson of Sweden then facing Chile's No. 1 player, Jaime Fillol.

Swedish officials were expecting some 5,000 demonstrators to protest the overthrow of the Chilean government of Salvatore Allende and current conditions in Chile.

There have been threats of violence, including reported death threats against members of the Chilean team, although there were no incidents of violence at a demonstration by about 1,500 Thursday night.

A 40-foot fence was erected around the tennis court to discourage spectators from hurling objects at the players. The 1,500 spectators were to be searched for weapons upon entering the arena, and match organizers said that anyone refusing to be searched would not be admitted.

The Swedish and Chilean players are sharing a house alongside the centre court, inside an area which has been dubbed the "iron fortress" because of the tight security.

Beginning Thursday, the players were prohibited from leaving the compound, and they will not be permitted to leave until the matches are over Sunday.

The doubles match between Chile and Sweden will be played Saturday, with the final two singles matches on Sunday.

The winner of the Chile-Sweden best-of-five series will meet the winner of the other Davis Cup semi-final, between Australia and Czechoslovakia, for the title.

SENIOR HOOP SQUADS STARTING PRACTICES

Two senior "A" basketball teams have scheduled opening workouts and have invited interested players to came and try out.

Victoria Scorpions of the Inter-City Men's Dogwood League hold their first practice session starting at 7 tonight at Henderson Park. Bob Burrows Sr., who has replaced Dave Henson as manager, said several exhibition games will be played prior to the opening of the regular season during the first week of November.

On Monday, the Saanich Westerners women's team will begin workouts at 8:30 p.m. in Reynolds High School.

Molsons, Royals Boost Offenses

Gorge Molsons and Cosmopolitan Royals clash at 2:15 p.m. Saturday in the opening regular-season match of the Vancouver Island Soccer League's premier division at Royal Athletic Park.

Molsons, who finished eighth out of 10 teams last season, should be much improved this time around.

Coach Roy St. Denis bases this hope on some added scoring punch. The return of link men Mark Robb and George Hyne and striker Bill Walker is expected to produce more goals.

Royals, who finished fifth last season, also gained some extra power with the return of striker Rudi Kuebler, who led the league in scoring two seasons ago.

Three matches are scheduled for Sunday, all starting at 2:15 p.m.

Two Canucks Aim at Golds

MUNICH, West Germany (CP) — Canada's four-man clay pigeon team won a silver medal Thursday at the world shooting championships, getting nipped by the United States squad which set a world record.

The Canadians, however, have a chance to win two individual gold medals with John Primrose and Susan Nattrass, both of Edmonton, leading their divisions.

The American quartet scored 388 out of a possible 400 hits, beating Canada's team of Ed Wladichuk of Hamilton, Larry Ivany of Oshawa, James Platz of Edmonton and Primrose by two hits.

Spain took the bronze medal with 380.

The team titles are decided on the basis of 100 shots and the individual competitions from 200 shots.

Primrose has a perfect 100 after two days. Wladichuk is tied for third at 48-50—98 with Adam Smelczynski of Poland. Ivany is well off the leaders with a 44-47—91 total. Charvin Dixon of the U.S. is second with 99.

Miss Nattrass, the 1974 world clay pigeon champion, retained her lead in the women's event with a 46 Thursday for 94 of a possible 100 targets. She had a 48 the first day.

Annual Races at UVic

Competitors in a variety of classes will be racing in the fourth annual University of Victoria cross-country run starting at 11 a.m. Saturday in Centennial Stadium.

Junior races for competitors aged 12 years and over get underway at 11, the open women's race starts at 11:30 and the 10,000-metre open men's event begins at 12 noon. There are also classes for senior high school boys and girls (aged 15 and over) as well as joggers.

Runners must register one-half hour prior to the start of their race.

COACH IN THE DARK

With two exhibition matches scheduled this weekend, most of the players who have turned up to try out for the varsity Vikings and junior varsity Norsemen don't really know each other yet.

Hughes has been eyeing about 50 candidates at workouts and expects to keep 13 or 14 for the Vikings and 16 for the Norsemen.

Vikings are scheduled to tackle the University of Washington Huskies on Saturday and the University of Mexico on Sunday. Both games start at 2 p.m. in Centennial Stadium.

The Huskies offer full soccer scholarships and are reported to be almost entirely composed of foreign players who have played together for three seasons.

Stay Clean and Stay in Hockey

By ERNIE FEDORUK

The National Hockey League's security officials quietly slipped in to Victoria to remind the Vancouver Canuck players to mind their manners. Then, quickly and just as quietly, they slipped away . . .

Security isn't new. The NHL has been operating a security staff for a few years, but office manners is a greater concern these days because the United States government's increased attention at the border.

Working permits, for example, aren't being issued freely. If the job can be handled by a U.S. citizen, immigration clearance becomes very difficult.

Fortunately, for the hockey players, Canadians fill the work bill somewhat better than their American cousins.

Still, crossing the border isn't as easy as it used to be, and that's why Al Wiseman and Barney Johannson, came around to speak to the Canuck players at their training-camp headquarters.

Wiseman works out of NHL headquarters while Johannson is the resident security official in Vancouver.

A former RCMP officer, Johannson said Thursday their talks with the players were "just a general discussion on behaviour."

"We just warn the players about their off-ice associations, and the troubles that might result," he said. "When you're in the public's eye as much as an NHL player, it's easy to become overly involved."

"We don't become involved in their personal life, but we let them know we're around to help them in any way we can."

Wiseman and Johannson stress the fact that any criminal conviction "can be the end of a career."

Fifteen of the 18 NHL teams are located in the U.S. If a Canadian player is denied entry into the U.S. because of a conviction, he may as well forget about playing in the NHL.

Resources Publication Bridges Education Gap

Some rambling notes along the trail:

Despite criticism in certain sectors, the new resources publication Land appears off to a great start . . . A positive response from the general public and teachers in particular has been overwhelming . . . Land replaces the provincial forest service magazine ForesTalk and comes under the wing of the Environment and Land Use Committee (ELUC) . . . Although I'm not too crazy about the starkness of the title, Land serves a useful function and probably costs each of us less than 10 cents in tax money per year . . . The function can be summed up in one word: education . . .

We are gradually moving away from the medieval concept of single-use management of our resources and the public should be informed about the manner which this is being accomplished . . . Planning, per se, isn't very controversial and seldom makes newspaper headlines . . . Radio and television are even less likely to delve into the subject . . . That is the role of Land . . . Upon reading the initial issue, which was mailed to every household in the province, I couldn't see any of the "socialist oriented" propaganda found by Victoria Socred MLA Neil Morrison during his "cursory glance" . . . And I don't think, at least with editor Gerry Graham at the helm, there ever will be . . .

If you haven't yet done so, read the first issue . . . The lead piece by Alistair Crerar, director of the ELUC secretariat, is especially informative about the makeup and direction in which this body is moving . . . It will likely erase a few of the misconceptions about this organization that I've even found among resource people . . . My card, asking the government to continue my "free" subscription to the publication is in the mail . . . Is yours?

★ ★ ★

Over 70 people were on hand in Vancouver last weekend for the first in a series of open meetings planned to provide personnel involved in the federal-provincial salmonid enhancement program with some guidance from a grassroots level . . . The meetings are being organized by the B.C. Wildlife Federation but the turnout of people not connected with any federation club was encouraging . . . Approximately $1.75 million will be spent this year to get the enhancement program rolling and about $4 million is earmarked for spending in 1976, when a number of pilot projects are expected to begin . . . A meeting is in the works for Vancouver Island . . . If you care about fishing for salmon, trout or steelhead, plan to attend . . . If the federal government decides there isn't enough public support for the effort, they might not feel justified in spending the money . . . And then we'd all be the losers.

South Vancouver Island Rangers will hold a practice trap and rifle shoot starting at 9 a.m. Sunday on their Luxton Road grounds. Everyone is welcome.

Sooke Athletic Association recently released the names of winners in its inaugural salmon derby which ran July 1 to Sept. 1 . . . The top five were: Gerald Halikowski (45:08 pounds), Gino Kossowski (45), Harry Davies (44:08), John Wesley (44:08) and L. Carlson (44) . . . In addition, 32 hidden weight prizes were given away . . . G. A. Lauder won the main draw prize of a boat, motor and trailer.

Howard English of the Amalgamated Conservation Society has come up with a fairly precise estimate of the number of fry now present in Goldstream . . . As of mid-September there are about 40,000, which is around 3,000 more than the figure given here last week as a preliminary estimate . . . It's looking better and better.

Salmon fishing might recover in Sooke to Oak Bay waters in time for this weekend . . . The commercial nets, which as in the past have been almost completely wiping out sport fishing success while down, were lifted Tuesday night after a one'day extension . . . Pirates Like Putty In Carlton's Hands

By The Associated Press

Pittsburgh Pirates were only Pittsburgh Pussycats to Steve Carlton.

"I wish he had hung a few curve balls instead of those snap dragons he was throwing," said Willie Stargell after the Philadelphia left-hander tamed his hot-hitting Pirates 4-1 with a four-hitter Thursday night.

The Pirates, who have been hitting like there's no tomorrow, were just putty in the hands of Carlton in the National League baseball game at Veterans Stadium.

"He got us out in key situations," said Stargell. "He had a good breaking ball and a slider on occasion. He threw the heat (fastball) to spots. He was real sharp tonight."

Carlton had to be to silence noisy Pittsburgh—a team that had collected 51 hits and 40 runs in its last three games.

Carlton won the game under pressure conditions, for a loss would have killed any flickering hopes the Phillies might have had of catching the first-place Pirates in the National League East.

As it is, it still would take a miracle. The Phillies pulled within six games of the Pirates, whose "magic" number for clinching the division remained at five. Any combination of Pittsburgh wins and Philadelphia defeats adding up to five would eliminate the Phillies.

Schmidt broke a 1-1 tie in the second when he led off with a home run to increase his league-leading total to 37. Larry Bowa singled, stole second and scored on Jay Johnstone's single to push the Phillies' lead to 3-1.

Luzinski, hitting in his 11th consecutive game, hit his 33rd homer of the season to make it 4-1 and drop Pirates starter Dock Ellis's record to 9-8. The Pirates' only run off Carlton came in the first inning on Rennie Stennett's triple and a single by Manny Sanguillen.

STRIKE ONE, FOUL BALL, OR DANGEROUS WEAPON?

The youth's father, David Manning, 38, said Grimsley deliberately threw a baseball at spectators behind the bullpen after being harassed by bleacher fans while he was warming up in the third inning.

A hearing on whether the complaint should be issued against Grimsley has been scheduled for Tuesday in Roxbury District Court.

The elder Manning had said he intended to file criminal charges against Grimsley, but his attorney, Robert Wolfe, said Thursday night that Manning decided to hold off until it is determined just how seriously his son was injured.

The youth was listed in satisfactory condition at Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary. A spokesman there said it would be several days before the extent of damage to the eye can be determined.

Grimsley said the incident was an accident.

"I was warming up and didn't mean to hit him. I'm sorry as hell the thing happened."

Huntting Cup Matches Sunday

Most of British Columbia's leading women golfers will be on hand Sunday when teams representing Victoria and Vancouver compete in the annual Huntting Cup matches at Victoria Golf Club.

Heading the 12-member Vancouver team are Marilyn Palmer, Val White and Flo McFall. All three were members of the interprovincial team this year along with Victoria's Dale Shaw.

11:07 — Flo McFall (Quil) vs Margaret Todd (V); Dorothy Leighton (Fraser) vs Shirley Naysmith (GV).

Ullman an Oiler

EDMONTON (CP) — Veteran Norm Ullman joined Edmonton Oilers of the World Hockey Association Thursday and told a news conference he wishes he had made the move from the National Hockey League three years earlier.

"I think I can still play, although I didn't play much in Toronto last year," he said.

Kershaw Hasn't Lost That Winning Touch

Gary Kershaw has won every local superstock race he's entered this year at Western Speedway but will finish no better than third in the driver points standings.

Kershaw, who won the points title last year with 16 main event victories, has been in eight of 14 superstock runs so far but had two wins taken away last May because his engine was improperly installed.

The points leader is Tony Johnson and the only other driver who can catch him with two racing dates laft this season is Neil Montgomery. Johnson has 1,389 poinnts and Montgomery 1,225.

Bill Bartley leads the claimer standings with 956 points but five drivers — Rick Carlson, Rick Haskell, Bill Hitchcox, Ernie Schoor and Jim Smith — Could catch him.

Superstocks and claimers go Saturday at Western with time trials at 7 p.m. and racing at 8.

Hungry Dolphins Face Tough Test

Victoria Dolphins face the toughest team in the Big Four Football Conference at Royal Athletic Park Sunday when they take on first-place Vancouver Meralomos.

Dolphins are still looking for their first win of the season while Meralomos, who got off to a slow start this season, have regained the winning form that propelled them into last year's Canadian final.

Dolphins will be without fullbacks Christie Sinclare and Kerry Lacroix, out for the season with injuries, but all others are healthy.

AROUND OUR SHORES

Some of the happiest people on the water this Saturday will be aboard 36 boats of the Capital City Yacht Club.

They are the 50 blind people and their 40 guides who will be guests of the club on its annual fishing derby for the blind.

Fleet captain Tom Dalzell, who is organizing this event, reports that CCYC has been doing this for 20 years. He's still not sure who gets the biggest kick out of things — the blind people catching their first fish or their hosts.

The South Vancouver Island Lions Club works in partnership with the blub on this one. Headed by Larry Poitras, the Lions will provide transportation to and from the boats and will put up a hefty chunk of cash for prizes, which indlude one for the largest salmon, another for the largest fish and third for the most unusual fish netted.

Things get under way at the club's biue Heron Bay headquarters at 8:45 a.m. The prizegiving takes place at 3 p.m. with refreshments provided by the club's women members.

The Turkey Head Sailing Association starts a new season of racing in waters off Oak Bay Marina on Sunday. There will be two races, one starting at 10 a.m. and the other, 1:30 p.m.

Over at cadboro Bay, Royal Victoria yacht Club dinghy sailors will be racing on Saturday beginning at 1:35 p.m., five minutes after the first race of the Cal 20s' fall and winter season starts.

Sixteen Lasers turned out for last Saturday's season-opener, which was won by Andrew Burton. He edged out Bob Britten, Brian Wright and Tim Roots. Don Mais won in Fireball competition, runner-up being Gerry Trueman.

There was combined Davidson and El Toro racing with Peter Townshend coming first over-all. Next were Rocky Rochfort and R. Wilkinson.

★ ★ ★

The Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association, plans racing for both dinghies and keel boats on Sunday. Both will begin at 10 a.m.

Fred Douglas' Virtue was the winning keel boat in last Sunday's competition, followed by Paul Jensen's Dania and Ed Haines' Lotte. Top Sailerette was Doc Beaudry's Black Hawk.

The Victoria Canoe Club plans an excursion in the Sooke harbor area this Sunday. Jim and Sharon Skoge are organizing this one and can be reached at 642-3403.

Last Chance for Points In Mt. Brenton Tourney

Cash and merchandise prizes will be the obvious targets for a field of 144 golfers, including 25 professionals, but points also will be sought at this weekend's Mt. Brenton Dairy Queen Open tournament.

It's the last chance for Vancouver Island players to gain points counting towards the third annual Winspear Trophy matches.

Points accumulated in various Island tournaments determine the top 10 pros and an equal number of amateurs who will play off for the trophy. The Winspear Trophy matches, which includes foursomes and singles play, are tentatively scheduled at Glen Meadows Oct. 4 and 5.

Shotputter Wins Medal

ROME (AP-CP) — Bishop Dolegiewicz of Laval, Que., won the men's shot put event on his last try Thursday with a heave of 19.45 metres during the opening day of the world university track and field Games.

It was a fine day for the Canadians as Thelma Wright of Vancouver placed second to Natalia Andrei of Romania in the women's 3000 metres but set a Canadian open and native record. Miss Wright finished in eight minutes, 54.94 seconds to better her previous listed record of 9:03.8 set last August. Miss Andrei's winning time was 8:54.09.

At Long Last Love—in Hull

HULL, Que. (CP) — Three sections of an $88,000 sculpture entitled Love were finally reunited Wednesday outside a federal government building in this national capital region community.

Office workers watched from the windows of the 26-storey federal consumer affairs department building as a huge armed forces helicopter carrying the 5,000-pound third section of the art piece, descended into a nearby parking lot, dropped its load and whirred away.

"I'm very, very happy," declared Henry Waton Jones of Montreal, who was commissioned three years ago by the federal public works department under its fine art program to create the steel and glass fibre structure.

However, Jones said he will not pay the $3,000 moving bill that the department is sending him. He said he has not yet received full payment for his sculpture.

The bottom and top section, which resemble a flexed knee and a stylized head, were taken to Hull on a flat-bed truck early in July from a workshop at Renfrew, Ont., 60 miles away.

The third piece — a rump or a breast, depending on your viewpoint — was too large to be moved on highways.

Love may not be assembled until next spring because the glue used to fasten the three segments does not bind in cool weather, Jones said.

Possum Slim On Probation

TAVARES, Fla.—Ed Possum Slim Myers, 105, who killed a woman in an argument over money, was sentenced to 15 years probation Thursday and told never to return to Lake County, even for church service.

"All I want to do is go home," said Myers, who pleaded guilty to manslaughter in the June 7 shooting death of Louise Stewart, 51, of Sorrento.

Myers said he shot Mrs. Stewart after she invited him to a birthday party and then stole part of his social security money.

NEW YORK — Jacqueline Onassis danced until the early hours Thursday with Frank Sinatra, and the partnership had the gossips and the newspaper columnists speculating.

Police had to hold back sight-seers as Mrs. Onassis — widow of Greak millionaire Aristotle Onassis and President John Kennedy — and Sinatra sampled New York's night life.

Mrs. Onassis first went to the theatre where Sinatra is singing with Ella Fitzgerald and the Count Basie band.

Then she and Sinatra and another couple ate at the 21 Club and continued to the Rainbow Grill to catch a late cabaret show.

The New South Wales equity court was told that the man's mother began the deception after he was born illegitimately in 1914, when she was 20.

She and other members of the family kept the secret so that the man grew up believing that his mother was his sister and that her parents were his parents.

TEENAGER SEEKING YELLOW BRICK ROAD?

AURORA, Ont. (CP) — Police believe a 14-year-old girl missing since Saturday has flown to England in hopes of meeting rock star Elton John.

They say Karen Kay, a Grade 9 student in this town north of Toronto, obtained a passport without the knowledge of her parents, saved money for a round-trip plane ticket and took off for London Saturday from Toronto international airport.

Her parents say the girl has been collecting Elton John records and articles about the rock star for 18 months. Since she left, they have discovered she had written more than 30 songs which she hoped to present to him.

Advantages to Condominium Life —If You're Emotionally Suited

By LYNNE GORDON

The condominium craze has been gaining momentum across Canada after a very slow start in 1967 when they first appeared on the marketplace. Canadians hung on to their dream of owning their own home but as prices skyrocketed, they grudgingly turned to condominiums as a compromise.

The problem is that many consumers began to rush into condominium living without understanding that it was a completely different lifestyle. It was not the same as living in a one-family dwelling and even completely different than living in rental accommodations.

Over-eager developers and real estate agents, cashing in on the swing to condominium living, tend to promote it as the best of both worlds; all the advantages, they gloat, of owning your own space with all the freedom associated with renting. They point out that you can build up equity and still unload all the unpleasant chores of home ownership — toting garbage, shovelling snow, cutting the lawn, fixing leaky roofs.

But a condominium is a "hybrid" accommodation and the advantages sound great in theory but can work very differently in practice.

First, remember, the word condominium doesn't apply to the physical structure — a residential condominium can be a high-rise apartment, a low-rise apartment, a detached house, a townhouse or any kind of shape you can imagine.

What makes a condominium is that individual owners have agreed to share ownership of common property while retaining ownership of their own individual unit.

This comes as a profound shock to most people when they see that their neighbors will have an important voice in their affairs.

There is still not enough information to guide people before they make an emotional as well as financial investment in a condominium.

Instead of being in charge of your own home completely, you must be prepared to work through a board of directors and a management group. Are you the kind of person that can handle this. This is a form of communal living where you are restricted by the decision of the majority. It means you must get along with your neighbors.

In fact, you should proteet your interests by going to meetings and casting a vote on how you want the complex run.

CAVEAT EMPTOR

And don't think that the decisions of the board can't affect you intensely. The majority can decide to take on major expenses such as building a recreation centre or a day nursery. They can decide to add expensive concrete planters filled with flowers, iron grillwork, courtyard tiles, a swimming pool ... and they vote and win, you can expect extra assessments.

You must abide by the rules about pets, using barbecues, making noise.

You will have to get permission to change your unit structurally or to use it for commercial purposes.

You will get emotionally involved if your neighbor neglects his unit, because it can depreciate the value of the project as a whole.

The condominium manager will have the right to enter your unit if it's necessary to get his work done — whether you are present or not.

You will have to pay for maintenance, snow shovelling, garbage collection and repairs.

The amount of privacy you enjoy depends on the building you choose and the kind of neighbors you have and their lifestyle. The biggest complaint centres around walls so thin you can hear your neighbor flush the john.

Another drawback is that your investment and home are largely at the mercy of your neighbors.

The problem is that most prospective purchasers don't read the by-laws until they are hooked.

The bylaws of the corporation are the rules of the corporation by which every condominium owner is bound. The bylaws indicate how the corporation will be organized, what a unit owner may or may not do with his unit and how common expenses will be assessed. Bylaws can be changed but it takes a hefty majority. It takes a vote of 66 2-3 per cent, or higher for a change.

Make sure you have enough time to look over the bylaws carefully before you commit yourself to a purchase. Decide whether you are the type that likes to be knee deep in politics and business meetings — or whether you resist decisions by majority rule.

To make a condominium successful, you must understand your responsibilities.

Disagreements occur when rules are enforced too strongly or not at all. It's easier to get co-operation when the condominium development has less than 100 units. Bigger than that it's apt to get more impersonal and difficult to manage.

There are advantages to condominium living, as well as problems. But the first decision you have to make is whether or not you are emotionally suited to this way of life.

Next week I will focus on how to protect your financial investment and a look at some of the new condominium legislation to protect the consumer.

Lynne Gordon's new book, The Consumer's Handbook — 99 Commercial Rip-offs and How to Spot Them is now available, through this newspaper, at $3.95 per copy. Marriage Began to Fail But Divorce Long Delayed

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Peter and Diane's marriage began falling apart four months after the wedding. But they did not initiate divorce proceedings for another 14 years.

There were 36,704 divorces in Canada in 1973, of which 13,781 originated in Ontario.

"People just don't know how to relate," said Jack Watkins, a social worker with the Family Counselling Service here.

"Many people don't know how to give love or receive it. They find it easier to be critical or condemning than supportive."

An inability to show appreciation for the good qualities in themselves and their partners is one of the most common problems facing couples, said Dr. Simon Ramesar, director of Kingston General Hospital's Community Health Centre.

"I think the majority of people want to be honest and straightforward," Dr. Ramesar said. "But they are afraid if they are, they will be criticized, ridiculed, rejected or subjected to public censure.

"For example, a lot of women have feelings of sexual attraction toward other men but they are afraid to tell their husbands. A lot of persons end up doing things in the false notion they should protect the other person's feelings. They hide within themselves how they are really feeling."

Adultery is mentioned by only seven per cent of Mr. Watkin's counselling clients.

Marriage experts say adultery is usually an effect and not a cause of marital discord, said Dr. Ramesar. However, he added, "sexual difficulties can cause marital difficulties and marital difficulties can cause sexual difficulties."

He said as an energetic, outgoing individual, he began going out with his friends when his wife worked on evening shifts and he eventually met another girl.

Although this affair broke up, he said, after more problems he started "running around" again.

"Our marriage started off wrong and just never got straight," he said.

"It was 80 per cent my fault because of the environment I grew up in. But she wasn't strong enough. She should have pulled the reins in. She was a real quiet, home-type. I was really gung-ho."

Now he plans on a second marriage. He advised couples not to follow his and Diane's pattern.

He said marriage partners should develop "pride" in their situation and have a lot of patience.

Oddfellows Net $5,000 Toward Wheelchair Bus

The Oddfellows and Rebekah's Extended Care Hospital Committee raised $5,000 towards purchase of a wheelchair bus for the Gorge Road Hospital in a car raffle.

Wilf Edwards, committee chairman, said the winner of the 1975 Pacer is Mrs. J. Pollock, 2915 Admirals.

The committee plans other fund-raising events to make up the remaining cost of the $20,000 bus, similar to one donated earlier by the group to the Saanich Peninsula Extended Care Hospital.

MORE TO PHYSICAL EDUCATION THAN MERELY FUN AND GAMES

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

Physical education may be fun but it's not just fun and games, says the phys ed consultant for Greater Victoria school board.

Dave Turkington thinks phys ed should be as important a learning experience as any part of a child's school day.

The new approach in phys ed is exploratory, Turkington said in an interview. It poses problems which students must solve.

For example, instead of making every student turn somersaults a teacher mightr challenge each student to find three ways to roll across the mat, he said.

Or the class might practise "stretch and curl" moments — stretching arms and legs and then bending down. The teacher might ask each child to perform a sequence of five different stretch and curl movements.

Although high schools have full-time gym teachers, most elementary schools do not. Here the regular classroom teacher is normally responsible for phys ed.

Turkington and three itinerant phys ed teachers travel around the schools giving workshops for teachers and suggesting new methods.

The new approach does away with much of the army boot camp atmosphere of phys ed — the drills, the constant blowing of whistles by gym teachers, the insistence that every child do exactly the same thing.

Turkington said he controls his phys ed classes just by saying "freeze" in a normal voice. Another way to do without a whistle is simply for the teacher to raise his hand in the air as a signal for silence.

One of his primary rules is that every child have a piece of apparatus to play with.

"Nobody asks children to pass the pencil around the classroom," he said. So when a class is learning volleyball, every child should have a ball of some kind to practise with.

And when children are playing softball Turkington would rather see five games going at the same time with only a few players each, than two teams of 15 and a great lineup of kids standing around waiting for their turn at bat.

Physical education should ideally give each student a positive attitude toward athletics and a good self-image, said Turkington.

That means no pitting good athletes against bad and making the poor athletes feel like losers.

Phys ed should also teach youngsters about their bodies and how they work, he said.

At the Grade 6 and 7 level, formal instruction in volleyball, basketball and other sports should be included with the exploratory phys ed taught in low grades, said Turkington.

These days almost every sport is offered to high school students, from the standard soccer, gymnastics, and track and field to archery, canoeing, bowling and tennis.

Swimming for Victoria youngsters will get a boost this year with new agreements being worked out between Greater Victoria school board and the new Esquimalt and Oak Bay pools for school use of the pools.

Almost every elementary school will have at least one grade level swimming this year, which is double the number last year, he said.

One of the new wrinkles in phys ed is the claim that schools should emphasize "lifetime sports" like golf and canoeing that people can do in middle and old age instead of basketball and volleyball which people stop once they're over 30.

Turkington said he agreed with the idea a few years ago but doesn't now.

"We have sold the human body down the drain too early," he said.

There's a 67-year-old Vancouver man who still plays soccer, said Turkington, and there are many who continue to play tennis and basketball in middle age.

"So what's a lifetime sport? Just about anything."

Free For The Asking

By HARRIET HART

If you are looking for a relatively inexpensive protein food, consider mackerel. The Blue Mackerel is plentiful in Canadian waters, especially near the Banks of Newfoundland, in the Gulf of St. Lawrence and other areas in North-eastern Canada.

The 24-page illustrated booklet Why Not Mackerel? contains a chart from which you can see the high nutritional value of mackerel compared with other protein foods such as salmon, tuna or ground meat.

You will also find several palate-pleasing recipes.

To please and impress your family and friends, why not treat them to a quick-and-easy smoked mackerel soup. They'll smack their lips!

If you are short of ideas for a light lunch, extend your cooking repertoire with sea cakes served with a zesty sauce. For a buffet luncheon, surprise your visitors with an elegant east coast aspic.

As an entree choose between Mackerel Hawaiin, Curry Indian style or Mackerel Noodle casserole.

The booklet is available from Information Division, Environment Canada, Fisheries and Marine Service, Ottawa, Ontario K1A 0H3. Please allow at least 2-3 weeks for delivery.

NEW FOOD CO-OP EXPANDING

The Springridge Food Co-op has raised $3,500 from more than 100 members who also volunteer from four to six hours a month in operating the store on Fernwood Avenue.

The store is open three days a week — Tuesday from 10 to 4, Thursday from 2 to 8 and Saturday, 10 to 4.

There will be a general meeting Sept. 24 at 7:30 in the Native Friendship Centre hall.

The store opened Sept. 6 after more than two months of work by founding members in restoring a former store.

While stock is limited now members hope to handle meat and fish on a pre-order basis to determine member needs.

DRIVERS NEED CERTIFICATES

VANCOUVER (CP) — Drivers in the province now should be carrying a valid drivers insurance certificate, as well as a valid drivers licence, Norman Bortnick, General manager of the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia said Wednesday.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said during the 15-week ICBC strike that law enforcement officials should not charge drivers for not carrying up-to-date drivers' insurance certificates if they had expired during the strike. The ruling was in effect until Sept. 15, 14 days after the strike was settled.

Bortnick said failure to produce either of the documents was a breach of contract with the corporation and could result in claims being denied.

WOMEN USE MOST TRANQUILIZERS

QUEBEC (CP) — Women consume a greater amount of tranquillizers than men, a panel discussion on women and drugs at the 10th annual conference of the Canadian Foundation on alcohol and drug dependency was told Wednesday.

Louise Nadeau, a director of a Montreal drug treatment program called Portage, said many married women who remain at home turn to alcohol and mood-altering tranquilizers or sleeping pills.

Despite this growing drug abuse problem among women, however, female drug users often refuse treatment, She said the stigma attached to alcoholic or drug abuse and the problem of finding someone to care for the children of a woman during treatment may be factors.

Another speaker told the panel women should avoid alcohol, tobacco and other drugs during pregnancy because these substances may damage the foetus.

Gilliane Nosal, of Laval University, said malnutrition was a side effect of alcoholism and drug use which affects growth and brain development of a child.

She also said over-consumption of vitamins, particularly vitamins A, D and K, may prove harmful to unborn babies.

Indian Artist Sheds Comfort To Pursue Her Own Career

By LUISE PUTCAMP

NEW YORK (AP) — Zarina is packing again. She stuffs papers into a striped, woven bag.

"My filing cabinet," says the Indian artist wryly. Into her new Honda, Zarina will put this an a portfolio of put this and a portfolio of tools. And a few saris.

Then she'll head once more into a strange country.

Zarina will be leaving behind a posh Manhattan apartment with many rooms, two houseboys, and a view of the East River.

In Los Angeles, she'll live in one room on a modest street.

Nearby is Indian Ink Gallery, first to show Zarina's work in the United States. She has friends there.

Zarina has no home, she says. She's a career artist.

She has been an artist almost as long as she has been a wife. Her woodprints and silk screen prints have hung in India, Greece, Norway, Japan, Poland, West Germany. Her art has won Zarina awards and brought her some money.

Zarina is a small, dark woman who likes French movies, often wears blue jeans and sometimes practises yoga. She can converse in five languages and cook in several.

Her problems are not exotic. Women and artists who aren't Indian will recognize many of them.

As a little girl in Aligarth, India, Zarina was determined "to be my own person, and to be an artist."

But the stern-visaged Moslem professor, her father, made her study mathematics instead. Then Zarina's marriage was arranged — to a boy she'd known most of her life.

"I thought marriage would be like one long date," mused Zarina, 17 years later. "I didn't realize it would mean always doing what the other person wanted, thinking what he thought, seeing people he wanted to see."

Zarina's husband was sent next to Paris. There, in 1964, at the atelier of S. W. Hayter, printmakers' printmaker, she began learning — and unlearning.

One day Zarina told her husband: "I'm leaving."

The darkly handsome diplomat was reasonable. "But how can you?" he said. "We're having a dinner party tonight!"

Zarina flew off to London wearing a Courreges coat with no money in the pockets. She was hungry. She was cold. But she told herself: "No man will ever again interfere with my life and tell me what to do!"

It was in New Delhi, in 1968, Zarina said, that "my life as an artist really began."

She rented a studio. This was not something a proper Indian wife does.

Zarina held Sunday soirees "Everybody came," she said. "Even my husband. Bringing his friends."

Zarina tried tapestry design. People and institutions bought her large tapestries. She tried sculpture. A pipe company put Zarina's waving forest of flexible metal in the middle of its exposition pavilion.

And Zarina never stopped making prints.

Some in a New Delhi gallery caught the eye of Joan P. Miller of Los Angeles. She was in India on a buying trip for her gallery. She demanded to meet the artist.

India Ink Gallery held Zarina shows in 1973 and 1974, her first in the U.S. It will hold another in October. This summer, galleries in New York City and San Francisco showed Zarina's newest work.

She calls it "white-on-white." Remote, ironic, it shows symbols of some women's lives. A baby bottle. A spool of thread.

Logic Missing In Son's Death

DALLAS (AP) — Phil Schilt is a mathematician, and for him there was no logic, nothing a man could wrap his hands around and say "this killed my son."

But something did kill his son — Sudden Infant Death Syndrome — a phenomenon that physicians have been unable to find a reason for.

It just happens. And it happened to Schilt and his wife, Lynne, when the couple lived in New Jersey where Schilt was employed as a computer specialist for Columbia Broadcasting Systems.

Schilt, 32, is a father in a society which often expects a John Wayne toughness from fathers who have lost sons. But Schilt agonizes over the death of four-month-old Philip to this day — three years later.

He refuses to look at the baby's pictures.

"The baby was still up and I asked Lynne to put him to bed before I came home. That evening I thought I heard Lynne call me. As I turned around to face the crib, I sensed there was no life in our baby."

Schilt clutched at the lifeless form and told his wife to summon police. She saw the baby's arms hanging limp, screamed and raced for the telephone.

Schilt's frantic efforts to revive the child were useless.

"I am in the field of computers and my son's death held no logic for me. I was in a state of solitude. I choked on my words."

Mechanically, Schilt made all the arrangements for the infant's funeral and the couple began the trip to Schilt's hometown, Watertown, N.Y.

Though it was March, New York State was still deep in winter, the ground tough and unyielding, the sky a hardened grey.

"I recall drinking a hell of a lot of scotch," he said. "The day of the funeral was awful. We had the coffin sealed and it looked like an oversized egg basket. It was so hard to believe my son was in there, and even today I sometimes ask myself, 'Was the baby really buried?' "

Months later, Schilt still couldn't handle his memories of Philip. "I didn't like the apartment any more after the baby died. The afghan I laid him on that night stayed in mothballs 10 months. There was a picture, a plaque sort of thing, on the wall behind the couch that would make the baby be all smiles. I couldn't stand to look at it."

The Schilts now have another son, a two-year-old. And true to his vow, Schilt has named him Philip James II.

"I don't think there is a day I look at this one and don't think of the other one. I always think he would be this old, or he would this high. I just can't help but think of other one."

NO. 1 BABYSITTER

FORT McMURRAY, Alta. (CP) — Blanche Reynolds is Fort McMurray's No. 1 babysitter, and to about a dozen children here she's also the lady with the world's largest sandbox.

Mrs. Reynolds lives with her husband in a renovated ex-restaurant near this booming oil sands community in north-eastern Alberta. There's a small forest of swings sprouting in her yard next to an oversize sandbox, where 14 children happily gouge tunnels.

An abbreviated chain-link fence runs around the yard. The fence has no opening — adults simply step over it, but the toddlers inside show no desire to stray. If anything, more children want to get into Mrs. Reynolds' yard than out of it.

Recent studies have stressed the acute need for day-care centres for children here, but that's no news to Mrs. Reynolds. The demands on her babysitting services have grown to strenuous that recently she applied to upgrade it to a full-fledged day-care centre.

When she came to Fort McMurray three years ago, kids were the last thing on her mind. The couple's two children had long since grown up, and 14 years of working in an Ontario factory gave her no obvious qualifications for the job.

It began with a single newspaper advertisement asking for a woman to look after children in a home half-days. She answered and from then on she was "swamped."

The 14 children she now looks after range from six months of age to kindergarten level. Fees are $6 a day for the smallest tots. If two children are sent from the same family, they're charged $8 daily. However, rates are flexible.

Meals aren't confined to rigid times because the children "don't want it down to a routine — I find it keeps them happier this way."

'Houseguestitis'

DEAR ABBY: Help! I am suffering from acute and chronic "Houseguestitis."

Tomorrow morning I will place an ad in our local newspaper to sell my lovely guest-room furniture. It's only one year old, looks like new, but I have aged a lot since installing it.

I've had wave after wave of houseguests for the past seven weeks — all either uninvited or self-invited — and the end isn't in sight.

My nerves are shot, my cuticles are bleeding, my purse and gas tank are empty, my yard, house, children and pets are somewhat neglected, and I'm exhausted.

One more call from friends asking me to please pick them up at the airport (85 miles round trip) will send me to the funny farm.

Most of my friends in this area have the same problem. Our husbands escape to their offices and try to ignore the mess.

I wish that people could understand that a casual, "We'd like to see you if you visit in this area," is not an invitation to move in with us.

So, tomorrow, the furniture goes on sale and the hotel closes.

ALWAYS A HOSTESS

DEAR ALWAYS: Why give up your guest facilities? All you have to do is say, "I'm sorry, but we can't accommodate guests now," when unwanted guests invite themselves.

DEAR ABBY: Is there a polite way to tell people that you don't want their old hand-me-down clothes?

I am three months pregnant, and no sooner did I announce it at the office when almost every old lady present volunteered to lend me her old maternity clothes!

Abby, some of those clothes are five and six years old! Also, don't they realize that maybe I would like the pleasure of selecting the styles and colors that look best on me?

Please print this as I know there are other young pregnant girls who have been

Today's Women Elegant, Casual

TORONTO (CP) — Today's fashionable woman, attuned to the times, is dressing in an elegant but more casual way says Toronto designer John Artibello.

"She dresses to be admired but not noticed in an unpleasant way," he said, citing a bygone era when he would see a woman "so done up in the morning . . you wondered if she was going to a party or coming from one."

He said that this kind of ostentation, "went out with the beehive hairdo and flashy fads of the 60s."

Mr. Artibello said today's woman knows what suits her, takes the best out of fashion for herself and builds a wardrobe around it.

This fall, the trend is towards sweater dressing for daytime and long slinky dresses at night, he added.

"I don't like seeing pants everywhere. If you're going to a dinner party or the theatre, you can reward your hostess or escort by looking attractive.

"A woman doesn't have to have a lot of clothes to look smart, but it's a good idea to have a few fine feathers to wear at night."

Another Toronto designer, Vienna-born Maggy Reeves said: "Good taste counts, knowing when to put something on or leave it off. In brief, if you are in doubt, leave it off."

As for individuality, Miss Reeves said it can be achieved by doing a small thing like wearing a buckle at the side instead of the centre. Or pinning a brooch on the cuff of your suit rather than the lapel.

Fashion co-ordinator Norma Wildgoose said that since the sweater is the base for fall dressing, the skirt, shirt and sweater make a dressed-up look when they are in the same color.

"The layered look appears in all the new collections," she said. "A cardigan is worn over a turtleneck sweater and shirt topping a skirt or pants."

Welch Medical Report

By DR. WILLIAM J. WELCH

When historians remarked that in the 75-year period between 1750 and 1825 the death rate in Britain fell by 50 per cent, there was at first no hesitation in attributing that remarkable improvement in the public health to advances in the art and science of medicine.

On close examination, however, it was clear that the only significant preventive medical measure of that period — vaccination against smallpox — accounted for hardly more than six per cent of the drop. Among the many causes of the remainder of the fall were such mundane influences as the invention of the flush toilet and techniques for the fabrication of cast iron pipes.

A similar tendency to overlook the facts is apparent in our own day in the recurring theme in the pronouncements on the state of the nation's health, which insist that our practitioners must turn from their occupation with the care of the sick and devote themselves to preventive medicine, and thus the public health will be improved.

Such admonitions continue to be repeated, even though it is increasingly clear that the real enemies of the public health are to be found in the impact of social and environmental realities, which have very little if anything to do with the practice of medicine, preventive or otherwise.

The staggering proposition is entertained that the proper role of preventive medicine is to eradicate the self-destructive habits of 200 million people, eliminate poverty, bulldoze the slums and replace them with habitations fit for human beings and undo the aging process.

If that is to be its role, then perhaps one of the more obvious areas of reform would be to find out how to stem the flood of sweets, grease and assorted empty calories so many of us gorge on with a view to undoing the medical ravages of overweight.

Then, we might learn how to stop the crippling abuse of hard drugs in the inner cities, as well as in the suburbs. Reforming other drug problems, alcohol and cigarettes, is a larger challenge because we do not really accept that these are addiction problems. And we choose to ignore their manifest contribution to disease and death.

Eliminating poverty, getting rid of the slums and replacing them in both city and country, educating the ignorant and bringing back the aged from their brutal isolation — all this will occupy even more of the doctors' time.

In the meantime, who will care for the sick?

1 ♥	1 ♠	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♦	2 ♠	3 ♦	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♣	Pass
5 ♦	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Six of ♥.

South's bidding on the first two rounds was unenthusiastic. But when North, who had initially made a free bid at the two-level, next raised freely to three diamonds, South had visions of a slam. Hence his Blackwood bid of four notrump. When North announced that he had no aces, South forgot about the slam — and started to worry about making five diamonds.

West's opening heart lead was won by South's nine after both dummy and East had played low hearts. Under normal circumstances, declarer would play trumps immediately, and his only losers would be a trump and a spade trick. However, in view of West's heart lead into South's first-bid suit, it looked like the lead was a singleton. So South took out insurance against this possibility.

At trick two he cashed the club ace, and followed up by leading his remaining club to dummy's king. Then came the queen of clubs, South discarding his singleton spade. West ruffed this lead with the deuce.

The defenders could now no longer win a spade trick, smyfa wMro and there was no way for West to get East into the lead for the latter to play a heart for West to ruff with his remaining low trump. From here in, declarer's only loser was a trump to West's ace.

Had South, at trick two, led a trump (instead of playing clubs), he would in all probability have gone down. West would have taken the trump lead with his ace and, being a good player, he would surely have underled his ace and king of spades. East's queen would have won the trick; and a heart return would have been ruffed by West, for the setting trick.

In playing the hand as he did, declarer exchanged a trick for a trick; instead of losing a spade trick, he allowed West to win a trick with the deuce of trumps. In so doing, he broke the defenders' line of communication in spades.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological forecast for Saturday, Sept. 20.

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Full Moon position coincides now with temporary restriction, the removal of some fears, doubts. Activity is shown in connection with hospitals, institutions, unique organizations. You get backstage glimpses, comprehend puzzles.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accent on wish fulfillment. You organize, relate to one who is responsible for key project. You could become inextricably involved with member of opposite sex. Capricorn, Cancer persons figure in important ways.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You climb rungs of ladder — and there is room for you at top. Transaction is completed. Know it and don't repeat steps. Aries, Libra could be involved. One you respect consults you. Full Moon illuminates goals, fortifies ultimate faith in your own capabilities.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Long-range project comes into focus. You are able to take creative steps toward fulfillment of goal. Written material aids. Submit manuscript, plan, concept. Communication from a distance aids in sweeping aside doubts.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Trust hunch. Teach and learn; share knowledge. Refuse to be drawn back to past. Aquarian with "bright idea" seeks your approval. Be receptive, not foolhardy. Investments, interest rates, policies, financial transactions are featured.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Full Moon position coincides now with marriage, areas of life that are "double harness" or require co-operation and concession. Gemini, Sagittarius persons are in picture—and so is Pisces. You will be socializing, moving around, expressing views.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You could be bogged down in details. Attend to basic issues with out drowning creativity. Means stick to your own style and be sure others give you credit where due. Health and employment are featured. If thorough, mature, patient — you win major points, land on feet.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Change, creativity, variety — these are featured. You'll get answers to question. You also will realize that your skills are more in abundance than you might have imagined. Gemini, Virgo individuals figure prominently.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 2-Dec. 21): Home or domestic adjustment is featured. Your security is tested, is at stake — and it's up to you to obtain valid appraisals. Take nothing for granted. Check a variety of sources. If persistent, you save money — and can make a profit.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your ideas require some review, possible refinement. Define terms. Be sure others understand your meanings. See people as they are, not merely as they claim to be. Pisces, Virgo figure in picture.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Full Moon position lights up areas concerned with payments, collections, protection of personal possessions. You can consolidate position, let others know you command. Cancer, Capricorn persons figure prominently.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Lunar cycle is high — get going, trust yourself. You get favorable reactions, publicity and round out project. Aries, Libra individuals could help cut through red tape. You're going places and you have every right now to exude confidence.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are family-oriented. You are making domestic adjustments, could move this year and September has been a month when this is verified. Cancer, Capricorn persons play important roles in your life. You are sensitive, moody, loyal, have digestive problems and you can be sentimental to a fault.

8 CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Oliver Dapon, wish to thank the many friends and neighbors for their kindness shown to a dear husband, father, grandfather and great-grandfather, during his long illness. Special thanks to McCalls, Padre Tony Roberts and the Esquimalt Branch of the R.C.L., the Legionnaires who so kindly acted as pallbearers. Thanks too for the many cards of condolence received by me and the family. — Mrs. Ivy Dyson and Family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD, AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD. AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
—WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS.

NOBLE — In loving memory of Danny, who passed away Sept. 19, 1972.
His memory is as dear today
As in the hour he passed away.
—Lovingly remembered by his family.

GARDENING

Cyclamens Are Hardy, Varied

The countries of Asia Minor and the shores of the Mediterranean Sea are rich in flowers which grow from bulbs, corms and tubers. It is through that area we find cyclamens which are grown outdoors here in our coastal climate.

Some of these have been in cultivation over 300 years but still problems exist with names. Changes are frequent. Three centuries ago many hardy cyclamens were thought of as geographical variations and natural hybrids and were named accordingly.

Today with equipment capable of counting chromosomes (those little rod-like structures in every plant cell) it has been found the supposed variants to be distinct species. The supposed hybrids are found to have a chromosome count which makes it impossible for them to be a cross between the supposed parents.

As home gardeners we are interested in about six species. If we stick to the names commonly listed in catalogs we shall be fairly safe.

For those wishing to know the name changes consult the Journals of the Royal Horticultural Society (of London, England), volume 85 (1960) page 210, and volume 90 (1965) page 293. These two excellent articles are by Lewis Palmer.

The hardy outdoor cyclamens are true miniatures of the florist's indoor kinds, growing from hard cormous rootstocks which increase in size year by year, each producing many flowers. The leaves are heart-shaped to rounded, with intricate silvery leaf markings making some species especially attractive even when not in bloom.

Hardy species are all readily propagated by seed, the production of which is an interesting feature in itself. After the flower has faded and seed pod developed, the stem curls up like a watch spring, drawing the seed capsule down to soil level where it remains while seeds develop. Much later, some species in the next season, the stem responds to increasing air temperature, elongates to normal height, the capsule opens and seeds are dispersed.

With suitable conditions, these will germinate naturally so that a start of two or three corms becomes a colony. Seedlings produce the first flowers two-years after germinating.

These hardy cyclamens are not difficult to grow when we give them the required conditions; indeed they thrive and increase readily.

They do need some shade, such as filtered sunlight through high trees or a comparable place among shrubs; and they need protection from bitter northeast winter wind and southwest spring gales.

Perfect drainage of soil is essential as with all solid rootstocks: This we arrange by breaking the subsoil if necessary, mixing in broken brick and small stones so that water is not trapped.

Top dressing each year after growth begins, using either leafmould or compost—this is the only attention other than watering.

The longest flowering species is Cyclamen europeus, June to September. Flowers are purplish-red, strongly fragrant. Among small ferns and rocks it does well. C. neapolitanum is easy to get locally. It is blooming now (September) before leaves show. Flowers may be rosy pink to white and leaves are beautifully marbled when they appear later, persisting through winter and spring. As this species roots from top of corm as well as sides and bottom, it needs deeper planting. C. coum is one of the smallest flowering, in early spring with leaves; one of the hardiest, its leaves and flowers are unharmed by spring frosts.

Home Is Where The Violence Is

FREAK FUNGUS is discovery of Gordon Inder, groundskeeper at the Sims Estate in Kitchenor's Chicopee area. The giant puffball found on the grounds measures 23 inches in diameter but it is small compared to the world's largest found in England in 1971 which measured 62 inches.

LONDON (UPI) — A Commons committee has called for sweeping changes in the law to protect wives whose husbands beat them.

"Assaults in the home are just as serious as assaults in other places," said the non-partisan commiteee after hearing evidence Thursday of "unspeakable" cruelty in the home.

It said its evidence showed the problem of "battered wives" was world-wide, not simply one of British slums.

Conferences on the problem have been held in New York City.

Refugees for battered wives have been opened in Holland and New Zealand and other countries are investigating those unofficially operating in London.

"Home is for many a very violent place," the eight-man five-woman committee reported. "Yet the law provides barely any protection for maltreated wives."

Injuctions against the husband are "not worth the paper they are written on," it said. Police refuse to interfere in domestic quarrels, social services too often stop at the front door.

The committee said it heard evidence from one wife, who, in 16 years of marriage, had had all her teeth knocked out, her cheek pierced by a red-hot poker, and knife cuts requiring ten, three, five and seven stitches.

In one case, she told the committee, her husband doused her with gasoline and flicked burning matches at her.

"Some people, including some in high places, still scorn the thought of a battered wife," the committee said in its report.

"Is it not a husband's right to beat her? Is it not her fault? Should she not just leave? Might she not even enjoy the beating?"

The committee's major recommendation was that local governments should provide temporary "refuge" homes for battered wives and the national government should finance emergency accommodation.

"Many men would think harder before abusing their wives if they really believe that alternative accommodation was available," the report said.

Basque Fighters Seized

MADRID (Reuter) — Police said today they have captured 16 Basque nationalist guerrillas in raids in Madrid and Barcelona.

Among those reported captured was Jose Mugica Arregui, 30, alleged to be a key man in the Basque guerrilla organization ETA, and wanted for the assassination of Prime Minister Luis Carrero Blanco in 1973.

The arrests were announced as an alleged ETA man, Juan Parades Manot, went on trial for his life in Barcelona.

At the same time, five young leftist militants, including two women said to be pregnant, waited to hear whether death sentences passed on them would be carried out.

They were convicted at a brief court martial Thursday of killing a policeman last month.

Before executions —by firing squad or garrotte — can be carried out, Gen. Angel Campano, commander of the Madrid military region, must decide whether to sign the death warrants or order a retrial.

If the death warrants are signed, the government will be informed and execution order will be suspended for at least six hours during which Franco will decide whether to exercise clemency or uphold the death sentences.

Meanwhile, in Rome, a powerful bomb, apparently planted in protest of death sentences passed on the leftist militants in Spain, ripped through the main sales office of the Spanish airline Iberia during the night, police said.

No one was hurt, but the office, situated near the Grand Hotel, was devastated.

Trudeau Looking Afield

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau confirmed Thursday that he is considering recruiting another cabinet minister from outside the Liberal caucus.

But it is "most unlikely," he said, that the recruit will be Manitoba New Democrat Premier Ed Schreyer.

The prime minister was asked on his way from a cabinet meeting to comment on rumors around Parliament Hill for the past few days that he has approached Schreyer to become a member of a newly-shuffled cabinet.

Trudeau stated, following the abrupt resignation of Finance Minsiter John Turner last week, that he has to consider a "major shuffle" of ministers now even though he wanted to wait till after the New Year for changes on that scale.

Schreyer, as this week's rumor went would meet Trudeau's need to bring in another English-speaking cabinet minister, preferably from the West, and is an attractive prospect as a "winner" and because he is bilingual.

The prime minister said Thursday that the first he heard of the rumor was at the cabinet meeting.

"It sounds to me a most unlikely suggestion," he said.

Asked if he is likely to go outside caucus, as he did when he brought in Pierre Juneau to replace Gerard Pelletier as communications minister, he replied:

"I honestly don't know yet — I might."

Trudeau faced with the prospect of losing more of his ministers, is not expected to announce the makeup of his new cabinet until early next week.

Blanket Saves Baby

NEW YORK (AP) — Trapped in a burning Bronx tenement, a mother saved her two-year-old daughter Tuesday by dropping her five floors, into a blanket held by neighbors. The mother and a friend were rescued by firemen moments later. As the firemen arrived at the blaze, they saw the neighbors holding the blanket like a safety net in front of the building. Before they could get their equipment into operation, they said, Audrey Barksdale, 29, leaned out the window and dropped her daughter, Tomara, to the improvised safety net below.

Bastion Band Concert

The Naden band from CFB Esquimalt will present a concert in Bastion Square at noon Wednesday and the B.C. Maritime Museum will be open free to the public all that afternoon.

The museum's new director, Keith Cameron, said the festivities have been arranged to mark the issuing of four new postal stamps commemorating four pioneer Canadian vessels—the Husdon's Bay's Beaver and the original Quadra, which was the first non-military government vessel to serve on this coast, and the two east coast ships Neptune and William D. Lawrence.

At 1:15 p.m. in the museum foyer Victoria postmaster Marv Glover will present special folders of the new stamp issue to the museum and Capt. Randy Dykes, master of the ministry of transport's weather ship Quadra.

Mayors of the area, provincial government representatives and others have been invited.

In combination with the provincial education department, the museum is also launching an essay contest for senior secondary students in school districts 61, 62 and 63, covering the Capital Regional District.

The students will be asked to write an essay on a marine subject connected with the Greater Victoria area.

"We view this as a means of bringing the museum a little closer to people in high schools," Cameron said.

The museum will award prizes to top essay-writers in each school, as well as prizes to the winner in each of the three school districts.

Racial Violence At High Schools

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Tight security was ordered at three southside Oklahoma City high schools today following racial violence at one school in which two pupils were wounded by gunfire, one critically.

Three other pupils and a policeman were injured.

Police termed the trouble on Thursday a "full-scale" riot, but neither police nor school officials could say how many pupils were involved.

They said, however, that some pupils came to school Thursday armed with clubs and knives, apparently ready for trouble arising from an incident Wednesday in which one pupil was beaten.

The shooting followed a confrontation of black and white students in a breezeway area at the school. Police said they had not determined how many shots were fired. They said no weapon had been recovered.

After the outbreak was quelled, buses were summoned to take black pupils home under police escort. About 15 per cent of the 2,052 pupils at Grant are black.

School officials said there was considerable damage to school property, mostly broken windows and chairs. There was no monetary estimate of damage.

Oklahoma City School Supt. Tom Smith said classes would be held today at Grant High, where Thursday's rioting occurred, but that police would be stationed both inside and outside the school.

Additional police and campus security officers also were stationed at Capitol Hill High and Southeast High, the latter the scene of several racial flare-ups since the beginning of the school year.

GATORS GROWING

BATON ROUGE (UPI) — Louisiana's 250,000 to 300,000 alligator population is more than the state's swamps and marshes can handle and the reptiles are showing up in swimming pools, backyards and residential streets.

The state's alligator population has grown so large since the beasts were placed on the interior department's endangered species list in 1969 that the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission spends $30,000 a year answering calls from citizens wanting them removed from their property.

The wild life commission has ordered a one-month alligator hunting season to begin about Sept. 25 and will issue tags for the harvest of 5,000 alligators in the South Louisiana parishes of Cameron, Calcasieu and Vermilion.

Enjoy Quiet Beauty Along the Koksilah

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

THE PARKS AROUND US

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

The provincial parks branch next year will develop its 532-acre parkland along the Koksilah River, near Shawnigan Lake.

But there is no need to wait for government-provided facilities to enjoy the area. There are plenty of natural areas in the park for picnicking, fishermen's trails for walking and pools for swimming.

The park is about eight miles from Shawnigan Lake village on the Port Renfrew Road or 3.3 miles from the junction of the lake's West Arm Road. Drive to Burnt Bridge. You can't miss it because it's the only one along this section of the river.

Incidentally, there is nothing burnt about the bridge. It apparently was named after an 1889 forest fire destroyed the original structure.

This is a good time to visit the Koksilah. It is peaceful and picturesque and water still warm. Some pools are shallow.

In summer the area is a good spot for huckleberries. And the trailing blackberries have a superior flavor to the bush variety.

In the last 12 years, the approaches to the Koksilah have undergone considerable change. Subdivisions have been developed and there are many new homes in the area west of the West Arm Road.

Better planning would have preserved several miles of river front for public use. Regretfully the opportunities have been lost.

In one section, the logging road could have been located a few hundred yards from the river front. Instead it was built along the river's edge, a practice which has destroyed the esthetic and recrational values of hundreds of B.C. rivers.

Slash-Burning Laws Tougher

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

Slash burning on high elevations where fire can cause irreparable soil damage is prohibited under new B.C. Forest Service regulations.

The BCFS also requires logging companies to submit burning plans to the forest ranger describing location of fire guards and equipment on hand to control the fire.

At Jordan River where 180 acres of hemlock and cedar debris were burned Tuesday, the logging company complied with the regulations. Fifteen men, four forestry officials and bulldozers stood by.

The new regulations mark a dramatic change in burning practices in B.C. which only a few years ago foresters considered the worst in the Western world.

It was not uncommon for loggers to simply throw a torch in the slash and rely on chance. There were no regulations — only guidelines for slash burning issued by the forest service — and it was more or less left up to the company.

The lax practices resulted over the years in the loss of thousands of acres of valuable timber when slash fires escaped.

On the higher elevations, the slash burns destroyed the regenerative qualities of the thin soil. On some sites erosion followed, leaving large bald patches where no trees will ever grow again.

Foresters, botanists and conservationists protested but the governments of the day did little to improve burning methods.

In 1970 there were some improvements, but it wasn't until 1973 that major changes were ordered in slash burning methods.

This was after the Salmon Arm fire which spread over thousands of acres of trees to a valley where flames destroyed 17 houses and several other buildings.

The fire would never have occurred, according to a report prepared for Resources Minister Robert Williams, if someone had mopped up the remnants of slash burns in the Fly Hills west of Salmon Arm.

A. B. (Ben) Mitchell, assistant chief of the protection division, says the report led to long over - due slash - burning restrictions.

"But it is only in the last year that we have made real headway in improving methods," he said. "It is by no means perfect, but they are major improvements."

For example, all six forest district headquarters have a meteorological officer. His job is to make burning safer and to minimize smoke nuisance.

Another regulation requires logging companies to describe its objective.

That is — does the company want to reduce the debris for planting, expose the soil so that natural seeding takes place or eliminate a fire hazard?

OILMEN WANT 49%

EDMONTON (CP) — Union representatives for oil, natural gas and chemical workers have decided on a national bargaining stand demanding $3.10 an hour across-the-board raises when contract negotiations begin in October.

Neil Remier, national director of the Oil Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union, said Thursday the contract decision covers about 25,000 union workers in petroleum and petrochemical industries across Canada.

The contract stand, decided at union meetings in Toronto Tuesday and Wednesday, will be applied to negotiations toward a one-year contract for the workers, who now earn an average $6.25 an hour.

This is the first time the union has unified its bargain demands across the country.

Rent Relief Program For Senior Citizens

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

A new $2 million-a-year rent relief program for non-profit senior citizen and co-operative housing projects was announced jointly today by the federal and provincial governments.

Lower-income tenants in those projects will not have to pay more than 25 per cent of gross income toward rent under the program.

The new scheme will apply to all senior citizens in non-profit housing units and to members of housing co-ops with incomes averaging below $12,000 a year.

The program is retroactive to Sept. 1. Total subsidies are expected to amount to $600,000 this year and $2 million in the next full year. It will be shared 50-50 with the federal government.

There are potentially more than 200 projects with 7,160 units eligible for assistance under the plan but priority in allocation of money will go to about 3,000 of the newer, more expensive units.

About 3,000 senior citizens in B.C. will likely be eligible.

Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson said the new program will mean several housing projects will now be able to go ahead with the assurance that tenants will be found to afford the accommodation.

Inflation has hit non-profit housing projects recently and the costs of construction were putting the units beyond the reach of senior citizens.

The majority of residents in senior citizens projects are Mincome recipients with incomes around $250 a month and the new program ensures they will not have to pay more than about $65 a month rent.

Bill Smith, of the Victoria Senior Citizens' Housing Society, said his group will now be able to go ahead with a 98-unit housing project on Rupert Street, because of the program.

The rents on the new building will work out to about $125 for a bachelor and $180 for a one-bedroom apartment.

The scheme will also apply to non-profit co-operative housing but under the financing arrangements people with incomes in excess of $12,000 will not likely receive supplements.

Asked if the supplements might be extended to privately owned rental accommodation, Nicolson said he doubted it except in cases of accommodation built under the limited-dividend housing program of the federal government.

ECONOMY STYMIES UNITED WAY DRIVE

The United Way campaign in Campbell River has been postponed for six months due to poor economic conditions, the director of the Victoria United Way said today.

Hugh Creighton said, however, the Victoria campaign will begin this month as scheduled.

"We don't rely as heavily on the forest industry here as in Campbell River," Creighton said, adding that the reason for postponement of the campaign in Campbell River is the strike at Crown Zellerbach's Elks Falls pulp mill.

It is believed to be the first time a United Way drive has been postponed because of labor strife in a community.

"We do, of course, receive a very high level of support from forest companies and employees in Victoria so the shutdown of the industry will have some impact on our campaign," said Creighton.

"But it is difficult to project the effect on our goal because we don't know the duration of the shut-down."

This year's appeal objective is $750,000 and Creighton urges everyone to "give all they can because the need for money is greater than ever, especially with three new agencies to support."

The canvassing of local business begins Sept. 29 and residential canvassing Oct. 15.

Patty Unrepentant, Greets Comrades

Times News Services

SAN FRANCISCO — Her long and violent journey into the underground at an end, Patricia Hearst sent to her radical comrades today a message indicating that her revolutionary zeal remains unchecked.

"Tell everybody that she's smiling, that she feels free and strong and sends her greetings to the brothers and sisters out there," said her lawyer, Terrence Hallinan.

As the details of events leading up to her sudden capture began to emerge, Miss Hearst and two of her comrades-in-arms, William and Emily Harris, were returned to the federal building here for their second court appearances in as many days.

After spending the night in a county jail south of here, where she met her parents for the first time since her 1974 kidnapping and conversion by the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army, Hearst and the Harrises were transported back to the city in a tightly-guarded auto caravan.

"She was happy . . . she really wants to come home," Randolph Hearst said after he and his wife visited their daughter at a county jail in nearby Redwood City, where she is being held on bank robbery and other charges.

"We told her we loved her and hugged her and kissed her," Catherine Hearst told reporters at the jail. "We just said we loved each other."

Asked whether he will put up the bail money to free his 21-year-old daughter, Hearst replied: "I think so."

Patty with a plea of "don't shoot," surrendered to FBI agents and police Thursday, ending her bizarre disappearance which frustrated U.S. law enforcement for more than 1½ years.

"Don't move or I'll blow your head off!" shouted one FBI agent as he stormed into the two-storey home in a Mexican-American neighborhood to arrest Miss Hearst shortly after the Harrises were arrested elswhere.

One other fugitive also was arrested in the house.

The owner has been charged with harboring fugitives.

There was no violence and no injuries in the arrests.

It was the en dof the "underground" life for the 21-year-old Hearst and even with her arrest, her whereabouts in recent months remained a mystery.

Miss Hearst was to appear before a U.S. district judge this afternoon for a bail reduction hearing.

After her arrest, bail here was set at $500,000. She also faces a $350,000 bail situation in Los Angeles where she is wanted on 19 charges.

The decision "will be made by this weekend," said D.A. John Howard.

He said his staff was conferring with the U.S. Attorney's office here, "weighing factors such as how good a case we have as opposed to their case up there, and the respective seriousness of the local and federal charges."

U.S. marshal Gaylord Campbell said that Hearst and fellow SLA members William and Emily Harris have their choice of trial sites on the federal charges. Under federal procedures.

"It's up to them — they can request trial in San Francisco, where they were arrested, or in Los Angeles, where the warrants were filed," he said.

The California charges against Miss Hearst and the Harrises stem from tales of a five-day rampage through Los Angeles county last May.

It began with the holdup of an Inglewood sporting goods store that led to a shootout and fire in which six SLA members were surrounded and killed.

It ended with the three fugitives on the run, allegedly stealing cars and kidnapping and robbing drivers to get away.

"Is this your true name," Woodruff asked.

"Yes," she murmured.

"How old are you?" Woodruff asked.

"Twenty-one," she replied.

She gave her occupation as "urban guerrilla."

An FBI official in California said, meanwhile, that the sudden and dramatic capture of the heiress-turned-terrorist came unexpectedly when police and FBI agents went to the house seeking someone else in connection with the Hearst investigation.

However, a spokesman for the FBI in Washington disputed that report. He said agents "had reasonable basis to believe that Patty Hearst was in the Morse Street house in San Francisco when she was apprehended."

An FBI agent in Sacramento said agents were looking for an unidentified person linked to the SLA and had no idea Miss Hearst or her fugitive companions were there.

Stinging Setback For Ontario Tories

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis suffered a stinging setback at the hands of the Ontario electorate Thursday, but his Progressive Conservatives clung to power with a minority standing in the legislature.

After losing ground in all parts of the province to the New Democratic and Liberal parties, the premier expressed the hope that he can work effectively with NDP Leader Stephen Lewis, whose party edged out the Liberals to become the official Opposition.

The standings:

PC	51	78
NDP	38	19
Lib	36	20
Total	125	117

Eight seats were added to the house by redistribution for the current campaign.

Davis made no reference to the possibility of co-operation with Liberal Leader Robert Nixon, who had engaged in acriminious exchanges with the premier throughout the campaign after declaring that the integrity of the government was an election issue.

The NDP leader had launched a broad attack on the government on a variety of issues but refused to be drawn into the personal controversy between Davis and Nixon, which he dismissed as a "Punch and Judy show."

Lewis said his party will work constructively in the new legislature in an effort to present itself as a "serious alternative" to the Conservatives in the next election.

"I am not that familiar with what the issues were, but I do know that Stephen Lewis had committed himself to discussing issues and policies," he said in an interview.

"It is obvious he was able to effectively share with a large number of people in Ontario exactly what his policies and issues were. I feel very, very pleased that he has done so well."

Nixon said a minority government can work in Ontario, but the Liberals will not join with another party to keep such a government alive.

Davis said he is prepared to make a "conscientious effort" to make the government work.

"I'm prepared to provide leadership, I'm not prepared to compromise my principles," Davis told cheering supporters in his Brampton riding. He discounted any notion he might step down.

Earlier, the premier told reporters he still intends to recall the legislature by Oct. 21 and that before it convenes, he will announce an extensive cabinet shuffle.

INDUSTRIAL PROFITS UP

OTTAWA (CP) — Profits of about 4,000 industrial companies surveyed during the three months ended June 30 rose $318 million or 12.4 per cen from the corresponding 1974 quarter, Statistics Canada reported Thrusday.

Sales were up 9.6 per cent, or $4.5 billion, to $51.4 billion.

The companies surveyed had total assets at June 30 of $14.2 billion, a three-per-cent rise from March 31 and 11 per cent more than their assets total at the end of the second quarter last year.

NEWS BRIEFS

Hotel Burns

VANCOUVER (CP) — A three-alarm blaze ripped through the upper floors and roof of the downtown State Hotel on Granville St. Thursday night and firemen said they suspected arson. The four-storey building was vacant at the time.

Nurses Slowdown

MONTREAL (UPI) — Major hospitals limited surgeries and admitted only emergency cases Friday as 15,000 "angry and dissatisifed" Quebec nurses began a work slowdown over their contract dispute with the provincial government.

Gold Medals

Montreal Struck

MONTREAL (CP) — The city's public transportation system ground to a halt Thursday, the second closure in a month, following a walkout by 2,250 maintenance workers, cashiers and clerical staff.

Highway Conditions On Signs

A 345,000 system of computerized message signs will be set up shortly on B.C. highways to give motorists up to the minute information on road conditions.

Seven new signs should be operational by the end of October and will display up to eight messages at a time to warn motorists of road conditions ahead.

The messages, made up of 18-inch-high letters, will be called up through telephone lines by a portable computer terminal.

The signs can therefore be controlled on the spot, from the local highway office or from the Kamloops or Victoria highway headquarters.

First signs will be placed on the Fraser Canyon, the Hope-Princeton and Prince Rupert-Terrace sections of highways and the locations were selected on the basis of avalanche hazards, volumes of traffic and previous road closures.

The computerized messages should be given far enough in advance to allow motorists to consider taking an alternative route.

The motorists will see a series of three messages flashing in sequence and exposed for a minimum of two seconds.

Forest Talks Continue

Talks aimed at bringing the three B.C. forest unions into a common front pact are continuing today as negotiations initiated by the provincial government enter their fourth day.

The three forest unions, International Woodworkers of America, the Pulp Paper and Woodworkers of Canada and the Canadian Paperworkers Union, met separately today at the legislative buildings apparently to discuss the possibility of resolving their differences and hammering out a common front.

Management leaders met briefly this morning with provincial mediators Gus Leonidas and Fred Geddes and were expected to meet back at the buildings later in the day.

Neither union leaders nor B.C. Federation of Labor secretary Len Guy, who initiated the common front meetings, which began late Thursday, would offer any comment on the progress of the discussions.

"What I can say is that we're still talking," said Guy.

B.C. Police Plan 'Study' on Noose

Municipal police forces in Greater Victoria and the Lower Mainland will stage a four-hour study session Oct. 31 if a convicted police murderer does not hang.

The study sessions will begin at 11 a.m. and only emergency calls will be answered, police union spokesman said today.

Rene Vaillancourt, convicted of killing Toronto policeman Leslie Maitland, is to hang Oct. 31.

RCMP, who provide police service in most of British Columbia, will not participate in the study session, union spokesman said.

Sgt. Pat Braiden, president of the Victoria Policemen's Union, said it will be a study session rather than a walkout.

Every policeman, whether working or not, will go to the police station and only emergency calls will be attended to during the four hours.

WRITING ON WALL?

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal Senator Hazen Argue said today that his party's showing in the Ontario election "could be the writing on the wall" for federal Liberals.

He said in a statement that provincial leader Robert Nixon should resign immediately and the party should have a new look at its programs.

"In this clear-cut defeat for Robert Nixon and the Liberals, action is required now," the Saskatchewan senator said.

"The Liberal party ... should act as speedily as possible to defeat the William Davis government, or force an election and give the Ontario electorate the opportunity to give a clear-cut decision.

He did not elaborate on his warning that the election results could be reflected at the federal level.

Que. Cuts Aid to English Businesses

Times News Services

MONTREAL — Companies with a predominantly English-language orientation will have to integrate themselves more into the economic and cultural life of francophone Quebec if they want government financial assistance, a senior civil servant said Thursday.

Lucien Saulnier, former president of the Quebec Industrial Development Corp. and now president of the Quebec Housing Corp., said that for too long had companies owned by English-speaking Canadians been operating in Quebec with little regard for the social and economic life of the province.

The development corporation, which provides grants to ailing companies, found itself giving tax money, largely collected from the 80-percent francophone majority, to companies owned by the province's English-speaking minority, he said.

And, although these companies were reaping benefits from living in Quebec, the mother-tongue of the majority of their employees could not be spoken at work.

Bill 22, the controversial legislation which makes French the official language of Quebec, is changing that situation, Saulnier told an audience of about 300 businessmen attending a one-day seminar on regulations regarding use of French in labelling, signs and catalogues.

Now, for a company to receive subsidies from the development corporation it must "contribute to the evolution of the industrial structure and integrate itself into the realities of Quebec," Saulnier said.

In more concrete terms, companies must use French at all levels of employment before obtaining grants, he said.

Communications Minister, Pierrre Juneau, meanwhile said Thursday French should be the dominant language in Quebec province he criticized a campaign against Quebec's Official Language Act by radio station CFCF.

Juneau described as "emotional" an appeal by the English-language radio station for signatures on a petition calling for repeal of the act, known as Bill 22, which gives priority to the French language in the province.

U.S. COL Rise Slim

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. cost of living rose 0.3 per cent in August, the smallest monthly increase in more than two years, the labor department said today.

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Probably the last killer whale ever to be caught in B.C. waters today settled into his pool at the Niagara Falls Marineland and Gamefarm.

In a telephone interview owner John Holer said the chartered freight plane which transported the plane from the Victoria International Airport Thursday evening set down at Hamilton, Ont. at 3 a.m. B.C. time.

From there, the whale was taken by truck to the marineland, and lowered into his pool an hour later.

"After being lowered into the pool he began swimming right away as if he'd been there a long time," Holer said. "He looks fine."

Niagara Falls has two more whales in the marineland, a male, Kandu, and a female, Nootka, which arrived there on Sunday.

The whales are being kept in three separate pools, the female's pool being between the two males pools, all three pools being connected by easily-raised stainless steel gates.

Holer said it would be a week or 10 days before the gates are raised to allow the newcomer to join the others.

"They are at the gates looking at each other and there's a lot of new conversation going on," Holer said.

Holer said the new whale will be fed for the first time since his flight this evening.

Asked if any extra precautions were being taken to ensure the Pedder Bay whale doesn't die of pneumonia (a whale shipped from Pedder Bay in 1973 died of pneumonia 17 days after its arrival), Holer said:

"There really is no need. That one (in 1973), we knew there was something wrong. When he was put in the pool he just slipped over and we had to have divers to keep him up."

Holer said a name for the new whale will be selected by area children.

HOLER
. . . "he looks fine"

On Tuesday, after Holer had asked for priliority boarding for the whale on a B.C. ferry, Transport Minister Bob Strachan banned the boarding of the whale on any B.C. ferry.

Sealand president Bob Wright, who was paid $40,000 by Holer Thursday for capturing the whale, accuses Radford of playing politics in his announcement Thursday that Wright will probably get as much as $200,000 for the whale's capture.

"This is a political deal, he is trying to embarass (Jack) Davis (former fisheries minister with the Liberal government) now that he's gone Social Credit," Wright said. "I agreed with Holer we'd split the costs right down the middle for the whale we've got and the whale he has."

Wright said the $40,000 figure was agreed on 18 months ago.

"In actual fact it cost me $41,382 for each whale," he added. "So I have a net loss of $1,382."

★

Today, greenpeace Foundation president Bob Hunter said Holer is "gambling with the life of the whale in his reckless rush for profit" and praised Strachan for his stand.

"Holer is sentencing this whale to a better than 50 per cent chance of dying within the next two years," Hunter said, adding:

"This was as courageous and highly moral act on the part of Mr. Strachan, and he deserves nothing but praise.

Student Loses Action Against His Teacher

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

An action for damages by a former Mount Douglas High School student has been dismissed by Mr. Justice Samuel Toy of B.C. Supreme Court.

In a written judgment handed down Thursday, he said he is not prepared to find negligence against industrial arts teacher Colin John Quail, Mount Doug principal John Jerome Lowther and Greater Victoria school board.

His action for damages was heard in Victoria last May.

Mr. Justice Toy said the evidence is clear that in at least three respects, Legg's own acts or omissions contributed to his injury in performing "the not unusual or difficult cut" of wood:

1. He was not using the mitre guage to push the wood through the saw;
2. He left the blade elevated too high;
3. The safety guard was not in position.

Mr. Justice Toy said Legg and two other former students testified they and other students did not always use the safety guard and "this left the definite impression that the defendant Quail was lax in supervising and requiring the use of the safety guard."

One witness said the guards were not used 50 per cent of the time but Mr. Justice Toy said "that evidence I do not accept."

All three former students admitted Quail warned students caught using table saws without the guard being in the safety position.

The safety guard, if properly in position, "would practically make it impossible for an operator of a table saw to cut himself." When asked in cross-examination why he did not use the guard, Legg's reply "was to the effect that he really didn't think about it."

Just prior to the accident, Quail was correcting and instructing Legg and Legg testified that Quail did not tell him to have the guard in the safety position.

Quail told a different story, that in addition to instructing Legg about the proper use of the mitre guage, he also reprimanded him for not having the guard in the safety position.

"On this crucial point, I accept the evidence of the defendant Quail and reject the evidence of the plaintiff Legg," said Mr. Justice Toy.

He added that Quail was described by defence witnesses as a conscientious and careful instructor and "and I am prepared to accept their evidence in this regard in preference to that given by the students."

Legg was represented by Ian Izard while Rodney Taylor appeared for Quail, Lowther and the school board.

FERNWOOD SOOTHED

No Trickery, Says Planner

The Neighborhood Improvement Project for Fernwood "is not getting off to as happy a start as I would like" city planner Geof Greenhalgh said Thursday night as he tried to allay fears the city is trying to put something over on residents.

At the first meeting to discuss Fernwood getting $1 million in Neighborhood Improvement Project funds, the planner and NIP co-ordinator Frank Byrne repeatedly told residents "there has been no formal or political commitment on how to spend the funds. This is money set aside for your area and the ideas must come from you."

"The monies are a one-shot deal and all projects submitted for consideration must be just that. There cannot be any one-going funding for such things as a community centre," Greenhalgh said.

The federal government picks up 50 per cent of the tab, the province and city share the remainder.

The federal government picks up 50 per cent of the tab, the province and city share the remainder.

Greenhalgh said "because the city has such a substantial amount of money going into the projects they must have a substantial say. They must exercise prudence in what is done with the funds."

Greenhalgh and Byrne spent more than two hours repeating the theme that although the city included proposals in submitting its application to Ottawa for funding "it's just that, proposals which you the community can either accept, modify or reject."

Byrne said it's a three-year program with the first year set aside for planning.

Trustee Won't Run Again

Greater Victoria school board trustee Phil Perry will not seek re-election to the board in the November elections.

Perry, currently director of a counselling and teaching program for delinquent youths at the Youth Attendance Centre, plans to go to Eugene, Oregon, in January to work on his doctorate in psychology at the University of Oregon.

FIVE MOUNT DOUGLAS students were treated and released from hospital following a two-car collision at Gordon Head and Feltham at 12:45 p.m. Thursday. The accident occurred when a station wagon driven by Brian Wambolt, 17, of 3422 Veteran, southbound on Gordon Head, had to swerve around cyclists, sideswiped a car driven by Delores Troyer, 41, of 1535 Louise Place, and hit a power pole. Wambolt suffered a cracked jaw and passenger Celia Bell, 16, of 1885 San Pedro, a broken arm. Other passengers treated were Andrea Peake, 16, of 2610 Arbutus; Debby Patterson, 16, of 3990 Cherrilee Cres.; and Dawn Bennett of 1914 San Pedro.

Grandmother, Baby in Carriage Knocked Down by Swerving Car

A Colwood woman and her grandchild are in fair conditon in hospital today after being struck by a car at Esquimalt Lagoon Thursday.

Mr. Rose Potts was pushing her 18-months-old granddaughter in a carriage across Lagoon Road when they were bowled over by a car driven by a 16-year-old boy who police said lost control turning left from Heatherbell. Charges are likely to be made against him.

RCMP withheld the names of the child and her parents because Mrs. Potts was looking after the baby while her daughter and son-in-law were holidaying in England. They were expected home today.

Royal Jubilee Hospital reported the baby in slightly better conditon today than Thursday night. Her injuries are to the head an internal organs. Mrs. Potts has head injuries, a broken shoulder and left leg.

JEWEL THEFT

About $5,000 in watches, diamond rings and miscellaneous jewelry was stolen overnight from the Jewel Box store on Southshore Road at Lake Cowichan.

An RCMP spokesman said entry was gained by forcing a rear door.

He said the detachment has no suspects at the moment.

Fisher Heads Bargaining

Greater Victoria school trustee Dr. Mark Fisher has been appointed chairperson of the lower Vancouver Island trustees' group which will bargain with teachers this year.

Zonal bargaining for teachers' salaries has been set up under legislation passed by the legislature this spring.

The lower Vancouver Island zone was to include six school districts, but Lake Cowichan district teachers have said they wish to negotiate on the local level with their school board.

No other teachers' association in the zone has yet opted out.

The trustees' zonal bargaining group met Thursday and appointed Greater Victoria district personnel officer Dave Coton and Gulf Island district secretary-treasurer Wilf Peck as negotiators.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. What Columbia is referred to in the name of our province, British Columbia? And is there any specific reason why it should have been chosen in naming the province? G. W. S.

A. The connotations of Columbia are several, and those pertaining to the discoverer of North America may have some validity. But the role of the Hudson's Bay Co. in our pre-political history seem more significant. Columbia is an archaic form of reference to America. It was also the name of Capt. Robert Gray's ship with which he discovered the mouth of the great river in 1792 and after which he named it. Likely the river decided the name of HBC's Columbia Department, which embraced the rich fur-bearing area in and north of the Oregon Territory. Following the Treaty of Oregon, when the international boundary was set, it was natural to refer to lands north of the line as "British" Columbia to establish clearly the disputed territory.

But for a time it had been intended to name the area New Caledonia. To avoid confusion with a French possession of the same name, Queen Victoria named the new colony British Columbia in 1858. There is also the possibility that Columbia was a name automatically associated with HBC, which had absolute authority in the pre-colonial time and continuing influence for many years. For example, in 1835 the Columbia Department's supply ship was named Columbia.

ONE DAY IN THIS HOT blue September, we climbed by an in-back road to an area which nature has booby-trapped with one of her most deadly poisons.

Within this tract of half-healed logging burn and shattered rock, it is unwise to drink from any of the inviting creeks. If you pick up a few of the heavily-mineralized ore chunks, it's as well to wear gloves, or at least to sluice your hands clean afterward from your water bag.

Presently too, you become aware that the silence is deeper than the normal quiet of mountain country. Deer may pass through or birds fly over. But the badland with the smiling face is singularly barren of life.

A time or two in my Vancouver Island years, I'd heard vague and fanciful-seeming tales of such forbidden areas. Something was wrong with them, nobody knew quite what. Maybe they were haunted. Anyway, it didn't do to linger in them. The venturesome bush-rat who chose to do so ran the risk of contracting a mysterious illness. He might even die.

Nonsense? Of course! Such legends were no more than the products of gifted imaginations, Indian or white, and not to be taken seriously.

Or so I believed until the morning we set out with our prospector-neighbor Bob and his wife Peggy for a ramble in the hills.

By mid-morning we were high above the coastal plain on one logging road of the network that threads the Island interior. On either side of the road, flourishing among the old stumps and little new evergreens, stood bushes richly loaded with blue huckleberries. Where the road widened into a pull-off bay, Bob halted the battered four-wheel drive rig that takes him wherever wheels can turn.

The dark-blue berries were large and juicy. We picked the makings of a batch of pies within a few feet of the road. Our next stop was at the edge of alpine country on a steep-climbing track that toiled up the flank of a ridge with airy nothing below its washout-pocketed outer edge.

"More berries?" Win asked.

Peggy shook her head. "The engine's over-heating. Bob wants to cool it off a bit. We leave the berries alone from here on up."

"Dont' drink from the creeks, either," Bob said. "Not if you want to stay healthy."

The slopes above with their rock outcrops and alpine stands of yellow cedar looked harmless enough. Why these warnings?

"Arsenic," Bob told us. "The water's full of it and the ground is loaded with it. The area clear up to the top of the ridge is poisonedd."

But not by man, Bob explained. The arsenic concentration is a natural condition, brought about by the titanic upheaval that sheared the end off a mountain, gouged craters that are now lakes, and filled the rifts it created with mineral-rich rock thrust up from the inner earth.

We were bearing in toward the high point of one of these tertiary faults. It was host to metals that included copper, silver and gold. Its veins bled arsenic, leached out by rain and snow-melt in kuantities hostile to life.

Later, among tumbled rocks stained brownish-yellow by arsenic slats, Bob put his prospectors' hammer to work. The ore samples he showed us were peppered or skinned with a variety of minerals.

While he chipped, Bob told us a grim story.

It concerned two men who located a promising prospect. One of the pair took himself outside to raise working capital. The other stayed on the claim to run up a log cabin and start their mine. But the work went slowly, and he faced each day with strength a little further diminished. His partner returned to find a sick man who couldn't account for his illness.

"Arsenic poisoning," Bob said. "They'd located on a fault like this one, and it could have been the death of them."

Home again, Win inspected the once-white blouse with which she'd started the day.

"A mess," she said. "I'd better wash it."

The huckleberry stains came out. So did the tracings of malachite, turquoise, copper and other accretions from rock samples handled. But some sinister-looking yellow splotches yelded only to bleaching and hard scrubbing.

Arsenic from the alpine pocket where nature has set a trap for the unwary.

Cyclamens Are Hardy, Varied

The countries of Asia Minor and the shores of the Mediterranean Sea are rich in flowers which grow from bulbs, corms and tubers. It is through that area we find cyclamens which are grown outdoors here in our coastal climate.

Some of these have been in cultivation over 300 years but still problems exist with names. Changes are frequent. Three centuries ago many hardy cyclamens were thought of as geographical variations and natural hybrids and were named accordingly.

Today with equipment capable of counting chromosomes (those little rod-like structures in every plant cell) it has been found the supposed variants to be distinct species. The supposed hybrids are found to have a chromosome count which makes it impossible for them to be a cross between the supposed parents.

As home gardeners we are interested in about six species. If we stick to the names commonly listed in catalogs we shall be fairly safe.

For those wishing to know the name changes consult the Journals of the Royal Horticultural Society (of London, England), volume 85 (1960) page 210, and volume 90 (1965) page 293. These two excellent articles are by Lewis Palmer.

The hardy outdoor cyclamens are true miniatures of the florist's indoor kinds, growing from hard cormous rootstocks which increase in size year by year, each producing many flowers. The leaves are heart-shaped to rounded, with intricate silvery leaf markings making some species especially attractive even when not in bloom.

Hardy species are all readily propagated by seed, the production of which is an interesting feature in itself. After the flower has faded and seed pod developed, the stem curls up like a watch spring, drawing the seed capsule down to soil level where it remains while seeds develop. Much later, some species in the next season, the stem responds to increasing air temperature, elongates to normal height, the capsule opens and seeds are dispersed.

With suitable conditions, these will germinate naturally so that a start of two or three corms becomes a colony. Seedlings produce the first flowers two years after germinating.

These hardy cyclamens are not difficult to grow when we give them the required conditions; indeed they thrive and increase readily.

They do need some shade, such as filtered sunlight through high trees or a comparable place among shrubs; and they need protection from bitter northeast winter wind and southwest spring gales.

Perfect drainage of soil is essential as with all solid rootstocks. This we arrange by breaking the subsoil if necessary, mixing in broken brick and small stones so that water is not trapped.

Top dressing each year after growth begins, using either leafmould or compost—this is the only attention other than watering.

The longest flowering species is Cyclamen europeus, June to September. Flowers are purplish-red, strongly fragrant. Among small ferns and rocks it does well. C. neapolitanum is easy to get locally. It is blooming now (September) before leaves show. Flowers may be rosy pink to white and leaves are beautifully marbled when they appear later, persisting through winter and spring. As this species roots from top of corm as well as sides and bottom, it needs deeper planting. C. coum is one of the smallest flowering, in early spring with leaves; one of the hardiest, its leaves and flowers are unharmed by spring frosts.

Advantages to Condominium Life —If You're Emotionally Suited

By LYNNE GORDON

The condominium craze has been gaining momentum across Canada after a very slow start in 1967 when they first appeared on the marketplace. Canadians hung on to their dream of owning their own home but as prices skyrocketed, they grudgingly turned to condominiums as a compromise.

The problem is that many consumers began to rush into condominium living without understanding that it was a completely different lifestyle. It was not the same as living in a one-family dwelling and even completely different than living in rental accommodations.

Over-eager developers and real estate agents, cashing in on the swing to condominium living, tend to promote it as the best of both worlds; all the advantages, they gloat, of owning your own space with all the freedom associated with renting. They point out that you can build up equity and still unload all the unpleasant chores of home ownership — toting garbage, shovelling snow, cutting the lawn, fixing leaky roofs.

But a condominium is a "hybrid" accommodation and the advantages sound great in theory but can work very differently in practice.

First, remember, the word condominium doesn't apply to the physical structure — a residential condominium can be a high-rise apartment, a low-rise apartment, a detached house, a townhouse or any kind of shape you can imagine.

What makes a condominium is that individual owners have agreed to share ownership of common property while retaining ownership of their own individual unit.

This comes as a profound shock to most people when they see that their neighbors will have an important voice in their affairs.

There is still not enough information to guide people before they make an emotional as well as financial investment in a condominium.

Instead of being in charge of your own home completely, you must be prepared to work through a board of directors and a management group. Are you the kind of person that can handle this. This is a form of communal living where you are restricted by the decision of the majority. It means you must get along with your neighbors.

In fact, you should protect your interests by going to meetings and casting a vote on how you want the complex run.

CAVEAT EMPTOR

And don't think that the decisions of the board can't affect you intensely. The majority can decide to take on major expenses such as building a recreation centre or a day nursery. They can decide to add expensive concrete planters filled with flowers, iron grillwork, courtyard tiles, a swimming pool ... and they vote and win, you can expect extra assessments.

You must abide by the rules about pets, using barbeques, making noise.

You will have to get permission to change your unit structurally or to use it for commercial purposes.

You will get emotionally involved if your neighbor neglects his unit, because it can depreciate the value of the project as a whole.

The condominium manager will have the right to enter your unit if it's necessary to get his work done — whether you are present or not.

You will have to pay for maintenance, snow shovelling, garbage collection and repairs.

The amount of privacy you enjoy depends on the building you choose and the kind of neighbors you have and their lifestyle. The biggest complaint centres around walls so thin you can hear your neighbor flush the john.

Another drawback is that your investment and home are largely at the mercy of your neighbors.

The problem is that most prospective purchasers don't read the by-laws until they are hooked.

The bylaws of the corporation are the rules of the corporation by which every condominium owner is bound. The bylaws indicate how the corporation will be organized, what a unit owner may or may not do with his unit and how common expenses will be assessed. Bylaws can be changed but it takes a hefty majority. It takes a vote of 66 2-3 per cent, or higher for a change.

Make sure you have enough time to look over the bylaws carefully before you commit yourself to a purchase. Decide whether you are the type that likes to be knee deep in politics and business meetings — or whether you resist decisions by majority rule.

To make a condominium successful, you must understand your responsibilities.

Disagreements occur when rules are enforced too strongly or not at all. It's easier to get co-operation when the condominium development has less than 100 units. Bigger than that it's apt to get more impersonal and difficult to manage.

There are advantages to condominium living, as well as problems. But the first decision you have to make is whether or not you are emotionally suited to this way of life.

Next week I will focus on how to protect your financial investment and a look at some of the new condominium legislation to protect the consumer.

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

Physical education may be fun but it's not just fun and games, says the phys ed consultant for Greater Victoria school board.

Dave Turkington thinks phys ed should be as important a learning experience as any part of a child's school day.

The new approach in phys ed is exploratory, Turkington said in an interview. It poses problems which students must solve.

For example, instead of making every student turn somersaults a teacher mightr challenge each student to find three ways to roll across the mat, he said.

Or the class might practise "stretch and curl" moments — stretching arms and legs and then bending down. The teacher might ask each child to perform a sequence of five different stretch and curl movements.

Although high schools have full-time gym teachers, most elementary schools do not. Here the regular classroom teacher is normally responsible for phys ed.

Turkington and three itinerant phys ed teachers travel around the schools giving workshops for teachers and suggesting new methods.

The new approach does away with much of the army boot camp atmosphere of phys ed — the drills, the constant blowing of whistles by gym teachers, the insistence that every child do exactly the same thing.

Turkington said he controls his phys ed classes just by saying "freeze" in a normal voice. Another way to do without a whistle is simply for the teacher to raise his hand in the air as a signal for silence.

One of his primary rules is that every child have a piece of apparatus to play with.

"Nobody asks children to pass the pencil around the classroom," he said. So when a class is learning volleyball, every child should have a ball of some kind to practise with.

And when children are playing softball Turkington would rather see five games going at the same time with only a few players each, than two teams of 15 and a great lineup of kids standing around waiting for their turn at bat.

Physical education should ideally give each student a positive attitude toward athletics and a good self-image, said Turkington.

That means no pitting good athletes against bad and making the poor athletes feel like losers.

Phys ed should also teach youngsters about their bodies and how they work, he said.

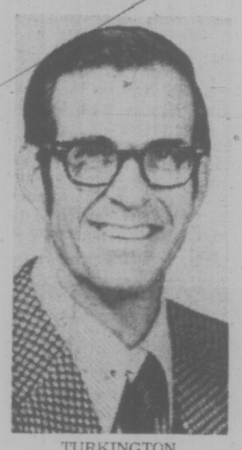
At the Grade 6 and 7 level, formal instruction in volleyball, basketball and other sports should be included with the exploratory phys ed taught in low grades, said Turkington.

These days almost every sport is offered to high school students, from the standard soccer, gymnastics, and track and field to archery, canoeing, bowling and tennis.

Swimming for Victoria youngsters will get a boost this year with new agreements being worked out between Greater Victoria school board and the new Esquimalt and Oak Bay pools for school use of the pools.

Almost every elementary school will have at least one grade level swimming this year, which is double the number last year, he said.

One of the new wrinkles in phys ed is the claim that schools should emphasize "lifetime sports" like golf and canoeing that people can do in middle and old age instead of basketball and volleyball which people stop once they're over 30.



TURKINGTON

Turkington said he agreed with the idea a few years ago but doesn't now.

"We have sold the human body down the drain too early," he said.

There's a 67-year-old Vancouver man who still plays soccer, said Turkington, and there are many who continue to play tennis and basketball in middle age.

"So what's a lifetime sport? Just about anything."

DRIVERS NEED CERTIFICATES

VANCOUVER (CP) — Drivers in the province now should be carrying a valid drivers insurance certificate, as well as a valid drivers licence, Norman Bortnick, General manager of the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia said Wednesday.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said during the 15-week ICBC strike that law enforcement officials should not charge drivers for not carrying up-to-date drivers' insurance certificates if they had expired during the strike. The ruling was in effect until Sept. 15, 14 days after the strike was settled.

Bortnick said failure to produce either of the documents was a breach of contract with the corporation and could result in claims being denied.

Free For The Asking

If you are looking for a relatively inexpensive protein food, consider mackerel. The Blue Mackerel is plentiful in Canadian waters, especially near the Banks of Newfoundland, in the Gulf of St. Lawrence and other areas in North-eastern Canada.

The 24-page illustrated booklet Why Not Mackerel? contains a chart from which you can see the high nutritional value of mackerel compared with other protein foods such as salmon, tuna or ground meat.

You will also find several palate-pleasing recipes.

To please and impress your family and friends, why not treat them to a quick-and-easy smoked mackerel soup. They'll smack their lips!

If you are short of ideas for a light lunch, extend your cooking repertoire with sea cakes served with a zesty sauce. For a buffet luncheon, surprise your visitors with an elegant east coast aspic.

As an entree choose between Mackerel Hawaiin, Curry Indian style or Mackerel Noodle casserole.

The booklet is available from Information Division, Environment Canada, Fisheries and Marine Service, Ottawa, Ontario K1A 0H3. Please allow at least 2-3 weeks for delivery.

NEW FOOD CO-OP EXPANDING

The Springridge Food Co-op has raised $3,500 from more than 100 members who also volunteer from four to six hours a month in operating the store on Fernwood Avenue.

The store is open three days a week — Tuesday from 10 to 4, Thursday from 2 to 8 and Saturday, 10 to 4.

There will be a general meeting Sept. 24 at 7:30 in the Native Friendship Centre hall.

The store opened Sept. 6 after more than two months of work by founding members in restoring a former store.

While stock is limited now members hope to handle meat and fish on a pre-order basis to determine member needs.

Marriage Began to Fail But Divorce Long Delayed

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Peter and Diane's marriage began falling apart four months after the wedding. But they did not initiate divorce proceedings for another 14 years.

There were 36,704 divorces in Canada in 1973, of which 13,781 originated in Ontario.

"People just don't know how to relate," said Jack Watkins, a social worker with the Family Counselling Service here.

"Many people don't know how to give love or receive it. They find it easier to be critical or condemning than supportive."

An inability to show appreciation for the good qualities in themselves and their partners is one of the most common problems facing couples, said Dr. Simon Ramesar, director of Kingston General Hospital's Community Health Centre.

"I think the majority of people want to be honest and straightforward," Dr. Ramesar said. "But they are afraid if they are, they will be criticized, ridiculed, rejected or subjected to public censure.

"For example, a lot of women have feelings of sexual attraction toward other men but they are afraid to tell their husbands. A lot of persons end up doing things in the false notion they should protect the other person's feelings. They hide within themselves how they are really feeling."

Adultery is mentioned by only seven per cent of Mr. Watkin's counselling clients.

Marriage experts say adultery is usually an effect and not a cause of marital discord, said Dr. Ramesar. However, he added, "sexual difficulties can cause marital difficulties and marital difficulties can cause sexual difficulties."

He said as an energetic, outgoing individual, he began going out with his friends when his wife worked on evening shifts and he eventually met another girl.

Although this affair broke up, he said, after more problems he started "running around" again.

"Our marriage started off wrong and just never got straight," he said.

"It was 80 per cent my fault because of the environment I grew up in. But she wasn't strong enough. She should have pulled the reins in. She was a real quiet, home-type. I was really gung-ho."

Now he plans on a second marriage. He advised couples not to follow his and Diane's pattern.

He said marriage partners should develop "pride" in their situation and have a lot of patience.

Oddfellows Net $5,000 Toward Wheelchair Bus

The Oddfellows and Rebekah's Extended Care Hospital Committee raised $5,000 towards purchase of a wheelchair bus for the Gorge Road Hospital in a car raffle.

Wilf Edwards, committee chairman, said the winner of the 1975 Pacer is Mrs. J. Pollock, 2915 Admirals.

The committee plans other fund-raising events to make up the remaining cost of the $20,000 bus, similar to one donated earlier by the group to the Saanich Peninsula Extended Care Hospital.

The Bellboy (xx), on 5 at 3:30. Jerry Lewis plays a bumbling bellhop in a Florida hotel in this 1960 comedy, written and directed by Lewis and featuring a cameo appearance by Milton Berle.

The Man Who Never Was (xxx), on 7 at 3:30. A fascinating 1956 English-made drama based on a true story about British Naval Intelligence's daring scheme to deceive Germany about the invasion of Italy, starring Clifton Webb, Gloria Grahame and Stephen Boyd.

The Birds (xx), on 2 at 7:30. Alfred Hitchcock directed this 1963 thriller about the bird world turning on humans, creating death and terror. The trick camera work is good but the script and cast is mediocre.

M-A-S-H (xxxx), on 6 at 8. This 1970 comedy about Army surgeons in wartime Korea stars Elliott Gould, Donald Sutherland and Sally Kellerman, and is the film that the currently successful TV series is based upon.

BARBRA STREISAND

JANE FONDA
. . . on 8 at 2:50 a.m.

ELLIOT GOULD
. . . on 6 at 8 p.m.

The Stone Killer, on 5 at 9. No rating available on this 1973 crime-drama starring Charles Bronson as a quick-triggered police detective fighting the Mafia in New York and Los Angeles.

For Pete's Sake (xxx), on 8 at 9 and 6 at 11:16. Barbra Streisand stars in this 1974 comedy about a housewife's misguided efforts to finance her cab-driving husband's college education. Supporting cast includes Michael Sarrazin and Estelle Parsons.

Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch (xxx), on 11 at 11. An entertaining 1943 comedy-drama based on Alice Hegan Rice's story about a poor but spirited family. Cast includes W.C. Fields.

The Sons of Katie Elder (xxx), on 5 at 11:30. A good cast (John Wayne, Dean Martin, Earl Holliman and Martha Hyer) highlight this 1965 western about four brothers out to avenge their father's murder.

The Spy Who Came In From the Cold (xxxx), on 12 at 11:30. Richard Burton and Claire Bloom star in this excellent 1965 English-made drama about an intelligence agent caught up in a cold-war double-cross.

The Sun Also Rises (xxx), on 7 at midnight. A 1957 movie rendering of Ernest Hemingway's sprawling novel about American expatriates living in post-First World War Europe, starring Tyrone Power, Ava Gardner and Mel Ferrer.

The Hawaiians, on 8 at midnight. No rating available on this 1970 drama about romance and tragedy in 19th-century Hawaii, starring Charlton Heston, Geraldine Chaplin and John Philip Law.

For a Few Dollars More (xxx), on 6 at 1:45 a.m. Fans of the so-called "spaghetti westerns" will enjoy this violent 1966 Italian-made tale, teaming Clint Eastwood with veteran heavy Lee Van Cleef in a story of revenge and bounty hunting.

F.T.A., on 8 at 2:50 a.m. A 1973 documentary record of the anti-military "political vaudeville" that Jane Fonda and Donald Sutherland played to Pacific-based GIs during the 1971 Christmas season.

Today's Highlights

Theatre in America, on 9 at 2:30 p.m. Genevieve Bujold and Fritz Weaver star in this repeat telecast of Antigone, Jean Anouilh's tragedy based on the Sophocles' classic. (90 mins.)

Monty Python, on 2 and 6 at 6:30. Return of this popular BBC series of offbeat comedy sketches with Eric Idle, Mike Palin, Terry Tones, Graham Chapman and Terry Gilliam. (30 mins.)

Beachcomber Turns Cook Each Weekday

Beachcomber Bruno Gerussi turned cook this fall on CBC-TV with the Sept. 15 debut of a new half-hour series, Celebrity Cooks.

Each weekday afternoon at 3:30 will see host Gerussi and guests demonstrating the passionate art of culinary comedy — a connoisseur's blend of unscripted amusement and appreciation for fine foods. And while the guests are first-rate entertainers in their own right, they may (and some do) have trouble boiling water.

Taped live in front of a studio audience in Ottawa by Keith Large and Derek Smith of Initiative Productions, Toronto, the preparation of a dish from a favorite recipe chosen by the guest is the basic format of the show. But the esprit de corps is very definitely the joy of cooking, with a lot of the fun coming from Bruno's bumbling bon vivance and putting people already accomplished in a particular field in the unfamiliar role of TV chef.

Among the celebrities guesting on the series of 130 programs (of which 80 have been already taped): Hermione Gingold, grande dame of the theatre on both sides of the Atlantic, on the opening show; actor-author Gordon Pinsent; The National Ballet's Karen Kain; Canadian theatre's leading lady, Kate Reid; Irish Rover Jimmy Ferguson; gospel singer Tommy Ambrose; Britain's ribald comic Frankie Howerd; movie star Kim Hunter; and Ben Wicks, the zany Cockney whose cartoons are far more successful than his attempts at cooking — especially when it comes to Peking Sliced Fish.

MONTY PYTHON BACK ON CBC

Monty Pythonu's madcap antics are back this fall on CBC-TV.

Six new programs of essentially insane British humor are scheduled Saturdays at 6:30 p.m., starting Sept. 20. And as fans of the BBC-produced phenomenon have come to expect, each half-hour instalment carries on the Python tradition of outrageously twitting the human race through a combination of slick satire and sublime silliness.

Indeed, the only change is that the Flying Circus is gone from the title — but as no one ever really saw it, it probably won't be missed. And John Cleese, tired out from his silly walks, is also gone.

But all the rest of the original Python perpetrators — Mike Palin, Eric Idle, Graham Chapman, Terry Jones and Terry Gilliam (plus his animations) — are back in the new series which (more good news for Python fans!) is to be followed by repeats of 22 programs from past seasons.

Hot air ballooning, shopping for ants, and discovering the "real" Hamlet are among the themes of the new batch of programs which — with the Python humor as surreal, anarchic and subversive as ever — are followed through to their ultimate, inconclusive conclusions.

Movies

The Angry Red Planet, on 11 at 1:30. A 1959 sci-fi adventure about the first explorers to Mars.

Desire in the Dust (xx), on 5 at 2. A good cast (Raymond Burr, Joan Bennett, and Martha Hyer) struggle with a poor script in this 1960 melodrama about lust and greed in the Deep South.

A Very Missing Person, on 6 at 2:30. No rating available on this 1972 mystery starring Eve Arden as an amateur sleuth trying to solve a missing person case.

The Tender Trap (xxx), on 11 at 3. An entertaining 1955 musical-comedy starring Frank Sinatra as a footloose bachelor and Debbie Reynolds as the girl trying to catch him.

The Wrong Box (xxx), on 7 at 4. A fine British cast (Michael Caine, John Mills, Ralph Richardson and Peter Sellers) star in this entertaining 1966 black comedy about a much-coveted inheritance and murder, based on the Robert Louis Stevenson-Lloyd Osbourne novel.

Serpico (xxxx), on 4 at 9. Al Pacino (of Godfather fame) gives a strong performance in this excellent 1973 crime-drama based on the true story of undercover officer Frank Serpico, who, in 1971, played a major role in exposing widespread graft in the New York City Police Department.

A Tale of Two Cities (xxxx), on 12 at 9. A splendid 1935 film rendering of the Charles Dickins classic about the terrors of the French Revolution and one man's sacrifice, with Ronald Coleman heading a fine cast.

The Devil's Daughter (xx), on 12 at 11:30. Shelley Winters, Belinda Montgomery and Robert Foxworth star in this 1973 made-for-TV thriller about a woman pursued by a coven of Satanists determined to possess her soul.

The Hawaiians (xx), on 6 at 11:45. A colorful 1970 drama about romance and tragedy in 19th century Hawaii, starring Charlton Heston and Geraldine Chaplin, and filmed on location.

Once Upon a Honeymoon (xxx), on 4 at midnight. Cary Grant, Ginger Rogers and Walter Slezak star in this entertaining 1942 comedy about a newspaperman who falls for a stripper, but the lady is married to a big-shot German officer.

Walk East on Beacon (xxx), on 7 at midnight. An interesting 1952 semi-documentary spy thriller about an FBI track-down of Russian agents, starring George Murphy.

For a Few Dollars More (xxx), on 8 at midnight. Fans of the so-called "spaghetti western" will enjoy this violent 1966 Italian-made tale, teaming Clint Eastwood with veteran heavy Lee Van Cleef in a story of revenge and bounty hunting.

F.T.A., on 6 at 2:35 a.m. A 1973 documentary record of the anti-military "political vaudville" that Jane Fonda and Donald Sutherland played to Pacific-based GIs during the 1971 Christmas season.

(90 mins.)

Local Actresses Shine In Emily Carr Drama

TORONTO (CP) — West Coast actress Margaret Martin loathes "pretence and sham," and shares this feeling with the late Emily Carr, one of Canada's foremost artists.

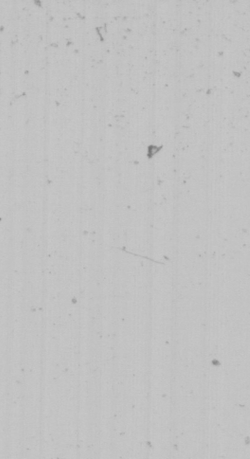
Mrs. Martin, 45, portrays the British Columbia artist-author in CBC-TV's two-part film portrait to be concluded this Sunday at 10 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6.

Like Emily Carr, she loves animals—especially dogs, of which she has two. Unlike the artist, she is, by her own description, "gregarious . . . I like people even in large groups."

Margaret Martin may have reason to feel a kind of kinship with Canada's great artist. She played her on stage as well, in 1966, in a production in Victoria, her home.

Vancouver-born, she attended the University of British Columbia and Vancouver Normal School. She taught school for two years before marrying in 1950.

She and her husband Vincent have two sons, Bruce, 20, and Scott, 13, and one daughter, Maureen, 17.



MARGARET MARTIN

Mrs. Martin began her acting career in amateur theatre in Victoria in the early '50s, and from 1954 to 1963 won six best actress awards in regional drama festivals. She studied on scholarship at the Banff School of Fine Arts for two summers.

In 1963 she made her professional acting debut at Victoria's Bastion Theatre.

"I still act regularly with Bastion, having been a member of its touring company, teacher in its theatre school and secretary of its board of directors, which I still am," she said.

Mrs. Martin has performed in about 75 stage plays in 25 years but Emily Carr is her first major television role.

Actually three actresses portray Emily Carr at different stages in her life — Margaret Martin as the mature Emily has the major role; Dierdre Travis plays Emily as a young woman; and Caroline Barclay is seen as the child Emily. All three are West Coast residents. Mrs. Martin and Caroline Barclay are professional actresses. Dierdre Travis is a student at the University of Victoria, and the CBC-TV two-part film on Emily Carr provides her first acting experience. Producer-director Nancy Ryley "discovered" Dierdre in the coffee shop of Victoria's Empress Hotel, where the student had a summer job as a waitress.

CANADA WASTES FARM RESOURCE

Agriculture is Canada's basic industry, also one of the most dynamic, most efficient industries, yet Canada barely produces enough food for its own needs.

Reporting on agricultural trends and events to the Canadian viewing public, is the continuing CBC-TV series Country Canada, Sundays at 4:00 p.m., returning Sept. 21.

Fewer and fewer people farm the land in Canada, but concern for agriculture in Canada is a growing phenomenon.

As Country Canada enters its 21st year on CBC-TV, it will be bringing the most topical, most probing agricultural news to an expectant audience. Some of the subjects to be explored in upcoming programs are the beef, poultry, hog, and corn industries.

Other programs will report on the annual meetings of such organizations as the Agricultural Institute of Canada, The National Farmers Union, The Canadian Federation of Agriculture, Palliser Wheat Growers and The Farm Bureau in the U.S., as well as The Outlook Conferences upcoming in Ottawa and Washington.

In assessing agricultural resources, there must be consideration of a multitude of interlocking factors — the grain industry cannot be considered without at the same time considering the transportation system. It is the same with the other farm products — they are dependent, for example, on labor, land usage, marketing needs and systems, free enterprise vs. collectivism, as well as climate and fertilizers.

Yet these are only some of the factors which affect Canada's complex agricultural industry. In 1970, Canada imported more food than it exported.

This is an indication of a serious dependency on other nations, chiefly the U.S., for food. At the same time, the world as a whole is in desperate need of food. Is Canada able to respond to the needs of a hungry world? Are we Canadians addressing ourselves to the future, are we wasting our resources?

Country Canada will explicate on these challenges facing agriculture in Canada in the coming months.

THE SIX MILLION DOLLAR MAN is reunited with his bionic fiancee (Lindsay Wagner) in Part 2 of the series' season premiere on Sunday at 7 p.m. on Channel 8 (and 4 at 8 p.m.)

Letters Urge Return Of Religious Series

The CBC-TV again invites Canadians to share in religious worship services that take place in all regions of Canada, televised from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. every Sunday, with the new season beginning Sept. 21.

In that time the series has met with an enthusiastic response from viewers. Not only do their letters comment on the quality of the presentations, but on the fact that religious services on TV make for greater worship participation for those at home watching on their TV sets.

So many of the elderly and shut-ins have also written that the series gives them their only opportunity to see and hear a religious service — something they had missed prior to the introduction of Meeting Place.

A brochure listing the telecast dates locations on the Meeting Place schedule is soon to be available and may be obtained by writing Meeting Place, CBC Television, Box 500, Terminal A, Toronto, Ontario M5W 1E6. The series' organizers welcome letters of comment on the programs.

W5 RETURNS TO CTV

Exploring the frontiers of television journalism, W5 with host Carole Taylor returns for its tenth season on CTV, Sunday, September 21, 10:00-11:00 p.m.

In this first episode of the season, host Carole Taylor with Field Producer Peter Reynolds investigates the dangers and consequences of high-speed police chases. Following the death of five teenagers in a police chase in Dauphin, Manitoba, W5 examines the high-speed car chase, fast becoming a North American tradition. W5 also looks at the attitudes of police and civilians. "There is no general definition of what constitutes a necessary chase but some law enforcement agencies across Canada are asking for a policy that would define their duties and obligations to potential innocent victims of police chases.

Among the other segments scheduled for this premiere episode is a visit with Eddie Dijon, a fleamaster living in Hong Kong, who was taught the art of training fleas from an old Chinese master. Mr. Dijon performed with his flea friends at this year's Canadian National Exhibition.

. . . on 4 at 11 p.m.

There's a Girl in My Soup (xxx), on 5 at 9. An entertaining 1970 film version of the hit stage comedy about the unlikely romance between a jaded British television star and a scatterbrained American girl, starring Peter Sellers and Goldie Hawn.

The Art of Love (xx), on 11 at 9. James Garner, Dick Van Dyke, Angie Dickinson and Elke Sommer star in this lightweight 1965 comedy about an unpublished writer living in luxury in Paris by selling his "dead" friend's paintings.

The Cat Creature (xx) on 12 at 10. A 1973 made-for-TV thriller about witchcraft, murder and an ancient Egyptian curse, starring David Hedison, Meredith Baxter and Stuart Whitman.

Top Hat (xxx), on 4 at 11. A great 1935 musical featuring the superb dancing of Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers and the music of Irving Berlin. Great late night viewing.

Hitched, on 12 at 11:30. No rating available on this 1973 made-for-TV comedy starring Sally Field and Tim Matheson as a pair of young marrieds whose accidental separation leads to misadventures in the Old West.

Web of Violence, on 6 at midnight. A 1966 Italian-made crime-drama about dope smuggling, blackmail and murder with an unfamiliar cast.

The Honeymoon Machine (xxx), on 8 at midnight. Steve McQueen, Paula Prentiss and Jim Hutton star in this entertaining 1961 comedy about a navy officer who gets an idea to use the electronic brain on board his vessel to beat the roulette wheel at a Venice casino.

The Smugglers (xx), on 7 at 12:30 a.m. A predictable 1968 TV feature about two American tourists in Europe who are used as decoys by an international smuggling operation. Cast includes Shirley Booth, Carol Lynley and Kurt Kasznar.

STEVE McQUEEN
. . . on 8 at 1:55 a.m.

Drango (xx), on 6 at 2:15. Routine 1957 post-Civil War western, filmed in 1957 with Jeff Chandler and Joanne Dru.

TAKE 30 HAS NEW HOSTESS

On Monday, Sept. 22, at 3 in the afternoon, Mary Lou Finlay will join Paul Soles, and a new Take 30 season will begin on CBC-TV. Ed Reid will become a contributing producer on the show.

Mary Lou comes to Take 30 from Ottawa — the city where she was born and received her professional start. For the past year, she has been host of CBOT's early evening news, This Day; for the four preceeding years, she had been host-interviewer on the station's afternoon public affairs magazine program, Four For the Road.

"I feel tuned into and comfortable with the afternoon audience," says Mary Lou. "They saw me through my traumatic beginnings and remained my milieu for several years." Before broadcasting, she had been a researcher for the National Museums of Canada. When the job began to bore her, she applied for a production position on Four For the Road. The show's producer, however, had enough insight to persuade her to take an on camera job on the show instead.

"I was terrified at first because I had no previous broadcast experience. For weeks, I had this dreadful nervous twitch and would stare at the monitor instead of looking into the camera. It was a case of sink or swim and luckily, the show's staff kept pulling my head above the water."

Having survived the first fearful months, Mary Lou now looks on her television job not as work, but as an opportunity to indulge her inquisitiveness and her preoccupation with people. "I love television because I get to stick my nose into everything. It gives me license to be curious."

Mary Lou is part of the new energy which promises to make the coming Take 30 season more vital and topical. "Let's be honest, no one really knows what the new Take 30 will be really like," says the program's new executive producer, Ain Soodor. "We do know that Paul and Mary Lou will bring many unique qualities to the show. Both are licensed pilots, both are experienced television journalists with a sense of humor, both are informal and unpretentious, both have a tremendous interest in people. We hope that the show will reflect these qualities. We also hope that we can offer the kinds of topical, bright, informative and entertaining items that today's increasingly sophisticated audiences are interested in — or more accurately — need, but seldom find on afternoon television."

Take 30 will be a magazine show. It will involve the viewer in the lives and careers of interesting people, some of whom are in the news and some of whom will never be in the news. There will be more contributions from various parts of Canada. "Live" topical items via ANIK, the Satellite, will appear from time to time. The show will talk to people about things people care about and viewers will be encouraged to talk back because, says Soodor, "Take 30 listens."

Canada's Longest Running Series Back for Its Nineteenth Season

Front Page Challenge, the ever-green series that began as a summer replacement on CBC-TV in 1957 and is still showing no signs of age nor diminishing popularity, returns for its 19th season on the network at a new day and time — Mondays at 8:30 p.m., starting Sept. 22.

As if to demonstrate that it's as perky as ever, the series will open with one of two special shows taped earlier in the month before audiences at the Jubilee Auditorium in Calgary, in honor of that city's 100th birthday and new CBC-TV station, CBRT. Producer Ray McConnell also plans to tape two shows out of Windsor, Ont., in mid-October, and another two out of Halifax in the spring.

That unflappable host-moderator, Fred Davis, and the regular panelists, among the best-known faces on Canadian television, will all be back: crusty Gordon Sinclair, who's been with the show since it first began; Pierre Berton, who joined FPC 13 weeks after Sinc; and 'newcomer' Betty Kennedy, who's only been with the show for more than a decade.

The mystery names behind the headlines who guest on the series will continue to come from the worlds of politics, sports, entertainment and the like. And since the panelists are what you might call a fairly sharp bunch of journalists, the same elaborate security precautions will be enforced to keep the names of guests a closely guarded secret. Viewers at home will be the ones with all the advantages.

Movies

The Great Escape (xxxx), on 8 at 12:45. Conclusion of this exciting and well-acted 1963 drama about Allied officers in a German POW camp during the Second World War. Cast includes Steve McQueen, James Garner and Richard Attenborough.

Above and Beyond (xxx), on 11 at 1. Robert Taylor stars in this 1952 drama about Col. Paul Tibbetts, pilot of the plane that dropped the atom bomb on Hiroshima in 1945.

The Americanization of Emily (xxx), on 5 at 3:30. Julie Andrews plays a straight-dramatic role in this well-written 1964 satire about the romance between a wartime widow and an American Navy officer whose main job is to supply his superiors with a variety of creature comforts, including girls.

The Petrified Forest (xxxx), on 12 at 7. Humphrey Bogart, Bette Davis and Leslie Howard star in this superbly acted 1936 film rendering of Robert E. Sherwood's fascinating stage play set in an Arizona desert cafe. It's a classic so don't miss it.

HUMPHREY BOGART
. . . on 12 at 7 p.m.

DONNA REED
. . . on 7 at 8:30 p.m.

From Here to Eternity (xxxx), on 7 at 8:30. A magnificent Academy Award-winning 1953 film version of James Jones sprawling novel about life on an Army post in Honolulu just before Pearl Harbor, with a fine cast that includes Burt Lancaster, Deborah Kerr, Montgomery Clift, Frank Sinatra (Oscar, Best Supporting Actor) and Donna Reed (Oscar, Best Supporting Actress). Recommended.

How I Spent My Summer Vacation (xx), on 11 at 9. Robert Wagner and Peter Lawford star in this 1966 mystery-adventure about a writer investigating the career of a deceased millionaire.

The Next Victim, on 4 at 11:30. No rating available on this made-for-TV mystery starring Carroll Baker as a wheelchair-bound invalid who fears she is the next victim of a psychopathic killer.

Birds of Prey (xx), on 12 at 11:30. David Janssen stars in this 1973 TV crime-drama about a helicopter-borne traffic reporter who is drawn into an aerial duel with a gang of bank robbers.

Quackser Fortune Has a Cousin in the Bronx, on 2 at midnight. No rating available on this 1970 romantic-comedy about a homely fertilizer salesman and a pretty American visitor in Dublin, starring Gene Wilder and Margot Kidder.

Paranoia, on 6 at midnight. No rating available on this 1968 Italian-made melodrama starring Carroll Baker as a wealthy woman victimized by an erotic-minded young couple.

The Carey Treatment (xx), on 8 at midnight. A 1972 made-for-TV mystery about murder at a big-city hospital, starring James Coburn as a pathologist trying to clear his colleague of a homicide charge. Supporting cast includes Jennifer O'Neill and Pat Hingle.

From Hell to Texas (xx), on 7 at 12:30 a.m. Don Murray and Diane Varsi star in this slightly above average 1958 western drama about a young cowboy who accidentally kills a cattle baron's son and becomes the object of a relentless desert search.

The Gallant Hours (xx), on 6 at 2 a.m. A 1960 drama profiling the career of Adm. William F. "Bull" Halsey in the Pacific during the Second World War, starring James Cagney.

Beat the Devil (xxx), on 8 at 2:10 a.m. John Houston directed this 1954 satire featuring a grab-bag of international crooks and swindlers all trying to doublecross each other in a money hunt. A great cast includes Humphrey Bogart, Jennifer Jones, Peter Lorre and Gina Lollobrigida.

Phyllis Co-Star Adores Her Television Mother

By LISA GERRITSEN

(UPI) — It's hard to tell where Cloris Leachman leaves off and Phyllis begins or the other way around. I've been playing Cloris' daughter, Bess, for five years now, off and on when we were written into the Mary Tyler Moore Show. I guess you could say that I've spent some of my most formative years with her, and I'm sure I've benefited a great deal.

The first thing that strikes me about Cloris is how much she's into the show and really wants it to turn out really good. She wants it to work but not at the expense of wringing us all out. She finds plenty of time to joke and have fun with all the rest of us.

And it's not just Cloris, all of us feel the same way. At 17 I'm the youngest in years but I guess you could say that eight years as an actress have given me a serious side when it comes to my work.

Henry Jones and Jane Rose, who play the Dexters are over 55, and Dick Schaal and Liz Torres are kind of in their middle ages. But we're all with Cloris in being intent on getting the right reaction from our audience. We work hand and together to extract the very best timing and line reading to make them like us and laugh with us.

I've learned a whole lot from Cloris. I can't tell you specific things because they're all so subtle. Our relationship has changed from when we first worked together in 1970. I was just a kid then (12). Now she relates to me in a more adult way . . . you know, actress to actress. I just love her for it. She doesn't talk down to me or anyone else on the show and she never has. She has strong ideas about some things and voices them constantly. But she never demands and can change at the drop of a cue if it looks like it'll work better another way.

The more you're around a person the better you're able to get along with them, if you really work at it. And we get along great. There's no teacher pupil relationship here, either. We're all fellow actors. I've sought her out many times for advice and she's never failed to give and give. There's nothing selfish about Cloris and I think that goes for all of us.

And Their Series Is The Hit of the New Season

By TOM SHALES

WASHINGTON (WP) — "Phyllis, the new CBS situation comedy starring Cloris Leachman as a blundering widow, is the most popular new TV show of the year, according to the first conclusive TV ratings of the new fall season, announced this week.

Other new shows which finished among the top 20 were Switch with Eddie Albert and Robert Wagner (CBS), Starsky and Hutch, an action-adventure hour (ABC), and When things Were Rotten, the Mel Brooks burlesque of the Robin Hood legend (ABC). NBC's highest rated new show is the cop drama Joe Forrester, which ranked 23rd of the 66 rated shows.

Not unexpectedly, viewers remained loyal to old favorites: the season premiere of All in the Family, with a 30.4 rating and a 48 per cent share of the viewing audience (about 42 million viewers) was the number one show, followed by Maude and Phyllis, all three Monday night CBS comedies.

While four new shows placed among the 20 most popular seen during the networks' "premiere week,", 12 new shows were among the bottom 20, with CBS's Three for the Road, already rejected by 20-per cent of the CBS affiliates, at the very end of the list.

"For once, we don't have the turkey of the year," cracked an ABC spokesman. There was other cause for glee at ABC, the network traditionally ranked third. While CBS ratings for the premiere week were down 7 per cent from last year's figures and NBC's down 14 per cent, ABC's were up 4 per cent. None of ABC's new shows ranked in the top 20 at this time last year; this year ABC has two up there.

CBS had ten of the top 20 shows (with ABC and NBC evenly splitting the rest), and the highest average ratings for the week, but not all is well at the network. Its highly touted and generously budgeted new Beacon Hill series plummeted from high ratings in its pre-season debut to 55th place last week.

Some shows expected to do well did anything but. NBC's The Family Holvak finished 54th, trounced by ABC's The $6 Million Man and CBS's Cher. NBC's answer to Phyllis, The Lee Grant comedy Fay, although praised by many critics, finished 61st, a victim of The Waltons on CBS. Medical Story, the new Abby Mann anthology for which NBC also had high hopes, was 60th.

Sources at ABC now say they feel they have a chance of rivalling NBC for second position in the network sweepstakes, even though NBC officials started the season by predicting this was the year their network would at last over-take CBS.

The top 20 shows for the week of Sept. 8-14 were All in the Family, Maude, and Phyllis (all CBS), The $6 Million Man (ABC), The NBC Monday Night Movie, White Lightning and Sanford and Son (NBC), Switch and Rhoda (both CBS), Chico and the Man (NBC) Starsky and Hutch (ABC), Good Times, Medical Center, Kojak, and The Waltons (CBS), The ABC Friday Night Movie Diamonds are Forever, The Rockford Files (NBC), The Streets of San Francisco (ABC), MASH (CBS), Sunday Mystery Movie, Columbo (NBC) and When Things Were Rotten (ABC).

BCTV SHOWS TOP MOVIES

British Columbia Television's newly-acquired Premiere series of motion pictures includes names like Hackman, Sharif, and Gable, each in his most well-known role. Most of these will be seen as television premieres.

Lloyd Colthorp, Vice President in charge of Programming claimed, "This is the biggest movie package British Columbia Television has ever bought, and it's interesting to note that the purchase was made completely independent of the CTV Network."

The first of the series is a film that's probably best remembered by Gene Hackman's Academy Award winning performance, The French Connection — air date, Saturday, October 25th. Dr. Zhivago, One of the most popular and lengthy features ever produced will run in two parts starting Saturday, November 22nd, with the concluding episode airing Monday, November 24th.

Another successful feature to be shown is The Sound of Music. BCTV's play date has been narrowed down to February 1976. That's Entertainment a film renowned for its pot-pourri approach to the film industry is to be seen in March of '76 and one of the greatest examples of storytelling on film, Gone With The Wind, will run sometime in November of '76. In addition, two Martin Ritt films, Conrack and Sounder round out the bill. Colthorp mentioned that both were selected because of their family appeal. Conrack will be shown this week, September 24th and Sounder to air October 29th.

Big name features with well known artists, every one. Films that have been acclaimed by critics across the country will be enjoyed by BCTV viewers throughout the province.

The Spanish Speaking and the Political System, on 9 at 8. A program focusing on the Spanish-speaking population of Washington which looks at their isolation from the American political process and instances of their participation. (60 mins.)

Welfare, on 9 at 9. A documentary special, by award-winning filmmaker Frederick Wiseman, that takes a grim look at New York City's welfare center, depicting the poor moving haltingly, and painfully through a system mired in red tape. Wiseman's cinema-verite approach may strike some viewers as less than objective, and PBS plans an announcement warning that the program may not be suitable for all family members. (2 hrs. 50 mins.)

Nobel Prize Laureates, on 2 at 10. From the Bomb to Vitamin C — an examination of the life and career of American chemist Linus Pauling. As outspoken critic of nuclear testing, he won the Nobel Prize for peace in 1962, and the prize for chemistry in 1954. (30 mins.)

Bronk, on 12 at 10:30. Debut of a new crime-drama series starring Jack Palance as Alex Bronkov, a police detective who tackles special assignments for the mayor of his city. (60 mins.)

Madigan, on 12 at 11:30. Richard Widmark plays Madigan, a New York City police detective who teams with a Scotland Yard bobby in London to chase down a gang of international gangsters. (90 mins.)

Johnny Carson, on 5 at 11:30. Among Johnny's guests tonight is actress Lee Grant who talks about her new TV series, Fay. (90 mins.)

Movies

Heidi and Peter (xx), on 8 at 12:45. A 1955 Swiss-made children's drama about the further adventures of Johanna Spyri's characters.

Beau James (xxx), on 11 at 1. Bob Hope portrays the dapper James Walker, in this entertaining 1957 biography of New York's colorful mayor during the Prohibition era. An excellent supporting cast includes Paul Douglas, Alexis Smith and Vera Miles.

The Defector (xxx), on 5 at 3:30. An engrossing 1966 espionage tale which benefits from good on location atmosphere in Berlin, and a fine performance by Montgomery Clift as an American professor of physics who gets involved in cold-war intrigues.

Conrack (xxx), on 8 at 8:30. Jon Voight (Midnight Cowboy) won critical acclaim for his performance in this 1974 film which traces the true-life story of a dedicated teacher and his efforts to educate indigent black children on an island off the South Carolina coast.

Houseboat (xx), on 11 at 9. A lightweight but entertaining 1958 romantic comedy about a widower who hires a young woman to look after his children, unaware that she's a wealthy socialite.

The Sex Symbol (x), on 4 at 11:30. A tasteless 1974 made-for-TV drama loosely based on the life of Marilyn Monroe, about the rise and fall of a Hollywood movie star, starring Connie Stevens in the title role.

Dark City (xx), on 2 at midnight. An ordinary little 1950 crime-drama about a gambler who becomes the target for a psychotic, notable as it marked the film debut of Charlton Heston — and he's very good.

Mafia (xx), on 6 at midnight. Lee J. Cobb and Claudia Cardinale star in this violent 1968 Italian-made crime-drama about a Sicilian village dominated by gangsters.

Before Winter Comes (xxx), on 8 at midnight. An offbeat 1969 English-made drama starring Israeli actor Topol as a charismatic interpreter in an Austrian border camp for displaced persons in 1945. Others in a good cast include David Niven, Anthony Quayle and Anna Karina.

Bright Leaf (xxx), on 7 at 12:30 a.m. A well-acted but overlong 1950 drama that tells the story of one man's rise to wealth in the early days of tobacco growing. A fine cast includes Gary Cooper, Lauren Bacall and Patricia Neal.

The Night Fighters (xx), on 6 at 2:05 a.m. Robert Mitchum and Richard Harris star in this 1960 drama about the IRA's efforts to drive the British from Northern Ireland in 1940.

PATRICIA NEAL
. . . on 7 at 12:30 p.m.

Secret Ceremony (xxx), on 8 at 2:10 a.m. A disturbing 1968 drama about the complex and strange relationship between a blowsy prostitute, a young wealthy socialite, and her stepfather, starring Elizabeth Taylor, Mia Farrow and Robert Mitchum.

Networks Say Ethnic Is In and WASP Is Out

By JEAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — The new television season might be ethnic enough to stir up a wasp's nest — maybe even an Episcopalian anti-defamation league.

As Italian Catholics (the Montefuscos, Joe and Sons) battle it out with the Irish Catholics (Kate McShane, Doc, Beacon Hill), the white anglo-saxon Protestant has gone the way of I Love Lucy and Gunsmoke.

Television has gone ethnic with a vengeance and a heavy intonation, giving detectives names such as Starsky (Starsky and Hutch), reserving a starring role for Jose Perez despite, or because of, his Spanish accent (On the Rocks), putting Gabriel Kaplan (Welcome Back, Kotter) into an all-ethnic school, where the melting pot congealed.

In addition, CBS has a show about a Puerto Rican now in development, and ABC is taping a situation comedy about the family life of Mexican-Americans living in California. It's called Viva Valdez! and it will be available for "second season" spotting. That means it will wait in the wings to replace a new show that lays an egg.

Healthy Trend

Until a few years ago, on television Americans were all melted into one bland majority figure who believed in God (but wasn't a fanatic about it), lived in a middle class suburb, spoke homogenized American and never referred to wherever his family came from. Obviously the family came from somewhere else — Indians are one minority that hasn't made it since Tonto.

All that is gone now, with two new shows marking their bow — in performances in arguments about Catholics missing mass (Joe and Sons and Doc), with Tony Montefusco referring to his Episcopal son-in-law as "Mr. White Bread" and "Mr. Mayonnaise''). When Kate McShane needs advice, she goes to her brother, the Jesuit seminarian. On Beacon Hill the talk was of holy days of obligation. You don't have to be Catholic to enjoy television this year, but it helps.

The vice-presidents for programming at the three major networks all agreed during interviews that this was the year of the ethnic — and that it was a good thing.

"It's a very healthy trend," said Alan Wagner, vice-president, nighttime programs, CBS. "We finally are willing to admit that we are not really a melting pot in America as much as we are an amalgam. We aren't an amorphous mass, we're lots of little communities living side by side.

"I think that's exciting and I think it's exciting that television is ready to recognize it now and willingly discuss openly things we just ignored before — that everybody isn't like Andy Griffith."

Ed Vane, vice-president, programs, ABC, agreed that ethnic was healthy and added:

Demographics

"It's a belated recognition that there can be good comedy situations and good family fun with all of the ethnic groups. Look back 15 years — there was Lucy, Leave It To Beaver, Donna Reed, Father Knows Best. Tradition at that time called for white anglo-saxon Protestant families.

"Now I think the industry realizes that situation comedies featuring all nationalities can mean solid entertainment."

Healthy also was the word used by NBC vice-president, programs.

"It's not all new," Marvin Antonowsky pointed out. "Look at Columbo — he's been around for five years. I think the audiences out there are a lot more sophisticated than a lot of people think. Also, we try to upgrade our programming at all times. We don't go for the lowest common denonimator. We try to break ground."

"I think all this is very healthy — any time we can laugh at ourselves in a nice way is a step forward, or if we laugh with others, we laughing with, not at, because to laugh at is derogatory. We'd be making caricatures."

Observers of television have pointed out that the networks were aiming their programming at young urban audiences, rather than older rural groups, because that's who the sponsors wanted to reach, that's where the spendable income and changeable buying habits were to be found.

This is called demographics and all three network vice presidents downgraded the idea that demographic considerations were behind the new network slogan that ethnic is beautiful.

"I think demographics tends to be overstated," CBS' Wagner said. "The point still is to get a large audience, which means as many as we can reach of all persuasions. You're still better with a 40 share of the audience than a 30.

"This was the year of the Catholics because the Catholic experience was not one that had been widely treated on television before. It was fresh, therefore ripe.

BRONK—a new crime-drama series starring Jack Palance as Lt. Alex Bronkov, a police detective assigned to special duty by the mayor of a large city, premieres on Channel 12 at 10:30 p.m. on Wednesday.

Man from U.N.C.L.E. Is the Invisible Man

By LAWRENCE LAURENT

(WP) — When executive producer Norman Felton was casting a tongue-in-cheek espionage series called The Man From U.N.C.L.E. he complained: "All of the actors look just alike." They were, he recalled, all slender and 6 feet tall and had faces that looked as though they had sembly line.

But there was also an actor named David McCallum, and he got the job.

McCallum in 1964 was 31 years old, a native of Glasgow, Scotland, and had spent his childhood studying the oboe. He had a variant of a Prince Valiant hairdo (then more unusual than now) because he had found that it suited the varying roles he had won from Shakespeare to modern comedy.

He was cast opposite Robert Vaughn's character of Napoleon Solo and was told that he was a Russian who had defected, by the name of Illya Kuryakin.

He made a super-cool espionage agent, and The Man From U.N.C.L.E. quickly found two different kinds of audience. One liked the pure adventure and suspense, the James Bond quality that went with the life of a spy. The other audience enjoyed the inside jokes about the spying racket, since Napoleon or Illya could always produce some strange tool that would let them enter or leave a building, or, at least, escape from jeopardy.

The series ran for 4 years and 99 episodes. It made McCallum the sort of fellow who, the Associated Press reported in 1966, was "mauled by screaming fans outside a London theatre" and who was greeted in 1967 by "1,000 screaming teen-agers" in Sydney, Australia.

Success also wrecked his 10-year marriage to actress Jill Ireland. She has since married actor Charles Bronson, and David has been married since September, 1967, to New York socialite Katherine Carpenter.

David McCallum

Any chance that The Man From U.N.C.L.E. would run forever (at least in TV terms) was harmed greatly by the arrival in 1966 of a spy named April Dancer, The Girl From U.N.C.L.E. Stefanie Powers played the role and the series lasted one season.

The "Girl" provided just too much U.N.C.L.E. for one television network, and by the spring of 1968 the "Man" had also disappeared (except for interminable re-runs).

But because McCallum is different at 5 feet 8 and 150 pounds, he continued to find work. His performance in Allen Sloane's superbly written Teacher, Teacher won him applause, and so did his File on Devlin for the Hallmark Hall of Fame. He showed up on most of the major TV series and continued to make feature motion pictures.

When he visited northern Virginia during last summer for a role in a theatre, he talked with enthusiasm about his new series The Invisible Man. He knew that the concept used for the pilot film couldn't be used for the series.

In the film he is a scientist who discovers the secret of making himself invisible. But he is determined that his secret will not be used by the Department of Defense. As a result, he has to run, with his former employers in close pursuit. Sort of The Fugitive without visibility.

He knew, also, that the invisibility for a long-running series is merely a technical gimmick. He's rendered invisible by wearing costumes that match the background. Thus, in front of a color film camera, man and background blend into one. And, as the man said when the magician pulled an elephant from an opera hat, "So, O.K., but what do you do for an encore?"

For a TV series, The Invisible Man has come a long way from the tortured creation of H. (for Herbert) G. (for George) Wells (1866-1946). David McCallum plays scientist Dr. Daniel Weston. He is a research scientist employed by a "think tank" research firm in California.

Just how different it can be was demonstrated in the premiere episode. In that episode The Invisible Man is sent to Las Vegas to determine whether an eccentric business tycoon, who hasn't been seen in years, is dead or alive.

Dr. Daniel Weston has a wife named Kate, who is played by Melinda Fee.

McCallum, at 42, has been around the TV business too long to expect great drama on a weekly series. What he hoped for, instead, was "a lot of fun."

He has previously worked with producer Leslie Stevens (who created Stoney Burke and Search series) and he's always had an enjoyable association with executive producer Harve Bennett.

The series is produced at Universal, the old film studio that introduced the production-line concept to television. Workmanlike shows ensue from the factory; the profits are always huge, and occasionally one finds a program of distinction.

The best thing, then, about The Invisible Man series is that it makes visible on TV once again an actor who is different, a fellow named David McCallum.

Heaven with a Gun (xx), on 8 at 12:45. Glenn Ford plays a preacher with a gun-slinging past in this predictable 1969 western, also starring Carolyn Jones.

12 Angry Men (xxxx), on 5 at 3:30. Brilliant in all departments is this powerful and superbly acted 1957 drama about one man who tries to get his 11 fellow jurors to re-examine their guilty verdict in a murder trial. A flawless cast includes Henry Fonda, Lee J. Cobb, E. G. Marshall, Ed Begley and Jack Klugman. Recommended.

Conrack (xxx), on 7 at 9. John Voight (Midnight Cowboy) won critical acclaim for his portrayal of a dedicated real-life teacher and his efforts to educate indigent black children on an island off the South Carolina Coast. The film is based on Pat Conroy's book, The Water Is Wide.

HENRY FONDA
. . . on 5 at 3:30 p.m.

SIDNEY POITIER
. . . on 12 at 9:30 p.m.

Marnie (xx), on 11 at 9. A confused 1964 drama about a compulsive liar and thief who is cured by love, starring Tippi Hedren and Sean Connery. Hitchcock directed the film, but it's definitely a lesser effort by this master of suspense.

Lilies of the Field (xxx), on 12 at 9:30. Sidney Poitier won an Oscar for his role in this much-acclaimed 1963 drama about an itinerant handyman who helps a group of nuns build a chapel for their desert convent. Simple and charming with an equally fine performance by Lilia Skala as Mother Maria.

The Cloning of Clifford Swimmer, on 4 at 11:30. No rating available on this made-for-television mystery about an executive who finds a bizarre solution to his marital and financial difficulties. Peter Haskell stars.

Satan's School for Girls (xx), on 12 at 11:30. A 1973 made-for-TV thriller about a posh girls school plagued by a series of mysterious suicides, starring Pamela Franklin, Roy Thinnes, Jo Van Fleet and Lloyd Bochner.

Green for Danger (xxx), on 2 at midnight. Alistair Sim and Trevor Howard star in this tightly-knit 1947 British-made mystery about a droll police inspector wading through a maze of suspects trying to solve a double murder in a hospital operating room.

The Hell with Heroes (xx), on 6 at midnight. A 1968 adventure about the clash between an American pilot and a big-time smuggler in post-Second World War Algeria, starring Rod Taylor and Harry Guardino.

Counterpoint (xx), on 8 at midnight. Charlton Heston and Maximilian Schell star in this offbeat Second World War story about members of an American symphony orchestra held captive by Nazi troops in Luxembourg, filmed in 1968.

Sword of Lancelot (xxx), on 7 at 12:30 a.m. Cornel Wilde directed and stars in this entertaining 1962 account of the romance between Lancelot and Queen Guinevere in the days of King Arthur and the Knights of the Round Table.

The Fugitive Kind (xxx), on 6 at 2:10 a.m. A powerhouse cast (Marlon Brando, Anna Magnani and Joanne Woodward) star in this 1960 film rendering of Tennessee Williams' Orpheus Descending, about a drifter who becomes involved with the neurotic wife of an invalid in a small Southern town.

Sirocco (xx), on 8 at 2:15 a.m. Humphrey Bogart and Lee J. Cobb star in this slow-moving 1951 drama about sinister characters and their shady dealings in Damascus. Not one of Bogie's best.

Classic Theatre Preview, on 9 at 8:30. Shakespeare's Macbeth (to be shown at 9 p.m.) is discussed by actor Eric Porter, who analyzes his portrayal in the BBC production. He is joined by Prof. S. Schoenbaum who sketches the era in which Shakespeare wrote the tragedy. (30 mins.)

Classic Theatre, on 9 at 9. Launching a 13-week series of BBC classic dramas is this production of Shakespeare's Macbeth, starring Eric Porter in the title role, and Janet Suzman as Lady Macbeth. Upcoming plays include works by Chekhov, Ibsen, Shaw, Sheridan and Voltaire. (2½ hrs.)

King of Kensington, on 2 at 9. Debut of a new Canadian comedy series starring Al Waxman as Larry King — a contemporary Robin Hood, poker player and operator of a variety store in Toronto's ethnic Kensington district. (30 mins.)

Maclear, on 8 at 9:30. Journalist-broadcaster Michael Maclear returns as host for a second season of documentary reports. Tonight, Chayita — And the 500 Million, focuses on the world's orphaned and abandoned children — some 500 million — who live between destitution and death in 60 countries. (30 mins.)

Meet the King Of Kensington

By JAMES NELSON

TORONTO (CP) — When actor-producer-director Al Waxman appears as Larry King in the CBC-TV situation comedy show, The King of Kensington, at the start of its fall run, Sept. 25, it will mark a home-coming.

Waxman was born 40 years ago in the Kensington Market area of downtown Toronto, and though the district has changed somewhat since those days, the personalities haven't changed that much.

It's a show about a small shop-keeper who is the acknowledged community leader, something between an ombudsman and general fixer for his friends and customers.

It's also the subject of the biggest publicity build-up currently being undertaken by the CBC, which presumably makes the show the headliner of the new CBC-TV season.

If it goes as well with the viewing public as the CBC hopes it will run longer than the initial 13-week scheduled season. And Waxman, just as aggressive a guy as Larry King, says: "I ain't stepping up to the plate to hit anything but a homer."

Waxman, with an international record behind him of some success in radio, TV and films, said in an interview the new show can be as distinctive in North America as any other TV hit has been.

It is to be recorded on tape within six days of each week's episode, making it "directly topical . . . up to the minute . . . as close as possible to live TV."

Each half-hour show will relate an incident in which one or more of Larry King's customers tangles with society's problems, and how the owner of the neighborhood store, by hook or by crook, confounds authority.

Waxman, whose formative years up to the age of seven were spent in the Kensington area, feels a kinship of soul and spirit with today's residents of Kensington, probably the most polygot lot in the whole of Canada. He says the show will have the smell of curry and the taste of garlic.

And Waxman feels he is not just acting the role of Larry King, but is King, in fact.

"Acting, to me, is not just pretending as a lot of people think it is, but it's being. You are, or you aren't and you're just a phoney, and the audiences can pick out the difference."

The stocky, almost overweight he took off 40 pounds for the role, battered-faced actor has an appearance which is at times gentle, and at times aggressive. While just 40 now, he has been in show business 27 years.

That means he started when he still was a highschool kid in downtown Toronto, playing roles in radio when, at his age, it was considered among his peers that it was sissified to be an actor. Sissified or not, he fought his way to prominence in American and British show business.

Now back in Canada, he's counting on at least a six-month run for King of Kensington, and is planning a new film production following, or concurrent with it.

MACLEAR BEGINS NEW SEASON

In 60 countries, 500 million children lie between destitution and death — starving, homeless and abandoned. UNICEF calls it a world child emergency and the worst of it amongst our nearest neighbors, says Michael Maclear in the first episode of the new season of Maclear.

ACTRA Award-winning journalist Michael Maclear begins a second season of special reports on Thursday at 9:30 p.m. on Channel 8.

The program, Chayita — And The 500 Million, will be broadcast Thursday, September 25, 9:30-10:00 p.m. on the CTV Television Network. In many countries in Latin and South America, 40 per cent of the children are orphans and every fourth child will die, usually alone and abandoned. For too few, there will be care and love from people like Sister Maria Rosa, a Franciscan nun in Honduras.

Nine years ago Sister Maria Rosa began an orphanage with 12 children. Now she has 700 — one a little girl named Chayita. Chayita, like most of the other children in Sister Maria Rosa's two orphanages, is kept alive by money sent from Canadian sponsors.

It is a success story says Maclear, which shows that the problem of Chayita and the 500 million is not unmanageable. Co-ordination amongst the multitude of government and private organizations around the world is necessary to increase the number of international adoptions and to fully utilize the system of sponsoring children to allow them to build their lives in their own countries.

What is wrong, says Maclear, are events such as the so-called Vietnam babylift, which attempted to do something about the plight of world orphans, but instead became a squabble over motives and cultural morality.

"It's agonizing to realize," says Maclear, "that just 25 cents a day, eight dollars a month, will keep a child alive in Honduras. For Canadians, the price of a meal or a book or a family visit to the movies will keep a child alive."

In the program, Maclear talks in Honduras with David Stewart, a lawyer from Coburg, Ontario, who lived there for one year. Now, through his Help Honduras Foundation, he raises money and finds Canadian sponsors for the children in Sister Maria Rosa's orphan villages. He has arranged 900 sponsors and is now looking for more businesses, groups and schools who are willing to participate in this process of development. To Stewart, his work is an effort to redress an imbalance.

Classic Theatre Premieres With BBC's Macbeth

Shakespeare's Macbeth and Marlowe's Edward II — two dark tragedies which combine murder, intrigue, sadism and sexuality — are the first presentations on Classic Theatre: The Humanities in Drama.

Of all of Shakespeare's tragedies, Macbeth is one of the richest in superstitious theatrical lore — a tale of witchcraft and murder set in the dark mists of Scotland and served up complete with walking nightmares and avenging ghosts. Eric Porter, star of the highly acclaimed Forsyte Saga creates a chilling portrait of history's most famous murderer, September 25 at 9:00 p.m. Janet Suzman also stars in the Classic Theatre premiere presentation.

Macbeth is a doubly potent killer thriller. It captures the imagination with both supernatural and psychological twists — even more so when television takes the viewer right inside the tyrant Macbeth's mind.

Immediately preceding Macbeth, at 8:30 p.m., Macbeth star Porter and noted humanist-scholar S. Schoenbaum share entertaining anecdotes about Shakespeare, Macbeth, and the Elizabethan stage in Classic Theatre Preview. The preview, which is designed to make the plays more accessible to the viewer also features visual essays on the Scottish moors, and on some of the other reasons why the play has captured the world's imagination for so many centuries. Begins Sept. 22 at 7:00 p.m.

The following week, October 2 at 9:00 p.m., Classic Theatre presents Edward II — the story of a young homosexual king whose choice of lovers led to wars, intrigue, royal purges, and ultimately to his own hideous murder at the hands of a professional sadist.

One of the most stunning and disturbing plays ever written, Edward II was also one of the theatre's most rarely performed dramas. But its recent performance at the Edinburgh Festival made Edward II a celebrated event, and made Ian McKellen a star in the title role. It is this landmark performance which Classic Theatre presents as television cameras go right on stage to capture the Edinburgh production as it was recreated at London's Picadilly Theatre.

Although first produced in 1592, Edward II is a natural television epic, compressing 25 years of history into two hours. From the beginning of his reign, Edward II was harassed by pressures to bar his lover, the peasant Piers Gaveston, from the court. Edward's resistance outraged both his royal family and the influential nobility, who united in a successful plot to murder the lover and drive the king from his throne. Even in retreat, Edward continued to be tormented, until he was finally killed in an obscene parody of the homosexual act.

Although based on actual events, Edward II is deeply textured both by Marlowe's own homosexuality and by the violence of the period in which it was written. Presented during Queen Elizabeth the First's reign, (when sodomy was a hanging offence), the play softens cruelty with compassion, and reflects Marlowe's manifesto that "all they that not love tobacco and boys were fools."

According to Clifford Leech, who has served in distinguished University posts in England, Canada and the United States, Edward was an unfortunate man, whose misfortune was that he "happened to be king." Leech gives his compassionate portrait on Classic Threatre Preview, October 2 at 8:30 p.m. Ian McKellen also appears in the preview, on location at London's famed 12th century Temple Church.

Movies

Gentlemen Marry Brunettes (xx), on 8 at 12:45. A routine 1955 musical about the romantic misadventures of two American showgirls in Paris, starring Jane Russell and Jeanne Crain.

Wings of Chance (x), on 11 at 1. A 1960 Canadian-made adventure-romance about two bush pilots in love with the same girl. The cast is unfamiliar.

Any Wednesday (xxx), on 5 at 3:30. A bright 1966 comedy, based on the stage hit about a kept girl, her married lover, his wife, and an out-of-town salesman who acts as a catalyst. An excellent script enhances the performances of Jane Fonda, Jason Robards Jr., and Dean Jones.

Death Scream, on 4 at 9. An unpreviewed 1975 made-for-TV crime-drama inspired by a true incident, about the investigation into the murder of a young woman who was fatally stabbed in view of 15 neighbors who ignored her cries for help. Cast includes Cloris Leachman, Art Carney, Lucie Arnaz, Edward Asner and Tina Louise. (This film comes with the warning that it may not be suitable for all members of the family.)

JACK LEMMON
. . . on 12 at 9 p.m.

TONY CURTIS
. . . on 2 at midnight

Night Gallery (xx), on 11 at 9. Joan Crawford stars in this 1969 trio of supernatural tales.

The Great Race (xxx), on 12 at 9. An entertaining 1965 slapstick farce about a 1908 road race from New York to Paris. Directed by Blake Edwards with a great cast that includes Jack Lemmon, Tony Curtis, Natalie Wood and Peter Falk.

Houdini (xxx), on 2 at midnight. Some superbly staged stunts highlight this interesting 1953 biography tracing the life and career of the great magician and escape artist, starring Tony Curtis and Janet Leigh.

The Comedy of Terrors (xx), on 6 at midnight. A 1964 spoof of horror films teaming some of the genre greats including Vincent Price, Boris Karloff, Peter Lorre and Basil Rathbone.

Baron Blood (xxx), on 8 at mignight. For horror fans only is this stylish 1972 Italian-made thriller about the reincarnation of a sadistic nobleman. Directed by horror film specialist Mario Sava, and starring Joseph Cotten and Elke Sommer.

El Dorado (xxx), on 12 at midnight. An entertaining, rip-snorting, old-fashioned western, directed with style in 1967 by Howard Hawkes, and starring John Wayne and Robert Mitchum. The story concerns a gunfighter (Wayne) who helps a whiskey-sodden sheriff (Mitchum) redeem himself and roust the town baddies.

The Curse of the Werewolf (xxx), on 7 at 12:30. Another treat for thriller fans is this well-produced 1961 English-made chiller highlighted by handsome Gothic sets and haunting photography. Cast includes Oliver Reed.

The Slime People (x), on 6 at 1:50 a.m. A low-budget 1963 sci-fi effort about prehistoric monsters unleashed on Los Angeles, directed by and starring Robert Hutton.

JOHN WAYNE
. . . on 12 at midnight

Curse of the Stone Hand (x), on 8 at 1:55. Another low-budget thriller, this one made in 1959 about an ancient stone hand that comes to life and causes a wave of terror.

Phantom of the Rue Morgue (xx), on 7 at 2:15 a.m. Karl Malden and Patricia Medina star in this 1954 rendering of the Poe classic about a series of gruesome murders.

Today's Highlights

Celebrity Cooks, on 2 and 6 at 3:30. Host Bruno Gerussi welcomes gourmet chef Madame Jehane Benoit who prepares a Moroccan stew. (30 mins.)

Peacemakers, on 9 at 6:30. A history telecourse profiling people who have furthered world peace in the last 50 years. (30 mins.)

McMillan and Wife, on 8 at 8. The McMillans (Rock Hudson and Susan Saint James) begin their fifth season by wecoming Mildred Natwick as Mac's incurably eccentric mother. The elder Mrs. McMillan is continually hampering the police as they search for the person who tried to murder her 90-year-old friend. (2 hrs.)

Cher, on 12 at 8. Cher's guests tonight are actress-comedienne Nancy Walker and Wayne Rogers (formerly with the M-A-S-H series). (60 mins.)

Shelburne Fiddle Contest, on 2 and 6 at 9. Tommy Hunter, Gloria Kaye and John Allan Cameron are just a few of the guests who perform in this special on the 25th annual fiddle contest held recently in Shelburne, Ontario. (60 mins.)

Police Story, on 2 at 10. Stella Stevens guests stars in tonight's episode about a policewoman faced with the dilemma of marriage vs. career. She has been offered a permanent position as an undercover narcotics officer — a job which she wants, but resented by her policeman husband. Others in the cast include Burr DeBenning, Alex Cord and Scott Brady. (60 mins.)

Police Woman, on 5 at 10. Pepper Anderson (series star Angie Dickinson) takes on the case of the wife of a homicide detective who is the latest victim of a murderer who kills only blonde women and ritualistically places wedding veils on their heads. (60 mins.)

Wide World Special, on 4 at 11:30. Peyton Place Revisited — a retrospective look at the Peyton Place phenomenon from the best-selling novel through the movie and the television series. Host Peter Lawford talks with some of the people involved in the phenomenon incluring Mia Farrow, Christopher Connelly, Russ Tamblyn and John Kerr. The interviews are illustrated with clips from the movie and TV series. (90 mins.)

SATURDAY

12:10 (AM) Our Native Land — Are We Slowly Dying? — A Clear and Present Danger was the phrase used to describe the mercury contamination present in the river systems near the Grassy Narrows and White Dog Reserves in northwest Ontario. People from the reserves talk about the situation; some people still eat the contaminated fish from the poisoned waters.

1:30 (AM) Hot Air — The six original recorded examples, 1939-40, of the collaboration between bassist Jimmy Blanton and pianist Duke Ellington, the beginning of modern rhythm sections. Host Bob Smith.

8:03 (AM) CBC Stage — But Petrovsky Goes on Forever, by British adutnor Densil Barr. This comedy with sinister overtones centres around the unreal achievement of the pedantic inventor Petrovsky, "a pinnacle of pins, each balanced one on the other, 108 pins high and still growing," and the interest of international agents and a psychic investigator in his futile creation. Roy Brinson stars as Petrovsky, with Cecilia Smith, Terence Waterhouse, Peter Haworth and others. Directed by Norman Newton in Vancouver.

8:30 (FM) The Entertainers — Host: Jim Bauer. An interview with Beverly Glenn-Copeland. An interview with Michael Hasek and selections from his new LP; and an exclusive interview with Paul McCartney and John Lennon, and with Ringo Starr and former Beatle producer George Martin, who talk about their careers in 1975.

10:03 (AM) Anthology — A book review by Kildare Dobbs. Robert Fulford, editor of Saturday Night, interviews novelist Hugh Hood, whose first novel in a series set in Ontario was published recently.

11:03 (FM) Great Canadian Gold Rush — A rock music series with host Terry David Mulligan. Tonight: An interview and BBC concert with the English rock group, Pretty Things.

SUNDAY

12:05 (FM) BBC Concert—The 1974 Henry Wood Promenade Concerts from Royal Albert Hall, London — BBC Symphony Orchestra conducted by Rudolf Kempe: Symphony No. 5 in B flat major (Schubert); Sinfonietta (Janacek).

1:03 (AM) The Bush and the Salon—A Model Colonial Governor, written and produced by John Holmes, relates the career of Sir William McGregor, governor of Newfoundland from 1904-1909. He was a man ahead of his time who was concerned about the importance of the newsprint industry, the need for modernizing the fisheries, the disappearing whale, the protection of native people's rights, and the dissolution of the British Empire. He also prevented a clash between Britain and the U.S. on the eve of the First World War.

7:03 (AM) The Entertainers —Includes interviews with former Beatles John Lennon, Paul McCartney, Ringo Starr, and producer George Martin, who talk about their careers in 1975.

10:30 (AM) CBC Playhouse —Cyanide by Derk Wynand, a University of Victoria Professor. A bitter but hilarious comedy about the male sexual dependency on females. With Marian Waldman, Frances Hyland, Mary Long, Ruth Springford, Ted Follows, Eric House, Peter Mews, and Peter Blais. Producer Ron Hartmann describes it as 'literate, clever, subtle, funny'.

MONDAY

8:00 (FM) CBC Monday Evening — Part I — Speaking and Writing — An animated discussion about the English language and its present day use. Between: Marghanita Laski, Stanley Ellis, Senior Lecturer in English, University of Leeds, Louis Allen, Senior Lecturer in French, University of Durham. Part II — English Songs with Jack Kessler, violin; Gloria Doubleday, contralto, in compositions by Holst and Vaughan Williams. Part III — Wits and Dandies, by John Weisentha and Michael Goldberg. The use and affection for language (1) with examples from Gibbon. Part IV — CBC Recordings: Double Concerto in B Minor: Symphony in D Minor (both by William Boyce). McGill Chamber Orchestra conducted by Alexander Brott.

10:03 (FM) Ideas — Cancer: The 20th Century Plague — Tonight: The Politics of Cancer — All questions, from how much of the money you paid for your cancer daffodil goes to research, to who gets that money, to the publication and dissemination of cancer information within a country or between them, fit broadly into this program. In the United States there are cancer lobbies. In Canada we have the Cancer Institute. Who's in control? What are the rules? Who benefits? Who suffers? Prepared by Max Allen, formerly super-snooper on As It Happens.

10:30 (AM) Touch the Earth — Host Sylvia Tyson presents a feature on Sunniland Slim; songs of the Irish Rebellion; and a humorous song workshop from the 1947 Winnipeg Folk Festival.

WEDNESDAY

6:30 (FM) Organists in Recital — Featuring Bruce Wheatcroft, organ, at Robertson Wesley United Church in Edmonton: Unter der Linder Grune (Sweelinck); Chorale No. 3 in A minor (C. Franck); petite Suite (Gerald Bales).

10:03 (AM) Ideas — Berlioz: The Magnificent Century. Tonight: Critical Appraisals, Part II, with David Cairns, music critic for the Sunday Times and author of a biography of Berlioz; and Colin Davis, conductor of the London Symphony orchestra, BBC Symphony orchestra, and Covent Garden Opera, and a noted Berlioz interpreter.

10:30 (AM) Country Roads — The Lilly Brothers from West Virginia are featured in performance.

THURSDAY

7:03 (FM) Encore — An Evening with Ernst Krenek. A concert featuring the music of Viennese-born, American composer Ernst Krenek, who is 75 this year, recorded at MacMillan Theatre, University of Toronto, as part of the CBC Toronto Summer Festival, 1975. Music: Tape and Double, for two pianos and electronic tape (Monica Gaylord and Karen Kieser, pianos); Five Songs on words by Franz Kafka (Mary Morrison, soprano; Monica Gaylord, piano); String Trio (Otto Armin, violin; Paul Armin, viola; Peter Schenkman, cello); Quintina on the five vowels for soprano, six instruments and electronic tape (Billie Bridgman, soprano; conducted by Krenek); Von Vorn Herein for chamber ensemble (conducted by Krenek). North American premier).

10:03 (FM) Ideas — The Celts — Irish Survival — How has Ireland managed to preserve itself through centuries of English domination? Professor Robert O'Driscoll of St. Michael's College, University of Toronto believes that the articulate language of the race has been instrumental as he explains in this program. Professor O'Driscoll is the author of a forthcoming book An Ascendancy of the Heart, a study of the development of modern Irish Literature. The New Jerusalem — The New Jerusalem was the spiritual focus of a beleaguered culture. From the 16th century when Henry VIII assimilated the Welsh gentry into English life, Methodism gave a rationale to an abandoned peasantry. In turn, the peasantry became workers, and Methodism grew into radicalism. This program examines how a language survived to the present century.

FRIDAY

6:30 (FM) Music International—From a concert at the Queen Elizabeth Hall, London — Mario Bernardi conducts the National Arts Centre Orchestra: Overture to The Italian Woman In Algiers (Rossini); Fantasia Concertante on a Theme of Corelli (Sir Michael Tippett).

7:00 (FM) Radio International—Hosts: Harry Mannis and Jan Tennant. Last of three new BBC stereo productions for radio of plays by Shakespeare. This week: King Lear, featuring Sir Alec Guinness and Cyril Cusack. (Extended to 11:00 p.m. this occasion).

8:03 (AM) Between Ourselves—The Nova Scotia School Music Program — Broadcaster Marjory Whitelaw explores the astonishing development of this program, and finds out why music teachers, school boards, parents and children have made music one of the most popular subjects in school.

10:30 (AM) Major Progression—A weekly 90-minute rock music show from Winnipeg. The program will have a variety of features covering almost every aspect of the music scene by Canadian artists. There will be a weekly billboard of musical events with information about the major concerts across the country; reviews of new record albums, and interviews with musical personalities. The program will also have commentaries on various aspects of the music industry: record companies and publishers; and how a record is promoted to hit status.

CHALK MARKS on the sidewalk offer grim testimony to the death of a girl murdered in front of 15 silent witnesses in the movie, Death Scream, based on a true life incident, to be shown on Friday at 9 p.m. on Channel 4.

Arthur Murray will show you all there is to know about the Hustle ... the dips ... the spins ... smooth brakes ... fancy turns ... jazzy footwork ... and the other "touch" dances like Cha Cha • Lindy • Waltz • Merengue.

EARL WILSON FROM THE N.Y. POST: "I watched the new dance craze, the Hustle, demonstrated by the Arthur Murray dancers ... very pelvic ... wild ... "Look, they even hold each other"
